alighted, he stepped almost in front of an express train which brushed his arms as it went whizzing past. Conway was undisturbed and calm while many other persons who had seen his danger became very much excited. The express train stopped and altogether there was an unusual commotion. Conway is a sailor and has just put into port. He said he thought he would venture on another cruise taking an inland route. It led, however, to the lockup where he was held until the night.
This morning, he was in court for evangel car fare and had his case continued 30 days.

Funeral of George C. Lord.

The funeral of Mr. George C. Lord took place from the Channing church Sunday afternoon. At 2:30 o'clock, and prior to the exercises in the church, a service of prayer for the family was held at the home of the deceased on Waverly avenue.

Rev. Francis B. Hornbroke conducted the service in Channing church. There was a large attendance, and, beside many Newton people, delegations were present representing the directory of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company, the Second National Bank of Boston, the John Hancock Insurance Company, and other corporations and business interests with which the deceased had been connected during his busy life.

The church services were of the simplest character. A male quartet rendered the selections, "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Abide With Me." Rev.
Mr. Hornbroke pronounced a brief, but fitting eulogy, alluding to Mr. Lord's successful business career, the respect in which he was held in the community and the important place he occupied in Channing church. He spoke in the highest terms of Mr. Lord's character.

There were no floral tributes and no pall-bearers, simplicity in all details being the desire of the family. The interment was made in the Newton cemetery.

Among those present were Henry M.
Whitney, president West End Railroad; John Felt Osgood and Nath. J. Rush of Boston Safe Deposit Co.; Franklin Haven,
Jr., of John Hancock Life Insurance Co.; Thos. P. Beal, president Second National Bank, Boston; E. W. Converse, J. N.
Bacon, Francis Murdoch of N. & W. Gas Light Company, Charles F. Farlow, N. P.
Coburn, John T. Wells, Richard
Olney, President Cleveland's Attorney General; F. M. Stone and James Longley of Boston Safe Deposit Co.; Isaac T.
George W. Armstrong of Boston; Isaac
T. Burr, Geo. T. Wilbur, Geo. S. Bullens, ex-Mayor J. F. C. Hyde, ex-Senator Gilman, Thomas Weston, J. C. Chaffin and J. L. Woodford, representing the Jersey
Stock Club; A. Lawrence Edmonds, J.
Howard Nichols, C. B. Lancaster, Gilman Brackett, Warner P. Tyler, and many other prominent citizens of Newton.

Mrs. Kellner Brutally Assaulted.

Mrs. Kellner, residing on West street, Nonantum district, was knocked down and brutally assaulted on Bridge street, Tuesday evening. She was on her way home shortly before 10 o'clock, when an unknown man accosted her, using insulting language and afterward tripping her up.

Mrs. Kellner was badly frightened and cried out for assistance. Her assailant to stop her cries stuffed a quantity of snow into her mouth, but not until the woman's screams had attracted the attention of William Frye, who hurried at once to the scene of the encounter.

Upon Frye's approach Mrs. Kellner's assailant jumped up and ran toward Nonantum square.

Frye gave his attention to the woman's condition and found that she was in an unconscious state.

Officer Blue was summoned and she was taken to her home, where she quickly recovered and afforded the police all the information she could of the affair.

The fellow who assaulted her is described as a tall, dark-complexioned man, with heavy brown mustache, fairly good looking. He wore, she said, a dark suit of clothes and a blue overcoat.
The police are investigating the case.

NEWTON CLUB NOTES.

LADIES' NIGHT ENTERTAINMENT AND OTHER SOCIAL EVENTS—BOWLING.

The date of the next Ladies' Night is announced for March 22. Concert and readings at 8 o'clock, followed by dancing.

Newton won from Arlington on the latter's alleys in a league match Monday evening. Savage was high man with a total for three strings of 523.

Mr. F. L. Felton and party had the private alleys last Friday evening; H. E.
Cobb's party, Monday evening; J. B.
Fuller and party, Tuesday evening; A. By-field and party, Thursday evening.

The Individual Invitation Bowling Tournament, in which representatives of all clubs of the Massachusetts Amateur Bowling League are expected to participate, has been arranged by the committee, Messrs. Hawley, Byers and Hall, to take place at the Club House on the afternoon and evening of March 8. Members and their families are invited to be present.

The largest party of the season marked the ladies' night social affair of Wednesday evening. The handsome assembly hall was garlanded with trailing vines and a profusion of tropical plants tastefully arranged about the stage, where the Germania players were stationed and dis-coursed charming music. The ladies never donned more becoming toilets and some elegant gowns were worn. Prior to the dancing, a pink dinner was given by Mr.
and Mrs. W. J. Follett in the ladies' cafe.
The tables were decorated with Catherine Mermet roses and pinks. Mr. and Mrs.
Follett's guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dennison, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lodge and Mr. and Mrs. A. S. March.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE SCHOOL BOARD RECEIVES ATTENTION
—THE PARK FAVORED—PUPIL CONVEYANCE CONDEMNED, BUT ALLOWED.

The common council met Monday evening with President Weed in the chair and all the members present except Councilman Staples. The records of the last meeting were read and approved and papers from the board of aldermen were passed in conference.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE.

When the order desiring a committee of conference on the ordinance relating to highways was presented for concurrent action, Councilman Degen moved to comply with the request of the aldermen and his motion was adopted. President Weed appointed Councilmen Tolman, Hatch and Degen to confer with the committee from the other branch.

The resolve adopted by the aldermen, relative to raising money for public schools was tabled at Councilman Green's request.

The action of the aldermen in refusing to concur with the council in the $200 appropriation for conveyance of school children and offering a substitute order appropriating $27, was next taken up. With this was presented a communication from Mrs. Helen Wiswall, protesting against a transfer of Lower Falls school to Auburndale, in behalf of her children aged 10 and 13.

Councilman Knapp believed this should claim the attention of the council. Lower Falls residents pay their taxes to the city and were entitled to the same privileges as other citizens and he thought it decidedly wrong to put them to this inconvenience and their children in danger by going back and forth on the trains.

The substitute order then passed.

ANOTHER PARK? YES.

The order appropriating $8000 for the construction of a roadway between Cabot street and Newtonville avenue, conditional upon the deed of 14 acres of park land to the city brought out some inquiry as to its desirability.

Councilman Ross of the highway committee said a syndicate offered the city 14 acres of land for park purposes near the foot of Mt. Ida and between Newtonville avenue and Cabot street. The land was excellently adapted for a playground and opens up a tract between Newtonville and the Highlands which will be of great advantage to both places. He believed the city should secure full control of the land and the city engineer had made a conservative estimate of the cost of the construction of a road, (the condition upon which the land is given) at $6000 and the speaker thought the estimate a fair one.

Councilman Tolman said the assessors said the increased value in two years would pay the $6000 now expended. Councilman Green said retaining walls would probably have to be constructed on Laundry brook the cost of which would be about $6000. He believed now is the time to take the land.

Councilman Park said the present assessed value was $8000 and the syndicate mentioned had placed restrictions upon purchasers of land ensuring the erection of houses costing not less than $6000 each.

Councilman Hatch said Newtonville had no public playground for children and believed such a place should be provided.

Councilman Briston believed in parks and playgrounds for the children and felt it to be a wise move to secure this land, at the same time, in the present state of the city's finances, believing it prudent to travel slowly in these matters.

IN THE DARK.

Petitions were received from E. W. Estabrooks and others for arc lights at the junction of Pearl and Thornton and Pearl and Waban streets. Referred.

Petitions for appointment of sewer assessors in 10 equal parts were presented.

PUPIL CONVEYANCE.

At this point President Weed relinquished the gavel to Councilman Bennett and took the floor. He presented an order appropriating $172 for the conveyance of pupils as requested by the Newton school board. An order appropriating $27, he explained, had been passed and this was to complete the order as originally passed by the council and allow for the conveyance of pupils for the balance of the year. The committee he believed should have the power to do as they pleased in this matter of conveying pupils. They had last year and now the city council street in and seeks to remove it. It is merely a transfer of sum from their general appropriation for this special purpose. They had come to the conclusion that the part of wisdom required the transfer of the eighth grade pupils of the Lower Falls grammar school to Auburndale and he thought it a wise move. The headmaster resigned last year and a salary of $1900 could be saved to the city. The board's action was in accordance with the school government of suburban cities, believing it better to maintain a large school rather than a small one; also a benefit to the children. It was usual for the people living far from a school house to object to such a transfer, but they came later to think differently. There were only seven pupils interested and it was only for the present year, and he favored leaving it to the wisdom of the school board.

Councilman Briston asked the Councilman from Ward seven if he thought the transfer would be satisfactory to the parents of the children.

Councilman Jordan at this point said the youngest child of those to be transferred was 13 years of age not 10 as suggested in the communication presented previously. Some of those to be transferred lived in Wellesley and Weston.

Councilman Knapp did not believe in sending children of that age on the trains to a distant school, changing cars at such a dangerous place as Riverside and with no one to look out for them. He did not think it wisdom or the best policy for the city government of Newton to sanction this and did not believe the council would wish to do so. The citizens of Lower Falls were entitled, as such, to the same conveniences and facilities as other sections. He wished to put himself on record as opposed to this precedent.

President Weed stated that Superintendent Aldrich said the children of those who had submitted communications were not those to be transferred.

Councilman Knapp had heard that while local children at the Lower Falls had a lunch counter at the school the pupils from Weston and Wellesley were obliged to eat out of doors.

Councilman Jordan said such a statement was false. They enjoyed the same privileges as Newton children.

Councilman Degen believed Lower Falls was entitled to the same privileges as the rest of the city whether there were seven, 17 or 70 children concerned; it was the principle involved. A capable lady teacher could be employed, if a master was too expensive, and then the point of going to and from the trains was very strong. He should not care to have his children in such danger. If it happened a single child was injured or lost in this transfer it seemed to him it would be more than the city government would want to bear. A similar instance of transferring scholars occurred last year in the Oak Hill school and the objections were so vigorous, the school had to be re-opened.

After further discussion Councilman Briston moved to table the order and secure more information on the matter from the school superintendent. His motion was presented and lost, and the order appropriating $172 was then adopted.

CHANGE THE CITY CHARTER?

Councilman Green brought up the matter of changing the city charter relative to the tenure of office of certain city officials. He believed such a revision was in the nature of a retrograde movement. It made possible the removal of good officers for political reasons; better official efficiency was gained by the method now in operation than could be secured if an official knew his tenure of office to be limited or precarious.

He therefore offered the following: Resolved—That it is the sense of this body that such a proposition will be detrimental to the best interests of the city and antagonistic to the principles of civil service reform. Adopted.

ARGUMENT VS. VOTE.

The resolve relative to raising money for public schools was taken from the table by request of Councilman Green, who understood the bill introduced to the Legislature was to give school boards the power to expend money for schools. He thought they already had that power by courtesy. They presented an estimate of the money needed by them each year, and the city council gives it to them. He thought the matter was not so very different with this fact when they passed upon it. He moved to return it to the table.

Councilman Degen understood the bill to mean the transfer to the school boards of the power to expend all moneys for erecting school houses, etc., a power now in the hands of the city council, where he believed it should remain.

The arguments evidently favored strongly the resolve passed by the aldermen which was as follows: "Resolved, that it is the opinion of the city council of Newton, that no legislation should be adopted which will take from the city council of cities, the power to appropriate money to be raised by taxation for purpose of public schools, or to place such power in the hands of school committees, and remonstrance against such proposed legislation is hereby made," but when it came to vote the council unanimously refused to endorse the resolution.

SHELVED.

Councilman Loss moved to reconsider the order passed at the last meeting whereby the council refused to concur in instructing the senators and representatives to support the bill to amend the sewer ordinance, but instead the reconsideration sought the table at Councilman Knapp's hands.

A RESIGNATION. President Weed said he wished to present his resignation from the Legislative committee. He hardly felt a position to support the change in the present sewer ordinance as drawn. The city council had endorsed the bill and as he could not support it he felt it best to resign from the committee.

GREETED BY MANY FRIENDS.

MR. AND MRS. L. J. CALLEY CELEBRATE THEIR 25TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

At their handsome home on Park street, Monday evening, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Calley celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. About 200 guests, representing society in the various Newtons, Boston and vicinity, were present and extended their congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Calley received with their daughter, Miss Bessie Calley, in the large parlor, which was handsomely decorated with blooms and tropical plants.

Mrs. Calley was gowned in cream satin, en traine with garniture of duchess lace and trimmings of broadened velvet. She wore diamond ornaments and a corsage bouquet of Catherine Mermer roses.

Miss Bessie Calley was attired in white crepe de chene, with girle and trimmings of Nile green velvet and carried a bouquet of violets.

An orchestra discoursed music during the evening, and an elaborate collation was served in the large dining room.

Mr. and Mrs. Calley were the recipients of numerous handsome presents. Among others, Mrs. Calley received a handsome cream set from her white elabed friends, and Mr. Calley was presented with a marble mantel clock by his Boston business associates.

Among the invited guests were: Messrs. T. C. Burgess, G. W. Brown, W. H. Jordan, H. W. Peters, F. A. Smith, Edwin Roswell, Edmund Briggs, R. A. Field, R. F. Strand, J. P. Stevens, E. E. Adams, C. B. THE ENGLISH RAIL.

THE STREET RAILWAYS SHOULD BE AS LITTLE A NUISANCE AS POSSIBLE.
To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:—

Several letters have appeared in your columns from correspondents who oppose the petitions of the electric roads to use certain of the streets of Newton for car routes.

Now, while we all sympathize with that feeling which prompts the opposition to these projects, the feeling that the attractiveness of our highways is injured by the erection of poles and the running of wires, and that the use of the streets for driving is interfered with, we must, to be impartial in our judgment, also consider the matter from the point of view of public utility.

And from this point of view it seems to me there is no escape from the conclusion that the electric roads are a great public benefit. The very fact of their rapid development, not only in Newton but all over the thickly settled parts of the United States, shows conclusively that they are considered by the public as a material aid in traveling short distances. While it is true that the supply may in time overtop the demand, it can hardly be said that we have yet in Newton reached that point. I will say, however, that I think the side of this question which it is important that the city authorities should carefully consider, if they have not already done so, and that is the form of the rails which the electric car companies are to be allowed to place in our streets, if their petition is granted.

The rails generally used are certainly very obstructive to the use of the streets by all vehicles except the street cars. In the English cities the street car companies use a flat topped form of rail, which is so shaped and placed that it lies flush with the surface of the street, and therefore offers no appreciable obstruction to the passage of vehicles, although moving in a diagonal direction from one side of the road to the other. This pattern of rail I understand has also been laid by the West End Company on Beacon street between West Chester Park and Brookline avenue, and as it has been in service for at least a year, and has been subjected to the test of a winter of great severity, it would seem to be the part of wisdom that inquiry should be made as to the results which have followed its use.

Undoubtedly such a pattern of rail would add somewhat to the cost of constructing the electric roads in Newton, but if these are given the right of way through our streets without the imposition of taxes for the privilege so granted, it is nothing more than fair that they should adopt such improved forms of construction as will tend to lessen in every way possible any of the objectionable features which have heretofore been recognized as due to their presence.

The Hunnewell Hill Improvement Society.
A preliminary meeting of gentlemen interested in organizing a society for the improvement of the neighborhood bounded by the Charles river and Tremont street, the city line and Nonantum place, met at the house of Dr. Shinn, Linder Terrace, on Monday night.

The meeting resulted in the formation of a society with the following officers: President, Mr. W. U. Lawson; Vice-Pres., Mr. J. W. French; Sec., Mr. J. C. Elms, Jr.; Treas., Mr. S. Moore.

A committee on constitution was appointed to report at a general meeting to be held probably at the house of ex-Mayor Hibbard on the evening of March 9th.

Among the purposes of the society are the supervision of sidewalks, planting shade trees, securing a new railway station at the foot of Copley or some other street, finding a playground for the boys, and developing the fine natural advantages of this beautiful new neighborhood. Under intelligent direction this can be made one of the choicest parts of the city.

THE CO-OPERATIVE BANK.

THE SUCCESS WHICH HAS ATTENDED THE FIRST FIVE YEARS.

The annual report of the Newton Co-operative Bank, to be made at the annual meeting, March 7, is now being printed and will be mailed to all the shareholders before the meeting. It shows a very encouraging state of affairs, and the managers of the bank are certainly deserving of good credit for their wise and careful management, to which the success of the enterprise is due. From the report we take the following summary of the year's work, made by President Dewson:

In presenting this report of the result of the operations of the first five years since the incorporation of the bank, the directors feel that they have a right to congratulate you and themselves as well upon the entirely successful result of our co-operative effort.

The statutes of this Commonwealth which should govern the administration of these institutions have been most carefully framed, and from time to time amended, until they afford the most perfect protection possible to the shareholder in his desire to husband moderate resources derived from present labor, and make provision against the exigencies of sickness and the declining powers of old age.

It has been the earnest and faithful endeavor of your directors without exception to conduct the business of the bank in full accord with the spirit and purpose as well as the letter of these statutes.

The total present capital of the bank amounting to $191,500.77 represents the savings of a very large number of persons (775 in all) of moderate means, very many of whom would have made no such accumulation, but for the facility thus furnished in enabling the formation of a fund from even so small a saving as 25 cents each week.

The real estate loans, amounting to $183,050, represent the opportunities afforded to 105 different families to obtain for themselves a home, in which they have the interest of ownership and the constant incentive to a wise economy which may result, with scarcely any sensible daily sacrifice, in its full possession free from debt in a comparatively short term of years.

The share loans indicate the facility with which a deposit, the use of which for personal wants has become a temporary necessity, can be made available without any sacrifice of previous earnings of interest, and the monthly accumulation continued without interruption.

The strict principles of business which prevail in these institutions enable them to be from beginning to end, co-operative and fraternal in the only full sense of the term; they stand in absolute contravention and entire opposition to the so-called fraternal and mutual benefit orders and organizations, based upon a plan which at its very best, even if in any degree fulfilling its promises, depends upon the misfortune and failure of a large number of their members. The more the failures, the greater profit to those who survive, is an incentive so far removed from fraternal principles as to excite a sense of wonder that the legislature of a state which has so carefully guarded its co-operative banks, could possibly have been misled into toleration and incorporation of establishments of such specious schemes for gambling upon the probabilities of misfortune to others.

Now that the bubble has evaporated and the good sense of the workers whose savings are at stake in some measure returned, it is not the duty of every shareholder in a co-operative bank to spread the knowledge of their beneficent workings, and the details of each such success as our own as widely as possible amongst his friends and neighbors, that the welfare of this growing community and of the Commonwealth, which is our common mother, may be promoted and our common brotherhood be established upon sound and permanent principles.

That you may be provided with the means of performing this use to the community, the details of this report are given in as simple and concise form as possible, to show the character and amount of the business done, its method, and its progress. A little careful attention to the tables and statements will to the general information with which it closes will enable any intelligent person to comprehend and explain it to others.

It may be noticed that we have as yet met with no losses of any kind, all securities having been carefully examined by a most competent committee.

By order of the directors,
FRANCIS A. DEWSON, President.

Manufacturing Petrified Corpses.

A factory for the manufacture of petrified human corpses has, it is alleged, been discovered in Fresno, Cal. At least four petrified people are said to have been manufactured and shipped to museums from this place. It may be remembered that a petrified man created considerable talk in Utah last fall, and that reports of the curiosity were printed in eastern papers. The thing was seen by natural history experts and pronounced a fraud, but it netted considerable money for the "miners" who discovered it. The objects were very carefully made, the bones of the legs and arms being hollowed out, and in one case one arm and a foot was broken off to show the internal structure. The fake factory, it is said, stole a genuine mummified man—a dried body found on the plains—from the health officer at Fresno, fixed it up a little and shipped it to a museum in the east.—New York Sun.

A Fake Newspaper Man.

According to recent dispatches the sensational accounts which all the papers had a few days ago of the storming of the jail at Bakersville, N. C., the shooting of the sheriff, the desperate battle between the mob and the sheriff's posse and the lynching of three prisoners was all a "fake," as the newspaper men call it, devised by a man named Hyams, assistant city editor of a paper at Johnson City, Tenn. Correspondents who were sent from Asheville, N. C., to Bakersville, have returned worn out and disgusted, saying there is no trouble whatever there, nor is there any reason to expect any.

The man Hyams who was guilty of telling and publishing this abominable lie should be discharged from his own paper and blacklisted by every respectable newspaper in the United States.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Reputation is a great thing in the commercial world. The reputation of being able to do something or make something better than anybody else, is a sure sign of future success, however slow it may be in coming. We suppose other firms could make as good as the Chilton Paints, if they would take the same trouble and go to as great expense. But seemingly they do not think it worth while. Other firms turn out as much, and more paint in a year than we do, but they don't turn out as good. We concentrate our energies first on the quality, the output is sure to increase later. We make a pure linseed oil paint. We guarantee it to be more durable, and to cover more surface than any other paint made. Its excess of cost over others is far less than its excess of quality. Look for yourself at some of the buildings covered with Chilton Paints. Ask the owners about it. Invest fifteen cents in a pound can and see for yourself. New York and Boston.

A MODEL CITY CHARTER.

Shall Newton Change It for Old Spoils System?

The radical change proposed for the city charter of Newton involves a return to the old system of tenure of office for the heads of departments for fixed terms instead of during good behavior, as at present. The city of Newton is peculiar among all the cities of the state in regard to the tenure of its chief officers, and it is pointed to as a model by people who have watched the workings of the system.

But it is proposed to abolish this feature of the charter and return to fixed terms. The city government appears as a petitioner before the Legislature for this change, but the order which was adopted had no mention of the radical change which is proposed. The order was not discussed at all in either branch of the city government when it was adopted, and the people of the city are, as a rule, in ignorance that any change is proposed. Already there is strong opposition to the bill which has been drawn to accompany the petition, and there will be a powerful remonstrance when the matter is heard before the committee.

To one part of the change there will probably be a general consent, that for a gradual change in the membership of boards and commissions, and if the men who are pushing the bill will be content with that part of the measure there may be an easy passage. But if it is proposed to make the heads of departments, as a rule, subject to the raids of partisan politics, then there will be vigorous opposition.

It is the perfection of Newton's system in the opinion of its friends, which arouses their sympathy in view of this attack, and they can see no reason for a reversal of the course which has been so popular and signally successful in the administration of city affairs, especially as they assert that there has been no indication in any quarter of dissatisfaction with the present system. The provision of the charter which it is proposed to change says:

"The mayor and aldermen shall appoint ward clerks, constables, a city marshal, with the powers and duties of a constable, and all other officers required by the laws of the commonwealth or by the ordinance of the city whose selection is not hereinbefore provided for, to hold office until they resign or are removed by the mayor, with the consent of the aldermen, etc."

In place of this, it is proposed to strike out the words, "until they resign or are removed by the mayor with the consent of the aldermen," and to substitute: "For such term or terms not exceeding three years as the city council may by ordinance or otherwise determine; provided, however, that such officers may be reappointed and all members of the police and fire department, except the city marshal and chief of the fire department, shall hold office until they resign or are removed by the mayor with the consent of a majority of all the aldermen."

The practical effect of this change would be to throw the offices of the city into politics once more, to the great injury of the service.

One of the most strongly opposed to the change is ex-Mayor Ellison, who served in 1882, when the present system was introduced, and expresses himself most positively against the change. The matter was taken up in 1881, during the term of Mayor Pulsifer, and a commission was appointed to draft a new charter, which drafts were then over to the term of Mayor Ellison, and he, with Dwight Chester, who is now one of the Newton representatives in the Legislature. Alderman E. H. Mason and City Solicitor Slocum, as a committee, went over the draft and suggested many changes. Their work was submitted to many of the leading citizens, and there was general approval of the plan for tenure of office. Mr. Ellison, speaking of this sentiment, says "that it was because the people of Newton as a whole have been strong believers in the principles of civil service reform, and this provision is distinctly in their line."

This charter was submitted to the people for their approval by a majority vote at the state election in 1882. "It was adopted unanimously," Mr. Ellison says, "as far as I can recollect."

It became operative in January, 1883, in Mr. Ellison's second year, and he made the first appointments under it. Thus the heads of departments, of highways, fire, water and police, and so on, were taken out of politics, and have been kept out ever since.

An advantage of the system is that the city saves a great deal of money by it. The incumbent of one of these high offices has an experience which no other man can have, and that is to the advantage of the city. When enterprises are to be carried on, new men do not know as well as the old officers the course of past events and where the city can save. New plans are more likely to be adopted, at an added expense, if new men are to be elected frequently.

The way in which the order was adopted is criticised, for it was put through the city government without any debate or any attention being called to it. It was adopted at the second meeting of the city government, when the council was new to the business, and was put through with a mass of other matters, apparently unnoticed. To show how unfamiliar the new city government was with city matters, it is mentioned that not one of the seven aldermen ever served before on the board. Three of the seven never had any experience in city matters, while the fourth has had only one term in the common council, and that was in 1888. Another had two years in the council in 1883 and 1884. President Bothfield of the board was in the common council in 1891-92, and Alderman Ruffe in the common council in 1889, 1890, 1891 and 1892.

Out of the 14 members of the common council, seven are entirely new men. Two have served two years—in 1891 and 1892—five one year only, in 1892.

It was the desire of the city of Newton, when the charter was revised in 1882, to put all the offices under the same system as to tenure, but the political instinct of rotation was so strong in the Legislature that the people could not get all they wanted, but the city treasurer, auditor and clerk are exempt from the rules which apply to the other officers. In the departments of the city marshal, chief of police and city engineer all the subordinates are appointed and hold their places through the civil service rules, and it is said that the heads of departments should be under a tenure as good as that of their subordinates.

President Bothfield of the board of aldermen tried to procure a reconsideration of the order in the upper branch, and offered a substitute to retain the present system as regards heads of departments, but to change the practice regarding the water board, the board of health, the trustees of the free public library and all other permanent boards and commissions, but the aldermen refused to reconsider. They did amend the order by striking out the limitation to three years, but, apparently by a mistake, this was not sent to the council for concurrence, and so the original petition from the city government is all that the legislative committee will have to go by, unless something further is done before the hearing is given.

One reason why there is agreement to changes in the permanent boards and commissions is that disappointed candidates for office have been given these places, and, while estimable gentlemen, it is charged that they do not show that city or diligence in the duties of the offices which the interests of the city demand.

An objection to the bill which has been submitted with the petition of the mayor is that it does not provide for a submission of the question to the people of Newton. It has been the custom, in all the changes of the city government, for the Legislature to put a provision in the bill to make the act valid when accepted by a majority of the people. This was done when the revised charter was proposed. It was done recently when it was proposed to establish a city board of health, and the act was rejected by the people by a decided vote. It is felt that, at least, if this radical change is to be seriously pressed in the city charter, it ought to be submitted to the popular vote for approval, and not be forced upon them by the Legislature without being given an opportunity to say whether or not they want it.

The men who sympathize with the principles of civil service reform, as far as they have become aware of what is proposed, are expressing themselves freely against the project, and doing what they can to bring before the Legislature evidence that the city government of Newton is the best in the state in this respect, that the removal of the heads of departments is opposed by the people, and that the real sentiment of the city, in spite of the hasty and ill-considered action of the city council, is decidedly in favor of the present system of appointment by the mayor. As long as he has the power of removal, and as long as incumbents can hold only during good behavior, it is believed that the interests of the city will not suffer, but that they will suffer materially if each officer is obliged frequently to take a hand in politics, to the neglect of his office, if he desires to retain his position.

The River Parks.

The Boston Sunday Herald gave an illustrated description of the proposed parks on the banks of the Charles, in Newton and Weston, and says:

Few about here who are fond of boating do not know more or less of the beauties of the Charles river as reached from Riverside. Only a few years ago this knowledge was confined to comparatively small numbers, most of whom lived in the neighborhood; but within the last decade the number of visitors to the river has increased very rapidly. The attraction has come largely from the river banks, the greater part of which is wooded, although here and there are charming stretches of green meadows.

Following the increase in interest in the river itself has come a desire to keep the banks beautiful and attractive. Within the past few months the movement has taken practical form, and much more will probably be done the coming season.

After describing the gifts of Mr. Chas. W. Hubbard, the Herald said: Between the pieces bought by the city of Newton and that given by Mr. Hubbard, the river flows, part of way over shallows forming the lower rapids, and the rest sweeping around the bend beneath fine trees which overhang the stream.

To the north of East Newton street is a triangular parcel of land which it is not at all unlikely that the owner will give for a park.

Just to the north of the railroad bridge, at Riverside, on the Newton side of the river, are the fine clubhouse and grounds of the Newton Boat Club. It is proposed to extend Charles street, which leads to the clubhouse, across the river and on to Weston, and the Boston Athletic Association has considered the advisability of taking and here for country club grounds, with an oval, boathouse and tennis grounds. Should this be done, both banks of the river at this point would be assured against defilement.

Between the site suggested for the athletic association and Weston bridge is a tract which Mr. Francis Blake has expressed a willingness to give for park purposes.

In the second cut is shown the land recently taken by the city of Newton, in conjunction with public spirited citizens of Abundant, for a public park. This land is largely covered with pine and oak, and lies along the river bank and the shore of a deep cove. One part of it is laid out for a playground for children.

The city of Newton has also large reservations along the banks of the Charles, which it has taken, partly in conjunction with the town of Brookline, as a protection against contamination of its water supply. These reservations are near and above the pumping station, extending from the station to the great bay, where the river widens into a respectable lake. The banks on each side for about three miles are thus saved to the public, and those on one shore for a mile and a quarter more, making in all over seven miles of river front under municipal control. The territory thus reserved comprises some 900 acres.

It will be seen that the work of saving the banks of the stream in this region has already begun in earnest. A good beginning has been made on the section between Newton's northern line and Newton Lower Falls, and the caps should be filled in so that an unbroken drive could be constructed along the banks of this very beautiful stretch of stream, with its hills, meadows and forests.

A Protestant on Satelli.

Archbishop Satelli's most important errand has been to settle the heated controversies raging about the school question. He has communicated to the Catholic archbishops an eminently wise and reasonable pronouncement. It distinctly acknowledges the educational functions of the state and approves the American public schools. In practical effect this letter makes it permissible for Catholic parents to act upon their own judgment in selecting schools for their children. It merely insists that the parents and priests should see that Catholic children have regular religious instruction outside of school hours if they attend public schools. The "Faribault plan" is fully sanctioned as an alternative. In cases where parochial schools of good quality as the public schools can be afforded, and where local circumstances make it appear that the public schools are anti-Catholic in their influence and teaching, the separate system is advised.

The archbishop has spoken with full authority. It is a great victory for Archbishop Ireland and the patriotic American wing of the church. Pope Leo and his advisers have evidently mastered the real situation in the United States. The holy see has intervened in favor of American Catholic parents, who can no longer be restrained from sending their children to the public schools. The Catholic church will be stronger by far when, in the spirit of Archbishop Satelli's statesmanlike address, it accepts the institutions of this country.—W. T. Stead in Review of Reviews.

Cremation In This Country.

It is not every day that there are five cases of cremation at Fresh Pond, but the bodies of four men and one woman were reduced to ashes in the furnace there on Tuesday. The revival of the ancient practice of cremation in our times is a curious thing. We have not yet seen the last year's reports of the several crematories in the country, but we believe that over 100 dead persons were consumed in them during the year.

Nearly all of these persons, with the exception of the victims of cholera, who were cremated in our bay last autumn, had left orders or had expressed a desire that their bodies should be thus disposed of. The most of them had been agnostics or atheists, and a few of them Theosophists. It is not to be supposed that any of them, leaving out the cholera stricken, had been believers in the doctrine of the resurrection of the body at the day of judgment, though of course cremation could not interfere with any design of the Almighty.

We know of two crematories in England, and there are others in several of the countries of continental Europe. Should the cholera break out in England this year it is probable that a number of the municipalities will, in accordance with advice given by their health authorities, follow the example set by the New York quarantine commission last autumn and cremate the victims of the dreaded and infectious disease.—New York Sun.

President Harrison's Plans.

It is the present intention of President Harrison to leave Washington for his home in Indianapolis very shortly after the inauguration of President Cleveland. The oath of office is administered to the president at the capitol at noon, after which the new chief executive delivers his inaugural address from the east front of the capitol building. General Harrison intends to leave Washington on the Pennsylvania limited express, which departs at 1:10 p. m., and to stop over Sunday at Pittsburg, where he will be due about 9 o'clock Saturday night. He will arrive at Indianapolis about noon on March 6. He may change this programme, but he does not expect to do so at this time, barring accident.

It was the original intention of President Harrison upon his retirement from office to linger in Washington over Sunday and to arrive at Indianapolis during the early part of the succeeding week. But he is anxious to return to his old home now that he sees the beginning of the end, and having nothing of particular interest to detain him here he has determined to take his leave of the national capital within an hour or two after the inauguration of his successor.—Cor. Baltimore American.

England's Vital Statistics.

The slow machinery of the English government has just turned out the report of vital statistics in 1891. It appears that the steady decline in the number of early marriages which began in 1874 still continues. In the latter year 84 in 1,000 bridegrooms and 227 in 1,000 brides were under 21. In 1891 only 59 men and 190 women in 1,000 married under age. The old fact also appears that the proportion of Jews in the population of England has more than doubled in 20 years, without counting immigration. This extraordinary fecundity is quite unmatched by any other class in the population.—Charleston News and Courier.

A Knife on Its Travels.

A huge knife, said to be over 100 years old and resembling an ancient bay cutter, was presented to the postmaster at Bangor, Me., just after the election. It was labeled "Adlai's Ax." Across the blade in black letters were the words, "The melancholy days have come." This was a grim joke to play on a Republican postmaster, but he concluded to make the best of it. He tagged it and started it on a journey across the continent. At last accounts it was at Marquette, Mich., all covered with tags and the comment, each messenger had added as the Democratic guillotine passed over his route.—Exchange.

Chinese Tea.

Philip S. Watkins of a London tea firm is making a business tour of the world and at present is in this city. His firm is one of the oldest and richest tea firms in the world's metropolis, the head of it for many years having been the millionaire Baronet Sir Richard Peck. Mr. Watkins is an old and trusted member of the house and has been selected for many years to conduct negotiations with the principal Chinese and Indian tea growers who control the markets of Canton and Calcutta.

"It is our rule," explained Mr. Watkins, "to visit the best plantations and arrange for the purchase of the new season's crop while it is yet growing. It takes considerable experience to be able to judge of the probable quality of a crop during its early stages, as the tea plant is subject to so many vicissitudes before picking. If the crop does not come up to expectations, we are often losers, but the usual practice is to bargain for the first offer, for which privilege of course we pay a premium. The China tea, however, does not rule the market as it did before India and Ceylon discovered the fact that they could grow several kinds as well as their Celestial neighbors."

"All the best sorts, however, are still grown in China. Gunpowder, Hyson and all the high class green teas can be produced nowhere else. The very highest quality of the first named seldom leaves the land of its growth, the Chinese connoisseurs forming a ring which keeps it for the home market."—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Black Jack Inn.

A few days ago the ancient "hostelry" familiar to readers of Dickens as the "Black Jack," in Portsmouth street, Clare Market, closed its doors forever, as the entire block of buildings surrounding it is about to be demolished. The "Black Jack" is the house to which Sam Weller escorted his master when that gentleman was in search of Lowton, Mr. Perker's clerk, on which occasion Mr. Pickwick heard the story of the "Queer Client," related by the mysterious lawyer's clerk.

The "Black Jack" has for many years been a veritable mecca to the medical students who have successfully braved the terrors of the examination room, for it was customary for them to adjourn to its hospitable bar and duly inscribe the names of the fortunate medics in a register kept in the house for that special purpose. Among the signatures to be seen are those of James Paget and Andrew Clarke, together with many others who have since attained celebrity. The death of the "Black Jack" adds one more to the ghostly taverns which have abounded in the immediate vicinity. The "Spotted Dog," the "White Lion" of Jack Sheppard notoriety, the "Ball's Head," where Hogarth met his brother artists, and the "Spiller's Head," the Savage club of those days, all stood within a few yards.—London News.

Dunning by Postal Card.

There is a very general impression among merchants and others who are particularly interested in the subject that it is a criminal offense under United States laws to mail a dunning letter written on a postal card. A person in this neighborhood wrote to the first assistant postmaster general, asking for information, and received a reply giving the decision of Judge Thayer, Dec. 14, 1889, on the wording of a postal card that was mailable and one that was not. The mailable one read: "Please call and settle account, which is long past due, and for which our collector has called several times, and oblige." The unmailable one reads: "You owe me $1.80. We have called several times for same. If not paid at once, we shall place with our law agency for collection."

The last sentence, it is stated, ruled out this communication. Postal cards are not mailable if they contain language of "a threatening character," and it is a very serious threat to the average man to tell him that you are going to sue him. There is no law, however, to prevent you from putting an X on your card to let your debtor understand that you are really cross with him.—Ithaca Journal.

Washington expired of pneumonia, John Adams of natural decline, Thomas Jefferson of chronic diarrhea, James Madison and James Monroe of natural decline, John Quincy Adams of paralysis, Andrew Jackson of consumption, Martin Van Buren of asthmatic catarrh, William H. Harrison of pleurisy, John Tyler of a bilious attack, James K. Polk of chronic diarrhea, Zachary Taylor of bilious fever, Millard Fillmore of natural decline, Franklin Pierce of inflammation of the stomach, James Buchanan of rheumatic gout, Abraham Lincoln assassinated, Andrew Johnson paralysis, Ulysses S. Grant cancer, James A. Garfield assassinated, Chester A. Arthur Bright's disease. Mr. Hayes was one of the three Methodists to become president, Johnson and Grant being the other two.—Columbus Journal.

THE TENURE OF OFFICE BILL.

A good deal of opposition has been stirred up by the proposed change in the tenure of office of the heads of the city departments, and a writer in the Boston Herald describes at some length the evils that would follow such a change, in making the offices a political prize to be contended for at every election. Evidently this part of the proposed change will meet with strong opposition, and the Newton Civil Service Reform Association, besides many citizens outside of that body, will enter a strong protest.

There seems to be no opposition to changing the tenure of office of the members of the various commissions, and if this was all that is aimed at by the resolution passed by the city council, there would be no opposition. There has been a feeling for some time that more frequent changes would not be an injury to the commissions.

It is argued by the friends of the change that the annual election of the city clerk, auditor and treasurer works all right, and that those officials are retained year after year without a thought of a change and without any of the evil effects which theorists say attend annual elections. Those officials do not take part in politics, or lobby for their place with new members, and are practically as independent and as secure as the City Marshal, or the Chief of the Fire Department. It is also urged that the thought of the annual election has an inspiring effect, upon all officials, and sort of spurs them up to their best work, and makes them courteous and obliging to all comers, and that this counterbalances all the fine theories advanced by civil service reformers.

This may be true, but the other heads of departments are very differently situated, and come into close opposition with more men, and hence would be more liable to lose their official heads if they tried to do their duty conscientiously, and herein lies the great danger of any change. So many men are under them that a concerted movement against them of those who were dissatisfied could be easily and secretly made at an election, and our city elections would be in danger of becoming a mere struggle for spoils, even without the majority of the voters being aware of what was being done. It is for this reason that the change is opposed, by all who have thought the matter over carefully, and that such a large and influential body of citizens will oppose the change. As the GRAPHIC said some weeks ago, the bill was loosely drawn, and probably the framers of it themselves were not aware of how radical a change they were introducing into Newton politics.

So far Newton has prided itself on the purity of its city government and the absence of any suspicion of the spoils system in its city elections, and this high character ought to be maintained.

THE NEWTON THAT IS TO BE.

It is startling when one considers what is to be the outcome of all the projected improvements of which we hear. New electric railways will connect Newton with Boston, others extending westward will link it with Wellesley and Natick and Framingham.

Elevated, or depressed tracks for the steam railway, or tracks moved to a new neighborhood will do away with grade crossings. New parks here and there, such as the Mt. Ida grant, the Charles River purchase, and others that may yet come, such as the driveway all around Crystal Lake, will forever prevent Newton's having the congested look of many other thriving cities.

Then the good work of the Improvement Societies already organized and new ones to be started will give a beautiful sidewalks, well kept and shady, and play grounds here and there.

The new Hunnewell Hill Society will look closely after the Charles River improvements, some of the members being fully convinced that the day is near when the river, instead of being a nuisance, can be made a picturesque part of the city and add to its healthfulness.

To say nothing of the many new buildings which are likely to be put up soon in all parts of the city, there will be a fine railway station at Newton when the question of the tracks is settled, and possibly a new station for Hunnewell Hill.

Whoever lives here five or ten years will see great changes. The growth is likely to be very rapid, but happily under wise direction the increase in population will add to, rather than detract from the beauty of the city. It is not that a crowd is to scramble here for places to shelter them, but the new comers will be drawn by the beauty and comfort of the place and will fit in with the surroundings, that is, there is every probability that Newton will attract orderly and desirable persons, and that it will continue to be a city of homes, although the homes will be much more numerous.

THE BOSTON POST has made a courageous fight in favor of dollar gas and against the Addicks gas monopoly, and it looks as though it was going to succeed. Mayor Matthews has also taken a hand in the agitation and has just secured a point against the Bay State gas ring, by getting a contract from the Brookline gas company, to supply gas for public purposes for 70 cents per thousand and to private consumers for $1. The city of Boston is also to share equally in the net profits of the company after eight per cent. is paid on the actual investment. Boston has long been at the mercy of Addicks and his watered combinations, and if Addicks is not able to control the Boston board of aldermen, it looks as though the days of his monopoly were numbered. The recent history of the gas companies of Boston is one of plunder, gigantic stock watering, and deals, and the city has been helpless in the hands of a New Jersey corporation. Honest men will rejoice to see such a monopoly fail, and all those who have helped to defeat its extortion deserve honor from the people. The state ought to have a law to protect its citizens from the extortions of foreign corporations, whose capital is largely fictitious.

In another column will be found an extract from the annual report of the Newton Co-operative Bank, in which the President, Mr. Francis Dawson, calls attention to some of the benefits which have followed from this enterprise, and the large number who have availed themselves of it. The report itself will be of interest to all the shareholders, in particular, and to people in general who wish to make provision for the future. The co-operative banks are so safely managed and so protected by the laws of the commonwealth that they furnish an incentive to saving, and they also furnish a means of securing a home to people of limited incomes, which is one of their best features. The Newton bank deserves even a wider popularity than it now enjoys.

THE past week ought to have convinced the most sceptical as to the necessity of an ordinance for the cleaning of sidewalks. Wading through slush ankle deep, with here and there a dry stretch of concrete belonging to some humane and patriotic citizen, has been the general experience. A little labor in the middle of the day would have made all the sidewalks passable, and safe, but aldermen generally seem to have resolved to show the necessity of an ordinance by leaving their walks in as bad a condition as possible. If the opponents of the ordinance could in any way be compelled to patrol the sidewalks for an hour or two every day, their opposition would vanish.

It is interesting to note the activity that now prevails in the Episcopal parishes in this city. Only a short time ago St. Paul's, Newton Highlands, enlarged and improved the chapel. Trinity, Newton Centre, has just opened its new building. Next week the beautiful Church of the Messiah, Auburndale, will be opened. The following week the greatly improved St. Mary's, Newton Lower Falls, will be re-dedicated. After while the Redeemer, Chestnut Hill, will begin its rectory and Grace church Newton will build the Choir Guild Hall in memory of Bishop Brooks in the spring.

ALDERMAN THOMPSON'S resolution for a change in the tenure of office bill is being criticized on all sides, but there is one thing to be said in favor of the alderman, he believes in taking care of his Upper Falls constituents, and if any patronage escapes them he wants to know the reason why. With the watchful help of one of the city officials, however, there is very little that escapes.

Representative Estabrooks' Position.

To the Editor of the Graphic:
In your issue of the 17th February, I noticed a communication criticising the position I am said to have taken with reference to the sewer bill now before the legislature. I assume that you did not write this article, containing as it does false statements, while you have had ample opportunities to know my position in the matter. The statement that I opposed the bill is entirely false; on the contrary, in talking with members of the House Judiciary Committee, I have favored the passage of the bill. Now as to the fact that I commended Councilman Weed for "Manly stand" which he had taken. I did commend him because he had courage (by a simple statement of facts) to defend gentlemen who were not at the hearing, and not, because he favored or opposed the bill before the committee. In your issue of Feb. 24th, you have a letter signed Taxpayer, this being an echo from your issue of the 17th, I shall not consider it as calling for an answer.

Yours very truly,
E. J. H. ESTABROOKS.

John Thomas' Prayer in a Lighthouse.

John William Thomas, assistant keeper of the Wolf Trap Light station, which accumbent to the ice last week, says he had an experience calculated to quicken his wits and open his weather eye. Mr. Thomas was alone at the station, which is in 12 feet of water and three miles from the shore. It is not easy to appreciate the dreadful forebodings which filled his mind as day after day he watched the thickening ice, conscious as he was of the great peril which environed him, his distress signals unnoticed, with that vast field of ice expanding its mighty power against the piles and gathering additional strength every moment as it overlapped and piled up against the doomed structure.

To pray in such a crisis was a most natural thing to do, and pray he did, long and fervently, and he feels assured that his prayers were answered, for it was not very long before he descried in the distance the smoke of a steamer battling with the ice. Slowly she proceeded along until, getting abreast of the station, she was stopped by the thick ice. Although the steamer was some half mile out toward the ship channel, the navy keeper determined to abandon the station to its impending fate and make the effort to reach her. Getting upon the untrod ice he proceeded toward her, waving his hat to attract the attention of those on board. When within hailing distance, he cried out lustily to the officer in command, and was told to come aboard, which he did in safety. On leaving the steamer higher up the bay for the shore he broke through the ice in eight feet of water and came near being drowned.—Cor. Washington Post.

A Salt Lake in Africa.

The French government has just sold to Mr. Chevreux the right to refine and export salt from Lake Assal, one of the most remarkable sheets of water in the world. The lake is in the district of Obok, East Africa, only a few miles from the head of the bay of Tadjoorah. The gentleman who has purchased the concession agrees to pay into the colonial office the sum of $10,000 a year, and, during the 50 years that he is to have the exclusive right to export salt from Lake Assal, the annual product exceeds 50,000 tons. He is to pay a tax of 20 cents for every ton in excess. The government will designate a part of the lake where the natives may secure all the salt they want without tax or hindrance. All along the edge of this little lake, which comprises only 16 square miles, is a bed of nearly pure salt about a foot in thickness.

The water of the lake is so surcharged with salt that it is impossible to sink in it. The bottom is apparently a bed of solid salt. The heavy waters lave the bases of jagged and precipitous mountains which descend to the edge of the lake, making it almost impossible to travel around it. Mr. Chevreux will probably carry on his work by floating machinery on the lake and dredging in the salt bed at its bottom, though on the west side of the lake an enormous quantity of salt is in sight when the lake is at its lowest level.—New York Sun.

An English Note on Phillips Brooks.

Those in England who were accustomed to look forward to Phillips Brooks' too rare appearance in London pulpits as to a sort of golden opportunity for new thought and fresh inspiration will sympathize deeply with American Christians who have suffered this great bereavement. They will forget the foolish and undignified controversy which was associated with his name when the Cowley Fathers, in alarm at what they thought to be latitudinarianism, withdrew one of their own number from fellowship with him. And they will remember only the strength, purity and nobleness of his teaching, his scholarly and chastened eloquence, his deep insight into character, and his extraordinary power of lifting up every subject he discussed into a higher region than that of theological discussion—the region in which conscience and the voice of God are clearly audible, in which the small interests of life seem smaller and the great ones greater, because both are seen in the light of dearly bought spiritual experience, of profound faith and of unselfish hope.—London Spectator.

A Well Traveled Letter.

A Rockville man about nine months ago received a letter from his brother, employed on a steamship running out of Bombay, India, asking him to send a United States $5 gold piece, which he wanted to wear as a watch charm. He obtained the coin, inclosed it between two pieces of heavy cardboard, put it in a letter and registered it. The letter started on its way, and Friday it returned to the Rockville office. The envelope presented a remarkable appearance and is a great curiosity, having traveled over 50,000 miles. The letter went to the dead letter office at Bombay, and the coin had disappeared, having probably worn its way out of the letter.

The letter went to various points in the east, as well as England and the continent, in search of the person to whom it was addressed. Every stoppage is registered on the letter, which is covered with marks and writings in all colors. The letter was returned by Postmaster Randall to the man who sent it, and although the coin is missing he considers the letter of more value than when he sent it.—Norwich Bulletin.

Reading the Thermometer.

A bellboy at the St. Nicholas, who will one day make his mark as a natural wit if his precociousness is not dimmed by an collegiate education, made a funny report to Clerk Harry Clark one morning last week. A guest of the house on the morning in question came down to the office, and remarking to Clark that the water meter was very cold asked what the thermometer indicated. Calling up the bellboy, Clark requested him to go out and see what the thermometer indicated, if he could read the same. Going out, he quickly returned, and when asked how cold it was quickly replied that it was "one inch below freezing." Clark fell over a chair, and the patron of the house had a fit.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Newspaper Workers in Chicago.

Some time ago we took occasion to warn newspaper writers against the folly of coming to Chicago in the hope of finding employment here. We regret that the warning has been neglected by very many. This city has been overrun for several months by reporters (both men and women) vainly seeking work. The Chicago newspapers have for two years been getting ready for the World's fair season, and their several departments are filled with competent men. Therefore others who come to Chicago now in the expectation of securing employment are bound to be disappointed; there are no places to be had; in every newspaper office at the present time applicants are standing about 12 deep in the outer chamber, with never so much as the prospect of a possibility to encourage them.

Many of these people are suffering from want of money. They left employment elsewhere to rush to this city of the World's fair, where they fancied their services would be snapped at. Most of these unfortunates will have to walk out of town or take to driving street cars for a means of subsistence.

With a view to averting further trouble we ask our newspaper friends elsewhere to disseminate assiduously the information that newspaper work is not to be had in Chicago; that every place is filled here; that already we have with us an army of unemployed reporters, and that every newspaper writer who comes to Chicago with a view to getting work is pretty sure to have nothing but his trouble for his pains.—Chicago News-Record.

Mountainous Waves.

The daily papers all recorded the fact that the steamship Majestic, on her eastward trip, caught sea that demolished her crew's nest lookout, and that the Teutonic, which caught the same gale coming west, had one sea which carried her forward port lifeboat as it went over the rail. But none of the daily papers took the trouble to mention just how the crew's nest is situated on these ships, and consequently how high that sea was.

Inquiry by a Marine Journal representative discovered that, while in men-of-war and many other ships the custom is to have the crew's nest in the foretop or a trifle above, the White Star ships have it at an altitude of 25 feet above the main deck on the foremast, reached by a little iron ladder from the forward hurricane deck. In such a ship as the Majestic or Teutonic the height of the main deck at the foremast is about 40 feet above the level of the sea, which would make the height of the wave that carried away the crew's nest in this instance about 70 feet. This is a pretty big roller for the north Atlantic, but in other parts of the ocean such waves are often encountered in a storm.

Supposing the ship to have been in a trough of the sea at the time this wave swept her, the mean height of the wave might be calculated as not greater than 40 feet, but it was certainly a body of water nearly 70 feet high from where the ship floated.—Marine Journal.

The Durell Opera Season.

The season of grand English opera at the Boston Theatre the week beginning March 13, by the Lillian Durell operatic organization, promises to take great prominence in the coming events in local musical circles.

The week's repertoire will include Gounod's "Faust," Ambrose Thomas' "Mignon," and Balfe's "Bohemian Girl." Miss Durell making her first appearance as Marguerite, and repeating her great impersonation of the title role "Mignon" which she will again display her phenomenal vocal gifts by introducing a high G in her Aria in the second act.

Miss Durell will be supported by Mme. Louise Natalie, and Miss Luella Wagner, soprano; Mme. Lizzie MacNichol-Vetta, Miss May Bosley, and Miss Gertrude Libby, contralto; Mr. Payne Clark, Mr. J. C. Bartlett, and Mr. John Lloyd, Tenors; and Mr. G. Campanari, Mr. W. H. Clark, Dr. G. R. B. Clark, Mr. Charles Garney, and Mr. W. H. Dodd, baritone and basses. The chorus will number 40 selected voices, and the Orchestra 40 musicians, all under Mr. S. Behrens as Musical Director, and Mr. Chas. F. Sauer as Stage Director. The sale of seats opens Tuesday, March 7, at 9 A. M.

—There will be a regular meeting of the G. L. U. on Tuesday evening, March 7th, at which "The only young man in town" will be presented. Musical and literary selections will be given.

—The regular meeting of the G. L. U. will be held Tuesday evening, March 7th, in the vestry of the Universalist church, and an amusing farce, will be presented entitled "The Only Young Man in Town."

—Mr. John Beal ran a splinter from an orange box into his hand a few days ago inflicting an ugly wound. Blood poisoning has since resulted, and the arm is now somewhat affected. Dr. Stoddard has charge of the case.

—The regular Monthly Choral Vesper service was held in the Central church Sunday evening, and was attended by a large congregation. The choir rendered several selections, and were assisted by Miss Emma Emerson, soprano, Miss Thonson, contralto and Mr. A. R. Frank, bass, who also gave solo renditions.

—Tuesday afternoon a large and enthusiastic audience listened to Mr. Edwin D. Mead's scholarly historical paper "Our Debt to Holland." Many specially invited guests were present in response to the Guild's invitation. Tuesday, March 7th, the midwinter social entertainment of the Guild will be held at the Methodist vestry.

—The Universalist church, Monday evening, was completely filled to overflowing. Extra seats being brought in to accommodate the people, who gathered to listen to a most satisfactory concert given by the Tufts Glee, Mandolin, and Guitar club, assisted by Mr. Clark, reader. All the proceeds were well given, and numerous encores were responded to.

—Mrs. Corey, the well known Spiritualist held a reception Monday afternoon at her home on Brookside avenue, it being the fifth anniversary of her work. Nearly 200 guests were in attendance from Newton and Providence and large numbers from Newton, West Newton and Newtonville. She was also the recipient of numerous gifts, and many pretty floral offerings.

—John Ornelette, a resident of this place, died suddenly in Boston last Friday morning. He was taken ill in a store on Federal street and soon sank into an unconscious state. He was taken to Station 1 and attended by Dr. Collins, but was beyond the hope of medical skill, expiring soon after his arrival at the station. Heart failure is said to be the cause of his death. The body was taken in charge by relatives and brought to this city for interment.

—The Carleton estate, on the corner of Walnut street and Homer street, has been bought by D. S. Bell. This property lies between the two thoroughfares named, and the shores of Bullock's pond, which it skirts for some distance. It is rolling and pretty well covered with trees, and is a large house. It has been proposed that the city of Newton secure this land for a park, lying as it does along the shores of the pond, which is bordered on a large part of the other side by Walnut street, with Mill street on the north.

—The Orpheus Orchestra Society gave a musicale at the residence of Mr. Estes, Watertown street, Tuesday evening. The musicians comprise, Ella M. Holt, pianist; Charles Baugher, first violin; Herbert C. Estes and Robert Cutler, second violins; A. S. N. Estes, flute; Frank T. Estes, cornet; E. C. Butler, trombone. Solo numbers were rendered by Miss Holt, Messrs. F. E. and A. N. Estes, Mr. Baugher and Mr. Butler. The orchestra selections included the "Boston Press Club March," "La Gitana" waltz and "The Prettiest Little Song of All."

—Not only are the big folks interested in the erection of the statue to Frida Brooks but the Boston Herald it seems had a visit last week from a little chap of 7 years of age, who, hearing his father and mother talking about the late bishop's good characteristics, caught the inspiration of the words, and one day little Chester H. Griswold of this place started out on his own account to collect some dollars toward the tribute fund. At first he met with rebuffs, and one day when a lady had said to him, "Well, I think Phillips Brooks will have a statue whether you get any money or not," he came home broken hearted. Reassured that his small amount would not be rejected by the committee, he started once more, and Saturday brought to the Herald the sum of $15, all of which he had solicited from friends. Chester is the son of Mr. Alexander Griswold, who is engaged in the carriage and harness business in West Newton. He is called the "boy orator," having recited in public upon many occasions. This was not his first attempt in helping to honor the memory of the dead, as when the memorial to Mrs. Vincent of the Boston Museum was talked of, he pursued a similar course, and handed in his mite.

—The Tufts College Glee, Mandolin and Guitar Club gave a very fine concert in the Universalist church Monday evening. The program rendered was very extensive and they were obliged to respond to many encores. The opening number was by the Glee Club entitled, "Vocal Waltz." The "Merry Princess March" by the Mandolin Club was heartily applauded. Mr. W. S. Small's carillon solo, "Past and Future," was finely rendered. The Glee Club then followed with a humorous song, "Charlie's Delight," that will help preserve the memory of Charles Tufts, founder of the college. "The Dragon" rendered by Mr. J. P. Mallett, and the Glee Club, made a great deal of fun. Then followed a folk song by the Mandolin Club and "Swedish Folk Song" by the Glee singers. This was one of the finest numbers. "The Versatile Baby" came next and nothing less than three encores would satisfy the audience. "Barcarolle" by the Mandolin Club was very finely given and "Good Night, Farewell" finished the program and was sung with great depth of feeling. One feature of the concert was the recitations of Mr. C. D. Clark. His recitations showed remarkable ability and dramatic power, with a rich range of subjects. The church was crowded. Every seat was taken and all went away delighted.

WEST NEWTON

—Pianos rented and tuned, Farley, Newton.

—Mr. Dennen lost a valuable dog, Tuesday, it having been poisoned by some one.

—Mr. B. L. White has rented his new house on Forest avenue to Mr. Wood of Boston.

—Harry Jefferson, who has been seriously ill, is convalescing rapidly and was able to get out this week.

—The officers of Lodge 26, A. O. U. W. of Waltham instituted John Elliot lodge 149 of this place last Friday evening.

—A progressive whist party at the residence of Mr. C. E. Gibson, Alpine street, brought out a large social gathering, Tuesday evening.

—Mr. Arthur R. Coe, who has not been in good health for some months, is at the Cottage Hospital recovering from the effects of an operation.

—Rev. Mr. Jaynes, by special request, repeated the memorial sermon he preached on Bishop Brooks, last Sunday evening, to a large congregation.

—Mr. Elijah A. Wood has been presented with an elegant past grand's jewel, a device in silver and gold with pearl and emerald ornaments. It is the gift of Tremont lodge, I. O. O. F.

—Superintendent Chas. W. Ross and City Engineer A. F. Noyes are among the charter members of the Mass. Highway Association, formed for the improvement of Massachusetts roads.

—The Baptist Sunday school will hold its annual temperance concert next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Interesting exercises have been arranged by the ladies of the W. C. T. U. who are connected with the school.

—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rideout Beard, who were married at the Vendome two weeks ago, and who have been in New York city ever since, are to sail for Europe, and will return to their future home, the Woodlands, Kentworth, England.

—Mrs. Brigham of Winthrop street slipped on an icy sidewalk, Wednesday evening, falling down and cutting her head. She was rendered unconscious from the force of the blow, but quickly recovered and was taken to her home.

—Rev. Mr. McDaniel, late pastor of the Unitarian church in San Diego, was invited by the Woman's Alliance Wednesday p. m. to speak on the work of that church. Members of other branches in the vicinity were also invited, and after the lecture tea was served and a pleasant social hour enjoyed.

—Temple street seems to carry out well the dignity which its name implies. It has its little temple to Minerva; and upon it reside two Kings and a Prince, representing ancient superiority, while the modern or American idea of happiness is represented by a railroad president and a retired banker. From it runs Prince street and at the end of these two streets live the three wise men. Its Ames are high, and there is but one Lowe character throughout its extent from Towne to the Woods.

—Mr. Yontcheff, the Bulgarian gentleman, who recently lectured in this place, was present at the Sunday school of the Unitarian church last Sunday and addressed the children, who had been so interested in bringing him here, on the advantages of the Sunday school. He told them he had seen great sights and works of art in the old countries, but nothing impressed him so much as the Sunday schools he found scattered all over this country and their worth to the children of this generation.

—The contest over the will of Alvin Brightman in the Middlesex probate court at East Cambridge claimed the attention of Judge Brooks, Monday. The hearing was of short duration, being adjourned until the morning of March 7. Ex-Gov. Long represented the will and the widow, while Morse & Lincoln represented the daughter, Mrs. Leland, and Melvin O. Adams, Henry Houghton, the son. Beside these all the legatees were represented by counsel. The time at the hearing was occupied by the presentation of various testimony in support of the will.

—Church of the Messiah. The Rev. H. U. Munro, rector of the St. Mary's, Lower Falls, will preach this evening at 7.45. Services on Sunday will be held for the first time at 9.30. Morning prayers and Holy Communion at 10.45. The Rev. William A. Ackley, rector of St. Paul's by the sea, Narragansett Pier, R. I., will preach at this service. There will be a Litany Service with sermon at 6.30. Dalhousie Lodge, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, will attend this service by special invitation of the rector. The Rev. and Most Worshipful William N. Ackley, Past Grand Master of Free and Accepted Masons for the State of Rhode Island, will preach at the service, held at the Building upon a special invitation. Evening prayer and sermon at 7.30. Sunday school at 9. The Rev. Walter R. Breed, rector of Trinity church, Concord, will preach on Tuesday evening. Evening prayer at 8 o'clock on Wednesday and Thursday. The public is very cordially invited to the services.

—At the complimentary concert tendered the Odd Fellows Quartet Tuesday evening, City Hall was well filled with a very enthusiastic audience despite the inclement weather. Madam Barutis, who appeared at the recent Good Templar concert, was heartily received by the audience. Both her selections, "Fleeting Days" and "The Heart is Young" were enthusiastically received. Mrs. Hartley of London, England, possesses a remarkable contralto voice. Her tones throughout are exceptionally pure. The first selection, "Sunshine and Rain," was delightfully rendered and the second number, "Call of the Heart," particularly pleasing as was demonstrated by the enthusiastic encore. Musical Boston is to be congratulated on the accession of so great an artist from abroad. Mr. Frank J. Keenan, for twelve years with the Barry & Pary Company, made his first appearance in this city. His selection, "The T and the Soldier," "The Face on the Floor," evidenced his great dramatic power. Both numbers were encores, the latter receiving a double one. Mr. Leo Schultz delighted the audience with his admirable playing on the cello. Miss Louise Townbridge officiated as accompanist and performed her arduous duties in a very creditable manner. The closing numbers by the quartet were very nicely rendered and made a very pleasant finale for an exceptionally fine program.

—The fourteenth annual meeting of the Red Bank Company was held in the chapel of the Congregational church, on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 26th. Promptly at three o'clock the children began to arrive and from that time on the treasurer and his assistants were kept busy counting the money brought in the little red banks and recording the amounts, while upstairs in the chapel fully two hundred children, under an efficient board of directors, spent the afternoon in playing games of all sorts and descriptions. At five o'clock there was a short business meeting, the reading of the secretary's report and the election of officers for the ensuing year, who are as follows: Pres., Mrs. H. J. Patrick; Sec., Bertha S. Johnson; Treas., Arthur L.

Patrick; Directors, Miss Emma Upham, chairman, and the Misses Gusie Patrick, Gertrude Townbridge, Jennie Bailey, Bertha Davis, Marion Hunter and Ruth Eager. A dividend of $72.36 was then announced and this sum has since been increased to $76.00, an amount which speaks well for the enthusiasm of the young stockholders. The largest deposits made by the old shareholders, whose bank contained $8.01, Raymond Barker, $4.48, and Ethel Phillips, $4.06. Miss Sheldon then gave an interesting account of the school at Adabazar, Turkey, and of the four girls toward whose education the Red Bank money is contributed. After the supper, which seemed to be fully appreciated, by the way, an entertainment was provided which proved as pleasing to the older lookers-on as to the children themselves. The opera of the "four and twenty black birds" was especially amusing, for "when the pie was opened" several of the most marvelous species of black birds appeared and sung with notes as sweeter than those with which that feathered songster is ordinarily credited. A few recitations, a song by Master Harold Sheppard and other recitations in the style of the fairies and their queen teach a lesson of contentment to a dissatisfied family formed a very pleasing ending to a very happy afternoon. The snow was falling fast and the children soon scattered to their homes, and by half past seven o'clock the chapel was empty and the Red Bank meeting was over.

AUBURDALE.

—Thorn's Amber Lotion for chapped hands.

—Mr. W. P. Thorn and family spent Sunday in Lawrence with friends.

—The Review Club will meet with Mrs. N. W. Farley Tuesday a. m., March 7th.

—Joseph Cook leaves town this week for Almont Springs, Fla., in search of better waters.

—In another column will be found a communication concerning the incandescent light service, which will interest many.

—There will be no service in the Methodist church on Sunday morning, but Sunday school will be held as usual at twelve o'clock.

—There are letters at the postoffice for Mrs. C. S. Anthony, Mr. Wm. W. Brown, Mrs. McCarthy, Riverside, Susan Owens, Mrs. Mary Ranney, Manager of Theatre.

—The wedding of Miss Anna Coffin of Auburndale and Mr. Edward C. Elms of Newton will take place in June. Miss Coffin has just returned from visiting friends at Newburyport.

—One of Lee's suppers was enjoyed at the Woodland Park Hotel, Wednesday evening, by Messrs. Wm. Scribner, Dennis O'Donnell and a few other friends. The supper was the outcome of a wager.

—The officers of Auburn Assembly, R. S. C. F., were installed Monday evening by Past Ruler, Bernard Early. After the exercises were concluded the members and invited friends sat down to an excellent banquet prepared by Caterer James of Waltham.

—Mr. B. F. Field, a prominent resident of Weston, died Tuesday afternoon at his home in that town. Deceased was 65 years of age and was prominently connected with the Boston Ice Co. The funeral occurred Thursday afternoon and the interment was at Mt. Auburn.

—The Auburndale Fraternal Benefit Association met Wednesday evening and elected the following officers for the current year: Geo. H. Bourne, president; Chas. A. Miner, treasurer; James H. Doliver, secretary; directors, Wm. Bourne, J. H. Doliver, W. F. Hadlock, J. A. Miner, G. E. Mann, Alfred Brush, F. E. Elwell.

—Union Gospel meetings, under the leadership of Rev. E. Davidson, will be held in the Methodist and Congregational churches, commencing March 5, and continuing two or three weeks. The meetings on Sunday will be at 10.30 a. m., 4.00 and 7.00 p. m. On each week-day except Saturday there will be meetings at 4.00 and 7.30 p. m. All afternoon meetings will be held at the Methodist church; all others at the Congregational church.

—There was a very lively time on Auburn bridge about six o'clock Monday afternoon when Officer Quilty arrested Frank Benson. The officer was obliged to call for help and three men were hardly able to control the intoxicated man. A large crowd gathered and witnessed the tussle until the patrol arrived from the central station. In the end the man was taken to the police house and a warrant was issued for his arrest. He was fined for assault on an officer and disturbance and in default was committed for 60 days.

—It has been decided to give an Assembly under the auspices of the Newton Boat club at Newton, on Wednesday evening, March 15. The tickets will be limited, and will admit lady and gentleman, and can be obtained of the following committee: Walter T. Lawson, floor director; aids, Carl William A. Hall, Herbert S. Potter, Fred P. Harvey, Arthur W. Vose, Francis J. Burrage, Chas. W. Cole or Louis S. Drake, Sec. Com. 30 Central street. The Colliery Collation will be served by Newton club caterers. The assembly will be matronized by prominent ladies.

—Extract from City Ordinances. "No person shall set up, use or drive any hackney carriage for the conveyance of persons for hire upon the streets of this city without a license for such carriage from the mayor and aldermen. The mayor and aldermen may grant such licenses to suitable persons and revoke the same at their discretion. No owner, driver, or person having charge of a hackney carriage shall demand or receive a higher rate of fare than that established by the mayor and aldermen, or shall arrogantly refuse to carry passengers from any place to any place within the city."

—An excellent concert was given on Wednesday evening at the new chapel of the Congregational church, and the attendance was quite large. A chorus of thirty-five voices, under the direction of Mr. Chas. H. Johnson, to the great pleasure of the audience; Mr. Fred Plummer, in a violin solo with piano accompaniment by Miss Nellie Plummer, was well received and a quartet, composed of Messrs. H. W. Cole, Geo. Brown, Chas. Brown and W. W. N. Cole gave excellent satisfaction. Miss Laura Coffin in her solo, "Hie thee, Shallop," with accompaniment by the male quartet was especially fine and created much enthusiasm. A good sum was realized for the chapel furnishings.

—Rev. H. A. Hazen spoke before the Congregational ministers at Boston Monday upon the Congregational exhibit at the Columbian exposition. He urged the importance of more activity, as Chicago Congregationalists looked to Boston for greater interest in the matter. A committee, consisting of Rev. H. Hazen, Rev. McDaniel and Rev. Arthur Little, was appointed to draw up the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted: "Resolved, that we cordially approve of a Congregational exhibit at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago, and that it is peculiarly fitting that the descendants of the Pilgrims and Puritans should actively participate in such a display. We assure the committee of the national council of the hearty co-operation in any plans to this end which they find practicable, remembering that in their judgment at least $5000 will be required to meet the expenses." Dr. Hazen also spoke before the Congregational Club on the same subject Monday evening.

A Wall from Auburndale.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:
For over a year Auburndale citizens have had to put up with execrable service from the incandescent electric street lights, and although complaint after complaint has been made the lamps remain just as useless as ever. On Melrose street it is a rarity to see the incandescent light. On Rowe street the other night one resident remarked the unusual brilliancy of the lights which are so seldom lighted that the whole aspect of the surroundings is changed. On Hawthorne street they have not been lighted but three times in the past month. Alderman Plummer took a drive one night between two and three weeks ago through the streets in Auburndale supposed to be lighted with incandescent lights, and failed in his drive to find a single street lamp doing service. And this has been going on sometimes worse and sometimes better ever since. The electric was substituted for gas. This is not an enviable record for the Newton & Watertown Gas Light Company nor for a city government that writes. The incandescent at the depot are always in order and the houses wired for electricity are kept regularly supplied with the fluid, but a street 50 or 100 feet away with a dozen or more houses here who have tried to have the streets lighted by electricity and were refused because there was not sufficient power. Three or more of our storekeepers would have put in incandescents ere this if they could have got them. CITIZEN.

Lasell Notes.

Supt. W. T. Shepherd has gone to New York for a few days visit.

In the cooking class, Feb. 27th, dinner was prepared consisting of mock bisque soup, roast beef, franconia potatoes, spinach and snow pudding.

The Symphony concert, claimed its usual quota of Lasell girls on Saturday evening, notwithstanding the Library party in the gymnasium during the same evening.

Letters have been received from Professor Bragdan, written at Luxor, where he and Mrs. Bragdan were then awaiting the return of the party from a trip further up the Nile.

On Monday, Rev. Dr. Sterle took a party of students into the city to visit the State House. Under so competent and entertaining a chaperone as the doctor, the girls found the trip one of great enjoyment and instruction.

The course of lectures upon The Evidence of Christianity, delivered yearly at the Seminary to the Senior class by Rev. Chas. Parkhurst began last week, and closed on Wednesday last. These lectures dealt with the great question they discuss in a simple and lucid, yet logical and convincing way, and are highly appreciated by the students fortunate enough to hear them.

Monday evening was spent by the Astronomy class and their teacher, Miss Jackson, in the observatory of Boston University, taking observations thro' the big telescope, under the direction of the genial Professor of astronomy at the University, J. P. Cort. Among the celestial bodies viewed were Jupiter with his satellites, the nebulae in Orion, the moon, the cluster of stars in the sword-handle of Perseus and the Pleiades.

This library party, by the way, was a success, as all who participated agree, and the lookers-on as well. The young women were in costume, representing the titles of books. Among the best representations were in Darkest Africa, Black Beauty, The Brownies, "The Brownies" Book, Old Fashioned Girl, Old Maid's Paradise, Josiah Allen's Wife (with Josiah), Innocence Abroad, Familiar Quotations and Jack and Jill. The social festivities were fitly terminated by refreshments in the dining hall, where a bouquet of violets was presented to the young woman who had best represented her chosen title, Miss Medsker, as in Darkest Africa.

WABAN.

—Mr. and Mrs. Phillips have re-opened their home.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Childs made a short visit to Woburn, N. H., last week.

—Mr. Alexander Davidson is recuperating from the Indian river in Florida with Mr. Wm. Saville.

—Miss Emma Thmsby the noted oratorio soprano, and sister, were the guests of Mrs. L. K. Harlow, Friday of last week.

—Mr. Stronach, the courteous station agent of the B. & A. R. R., has been busy for a few hours to day repairing the snow-scraper in anticipation of a "spell of weather."

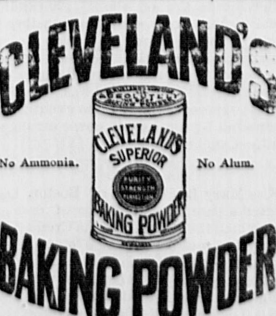

—Mr. L. K. Harlow and Louis Heynelle furnish some beautiful and artistic illustration for a dainty Phillips Brooks' memorial entitled "Brilliant from the writings of Bishop Phillips Brooks, just published by Hollisday, Bradshaw and Lunt."

We understand that the house on Chestnut street, now occupied by Mr. Louis H. Bacon, has been rented to Mr. Doliver of Doliver, Goodale & Co. of Boston. Mr. Bacon will soon remove to his new house on Spring street, so called, leading out of Chelsea street in a southerly direction at land, now or formerly belonging to Mary Kennedy, about 340 feet from the line of Chelsea street and 110 feet from land now or formerly from one Hall, thence in a nearly easterly direction at right angles with Spring street by land of said Kennedy, 100 feet, measured from the east line of said street, thence northerly parallel and 100 feet distant from the line of said Hadley 160 feet to Spring street, thence southerly by Spring street 40 feet to point of beginning. Containing 4000 square feet, more or less.

—Mr. Michael Cummings would do well to open a branch office of the Weather Bureau in this place. Whenever he has shovelled off the plank walk on Wind or Road street in winter, invariably a snow storm has set in within a few hours and covered up his entire work.

Eating for Strength.

"Food that 'tastes good' is digested more readily and assimilated more perfectly, so that we really derive more nourishment from it." So says the Boston Cook Book, and the statement is so sound and the language so well chosen that we really think it must have been written under the inspiration of a "Ham omelet" made with Ferris Famous Ham. Has cured others of that tired feeling "will cure you."

A pure cream of tartar powder. Used in the U. S. Army and by teachers of Cookery. Cleveland's is the standard, it never varies, it does the most work, the best work and is perfectly wholesome.

THE SILENT LAND.

Into the Silent Land!
 Ah! who shall lead us thither?
 Clouds in the evening sky more darkly gather,
 And shattered wrecks lie thickly on the strand.
 Who leads us with a gentle hand
 Thither, oh, thither,
 Into the Silent Land?
 Into the Silent Land!
 To you, ye boundless regions
 Of all perfection, tender morning visions
 Of beatitudes, the future peace and band.
 Who in life's battle firm doth stand,
 Shall bear hope's tender blossoms
 Into the Silent Land!
 O Land! O Land!
 For all the broken hearted,
 The mildest herald by our fate allotted Beckons, and with inverted torch doth stand
 To lead us with a gentle hand
 Into the land of the great departed.
 Into the Silent Land!
 —Every Other Saturday.

THE THREE SONS.

The house was to all appearances untenanted. There was not a sign of life visible from without, but in one of the magnificent rooms overlooking the Rue de Vannes sat three men anxiously awaiting the result of the consultation which was then taking place to know if there was the slightest hope not for the recovery, but for the prolongation of the sufferings of Gabrielle Anne Sophie, dowager Marquis de Guebranges, their mother.

The oldest gentleman, the marquis, was tall and thin. He might have been 30 years old, but his age was difficult to guess, his face being so utterly devoid of expression. His few remaining hairs did their best to disguise their scarcity, but in spite of their well meant efforts it was distinctly visible that this "glass of fashion" was bald. The marquis was a cold, heartless man, in whom none could feel the slightest confidence; he was egotistical to the last degree, with no superior intelligence to palliate his overwhelming selfishness.

The second son, Count Rene, was quite different. Full of life, with frank blue eyes that looked a man full in the face and a smile as winning and a nature as expansive as the marquis was reserved and repellent, he seemed to be of a different race, and his restless energy and keen intelligence had shocked the old marchioness and driven the late Marquis Hercule de Guebranges to the verge of distraction. "Rene is quite unlike the rest of the family," he often said, with a sigh. "I wonder from whom he inherits his disposition. Perhaps from your side of the house, marchioness: certainly not from mine."

The youngest son, the vicomte, was just 20, but his wrinkled face and bent figure made him look much older. He was one of those old young men whose so frequently met nowadays and so painful to see, who appear to be a growth peculiar to this end of the century.

At last the door opened, and the men of science stepped softly across the threshold. The famous specialists who had been summoned at the last moment began a long account of the case couched in terms which, though doubtless intelligible to his colleagues, conveyed no meaning at all to the young men. At last he came to the point, and with trembling voice and fearful eyes told them to prepare for the worst. The old lady was sinking rapidly. Then the physicians withdrew, and the brothers heard the old doctor invite his comrades to the theater in a voice which did not tremble, and, to judge by his cheerful tones, the tears were very far from his eyes indeed.

"Old hypocrite!" thought Count Rene. The others thought nothing at all. The three sons entered the darkened room and stood around the bedside of the dying woman.

The marquis asked her if she was suffering. She shook her head. There she lay, just alive, and nothing more. She seemed to realize what a slender hold she had upon life and to try and economize her little remaining breath, for she did not utter a word, and the blue eyes, so like her second son's, gazed wistfully upon her children, and two tears—the last she would ever shed—rolled slowly down her withered cheeks.

What a life hers had been! Full of the pomp and vanities of this world, brilliant and enviable without, but in reality one long martyrdom. She thought of all she had endured for her boys' sake, of the insults, of the neglect, even brutality of the husband of her youth, and she wondered as she lay there gasping her life away if half her punishment for her sins had not been meted out to her on earth. Instinctively, in this supreme moment, she turned to Rene, for he was the only one of her sons who had ever shown her any real affection, and now she remembered how she had always curbed his exuberant nature and received his caresses coldly enough and sent him away many a time with something very like tears in those bright blue eyes. She tried to extend her hand to him, but her strength failed her, and the hand fell wearily to her side.

"Do you know us, mother?" asked the marquis. A low hissing sound issued from her lips, and the men leaned over her to catch, if possible, the words she was trying hard to frame.

The vicomte stifled a cough with his handkerchief. The marquis listened attentively, but on these two faces there was no sign of emotion. They might have been at the bedside of the merest acquaintance, while Rene, poor fellow, felt a lump rise in his throat and the tears stream down his cheeks. This woman was his mother, and she was dying.

"My sons," gasped the woman. "I know that I am dying, and before I go to my last account I have a confession to make. Don't weep, Rene; keep your tears for a better woman. God knows what you will think of me when you know all. I have been an unfaithful wife, and one of you has no right to the name he bears. It is—it is"—Here the voice died away, and she sank back among her pillows.

It was over, and one more soul had gone into the presence of its Maker. The brothers retired softly, and once in the adjoining room looked at each other apart. "Which could it be?" At last the marquis spoke with more emotion than he had ever shown in the whole course of his self absorbed life.

"Death has cut short the painful revelation which has startled us all so terribly, and I am sure you will both agree with me in what I am about to say. To the dead we will pledge ourselves, and no human being will suspect that in the veins of one of us flows blood perhaps less proud than that of our mother's husband. Before we world we will continue our present relations, and in respect to the dead we will pledge ourselves never to seek to elucidate this mystery. But we must part. Each must go his own way, for with this fearful doubt in our minds we could never live under the same roof in harmony."

"I, Jean, am the marquis; you, Rene, the count, and Francois the vicomte de Guebranges. Thus the family name will remain intact, and the world will never guess our dishonor. What do you think of my proposition?"

"I think that you are right," said Rene. "You have expressed my own ideas exactly, and I am sure that Francois is of my opinion. But there is something I must say in spite of the pain the very thought gives me, and I hope that you will not be hard upon me. I believe my mother referred to me. Listen to my reasons."

His brothers started at his bold words, and like the loved gentleman he was, the Count de Guebranges proceeded to do what he considered to be his duty.

"You, Jean," he continued, "are our mother's firstborn. You came into the world the year after her marriage, so you are out of the question altogether." The marquis smiled. Of course he was out of the question. "You, Francois, were her pet—the one upon whom she lavished all her love. You were born only a few months after the death of our sister Bertha, who was the pride of my mother's life and whom she has mourned literally in sackcloth and ashes for so many weary years. It would be an insult to my sister's memory to cast a slur on you, while I am different. God help me! I first saw the light in a strange land. The late Marquis de Guebranges was then ambassador to St. Petersburg. My mother was very young, very beautiful, fascinating and sorely neglected. Believing if she faltered in her duty. She was our mother, and she is dead. Her expiation has been long, and she has carried part of her secret with her to the world beyond the grave. I am convinced that I am the stranger, and I feel that I am giving her the supreme proof of my love and respect in telling you what I think to be the truth. Now, what am I to do?" The count turned from them and hid his face in his hands, while his whole frame shook with the emotion he could no longer control. It was not for himself, but the woman who lay dead in the next room had been the idol of his life, and he wept that she was no more. The marquis' voice, cold and contemptuous, roused him.

"My brother and I thank you for your frankness. To the world you will always remain the Count de Guebranges, but you must go."

"When will you leave?" said Rene in surprise, and looking up he met the cold, implacable gaze of his eldest brother. By tacit consent they returned to the chamber of death and reverently knelt beside the couch where the marchioness reposed. Suddenly they sprang to their feet as she slowly raised herself, and pointing to her eldest son gasped: "It is—it is Jean."

Then she fell heavily back. She had only fainted before, but this time she was dead indeed.

Rene said nothing, but his strong arms encircled his brother's tottering form, and in after years his true heart never wavered in his affection for his brother, nor in his respect and devotion for the dear martyr whose last breath had been his vindication.—From the French of Henri Lavedan in New York Journal.

The Commercial Traveler.

In some respects the American commercial traveler is a potent influence. He carries with him the latest city chat, and if he be a young man perhaps the latest slang or the newest funny story. It has been said that a noted American after dinner speaker depends largely on that class for his humorous stories. At all events, the commercial traveler has studied the art of pleasing, and he is a welcome figure at the dreary country hotels where he pauses for a little time in his rapid flight through the sections remote from city influences. In some respects he is an oracle on mooted points, and his dictum on many phases of business or politics carries much weight.—Boston Advertiser.

Climbing a Cathedral Tower.

A most peculiar custom which has been preserved since the middle ages at Fribourg-Brigau is that of climbing the cathedral tower upon the anniversary of the birth of the reigning Duke of Baden. The tower is 400 feet high, and to scale it from the ground to the apex is a very difficult performance, attended with great danger. It is done by climbing from one projection to another, these being on the average one foot apart. A single false step means death. To descend is also no easy task. Each person who makes the climb and descent safely receives 5 marks from the state and a ticket of admission to the annual dinner given in honor of that day.—Chicago Tribune.

Doing Anything.

A sharp boy struck a Jefferson avenue merchant the other morning for a job. "So you want to be an office boy, eh?" queried the merchant good naturedly. "Yes sir." "What can you do?" "Anything." "That's the same old answer," said the merchant. "Do you expect to get paid for doing anything?" "You bet I do," snapped the boy. "You don't expect me to do anything without pay, do you? That's what the other man expected, and I got out." The boy took the job.—Detroit Free Press.

Eugene Field's Tribute to Phocion Howard.

We very deeply regret the death of our old friend, Phocion Howard. For a good many years we have thought much more of the old gentleman than we cared to tell. If from time to time we have railed and joked at his expense, it was because we knew his worth and thought much of him personally—for, be it understood, we never fringed with those whom we do not like. Phocion understood it all. Whenever he came to Chicago he climbed the stairs to see us, and we were always glad to see his ruddy face and to hear his big, cheery voice. Phocion did not do much fooling himself, and perhaps that is why he did not dislike our badinage.

Phocion Howard was one of the old school—one of the few pioneers left here for a long time in the west. He was utterly imprudent, utterly irresponsible, utterly impossible. Once he was more or less intemperate, but he stopped that folly some time ago. Up to the last he was generous and self sacrificing to the degree of fault. His sympathies were easily enlisted and his enthusiasm and loyalty never faltered. Oftentimes betrayed and imposed upon and wronged, he never lost confidence in his fellow men. His head may have failed him in emergencies, but Phocion's heart was always ready with generous, gracious, noble impulses.

So we think of the old man very tenderly as we speak of him today, and the hard part of it all is that we have to hold our pen in check, lest it commit us to an utterance of those deeper feelings in our heart which perhaps would seem mere sentimentality to you, who may not have known this kindly old soul.

This world of ours is very beautiful, and life here is sweet, for in this beautiful world humanity, with its tender sympathies and tender offices, glorifies it all. Our old friend Phocion loved this world of ours, and he loved his fellow men, and it is this love, perchance, that qualifies humanity for what is to come in the hereafter.—Eugene Field in Chicago News-Record.

Information For Readers.

An announcement printed at the top of the editorial page of a magazine published near Boston is as follows:

This magazine is published 12 times a year; that is the reason we call it a monthly. Every postmaster on the face of the earth, or any other man, is invited to solicit subscribers and secure one of our unequalled premiums or take a cold cash commission if preferred.

It costs 100 cents to have this periodical pay you 12 visits.

When you invite these visits, be sure and send the "mighty dollar" in any shape preferable, and also write your name so it shall appear plainer to us than a white cat on a coal heap, also your postoffice, county and state. If you live in a state of matrimony, it is not necessary for you to mention it.

If you send us any manuscript, don't try to write on both sides of the paper at once—to do so will make you bald-headed. We know this from experience. Also sign your best name, or into the wastebasket it goes. We don't require this so we can copy the name on a check, but merely as evidence that you are the fellow you think you are, in case we are sued for libel.

All articles intended for publication should be mailed to the editor. All business letters, donations, gifts and legacies should be addressed to the same person.

Blue Glass Spectacles For Cows.

A remarkable story comes all the way from Moravia to the effect that all the cows in that part of the country are "humped in the rail fence corners, chewing their cud with great blue spectacles fastened before their eyes." It seems that the ground in that country has been covered with snow since the latter part of October. Nearly every day has been clear and cold, the reflection of the sunlight from the snow being very distressing to the eyes of both man and beast. Thousands of cattle went entirely blind before the attention of the government director of agriculture was called to the fact. That gentleman, Dr. Verincourt, recommended blue spectacle glasses set in wood or wire frames, and the result is that thousands of cows are now roaming about over the Moravian pastures looking as dignified as Boston "school-marmas." It is further said that the entire blue glass supply of Vienna has been exhausted and that the government has applied to Paris and London glass dealers for additional supplies.—St. Louis Republic.

Signaling by Flashing Lights.

The unfavorable impression caused in navy circles abroad by the failure of flashing incandescent lights to meet all the requirements of a clear and rapid system of signaling has been greatly modified by the introduction of a new device. It was formerly found that flashes could not be made with the necessary rapidity, owing to the fact that light lingers in the carbon. In the new flash lamps, a number of tubes are being supplied to several English battleships, a spring cover hides and reveals the light, being worked by a flexible spring by hand, and enabling signals of practically any degree of rapidity and of the utmost distinctness to be sent.

The lamps are of about 100-candle power and are worked at the masthead by electric wires from the deck. From experiments made with the new device it appears that the direct flashing of high power incandescent lamps for signaling purposes is likely to be eventually superseded by some dark cover arrangement.—Exchange.

Cremation.

Miss Mary B. Conyers of Boston has written a pamphlet in favor of cremation, which the Massachusetts Cremation society has published. She states that cremation does not mean the burning of the body by fire. The coffin is put into a small chamber heated to a temperature of 2,000 degrees. No flame devours the body—nothing but the heated air—and until the moment of its falling together in white ashes the body lies untouched and the process is one quick and pure, not the slow decay of the grave.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Gave Back Her Sight, and Joy to Her Father's Heart.

"Waterbury, Vt., Nov. 19, 1892.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:—In April, 1889, my little girl Mamie, who was then 3 years old, commenced having ulcerated eyes, also had sores back of her ears. Her sight began to grow dim, and I feared she might be blind.

I then lived in Jericho, Vt. In the early days of June I went with her to the Mary Fletcher hospital in Burlington, and there she was treated four different times—a surgical operation each time, one of which left the scars now visible on the eye balls. She recovered from this treatment each time, a slight improvement for a few days, was soon worse than ever. She could discern daylight from darkness, but could not see to walk across the room.

"I next went to a large hospital in Hartford, Conn. At this hospital no surgical operations were performed, but medicine was dropped into her eyes and given her to take. She was at this hospital about ten weeks, continually growing worse, and when I took her in November she was totally blind.

"I arrived at my station in Jericho with the child, and in spirit and impoverished in pocket completely discouraged. On our way to the house from the station, we stopped at the store of Capt. McKinnon, who was an old sea captain, to warm ourselves. The captain had known the child before we went away. While we were warming ourselves Mamie said: 'Papa, it's dark, where are you? I can't see you, come to me.' The captain's heart was touched, and with tears in his eyes he said: 'Charley, you go and get a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and give it to her, and if it don't help her I will pay for it.'"

"That very afternoon I got Hood's Sarsaparilla and commenced giving it to her according to directions. The first beneficial result was a brightening of the eyes, which continued steadily improving until, under the treatment of Hood's Sarsaparilla, on the ninth day she could see to pick up a pin on the floor without its being pointed out to her, and before the first bottle was all used.

Her Sight was Entirely Restored. I keep Hood's Sarsaparilla in the house always, and when the child gets a little cold, if her eyes appear inflamed, a few doses settles it. I thank God first, Hood's Sarsaparilla second, and Capt. McKinnon third. Many of the first families in Jericho can vouch for the facts given above. I am glad to give this testimonial of what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me, which is good and lots of it." CHAS. A. ADAMS.

For Scrofula

"After suffering for about twenty-five years from scrofulous sores on the legs and arms, trying various medical courses without benefit, I began to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and a wonderful cure was the result. Five bottles sufficed to restore me to health."—Bonifacio Lopez, 327 E. Commerce St., San Antonio, Texas.

Catarrh

"My daughter was afflicted for nearly a year with catarrh. The physicians being unable to help her, my pastor recommended Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I followed his advice. Three months of regular treatment with Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's Pills completely restored my daughter's health."—Mrs. Louise Kelle, Little Canada, Ware, Mass.

Rheumatism

"For several years, I was troubled with inflammatory rheumatism, being so bad at times as to be entirely helpless. For the last two years, whenever I felt the effects of the disease, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and have not had a spell for a long time."—E. T. Hansbrough, Elk Run, Va.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Two features connected with next week's attraction at the Grand Opera House stand out conspicuously and command the attention of all theatregoers. One is the appearance of Boston's favorite actress, Miss Annie Clarke, and the other features is the play itself, "The White Slave." Miss Clarke has been assigned a role which suits her style of acting to perfection. Nance, the mother of Lisa, the heroine of the piece. It gives to Miss Clarke a character which calls for strength, self-control and self-assertion. In it she has to herself practically a whole scene, and this will afford to Miss Clarke's friends an opportunity to see her in some excellent stage work. The company which will fill out the cast is a powerful one. "The White Slave" will be admirably staged and there will be nothing open to criticism, even by the most pessimistic theatregoer. Miss Annie Clarke in "The White Slave" will hold nightly receptions and matinees on Thursday and Saturday of next week.

GLOBE THEATRE.—A revelation in the annals of stagecraft is "Ali Baba," to be seen at the Globe Theatre. The different scenes are happily appealed to in such rapid succession that one visit is not sufficient to fully imbibe the whole. Comic opera comes and goes, in a flicker of the fancy, like wise burlesque, pantomime, farce comedy, ballet entertainment and scenic elaboration have their fleeting hour, but when the whole is deftly rolled in to one grand whole, and the kaleidoscope is submitted in tangible evidence of its fitness to please even the most blasé of theatregoers. The "Ali Baba" organization interprets the various ideas woven together by master minds in this sort of work is well nigh perfect; each individual being apparently possessed of an especial fitness to the work assigned. The costumes are a dream of shimmering silks and satins, and the scenery possesses a grandeur of effect that must be seen to be appreciated. Don't miss seeing "Ali Baba," it is worth it.

COLUMBIA THEATRE. In those days of specialty farce-comedy, when the farceurs are composed mainly of specialty artists, an organization of the calibre of that which Mr. Charles Frohman presents in his latest farce comedy success, "His Wedding Day," should attract more than ordinary interest, for when such well known people of established reputation as Mr. Henry Miller, Mrs. McKee Rankin, Miss Emily Bancker, Mr. Harry Brown, Miss May Irwin, Mr. Thos. Riley, Mr. Harry Mills and Mr. Fred Strong are the principals in the cast, it is safe to say a brilliant performance should be the result. "His Wedding Day," the play in which this company will appear at the Columbia, March 6, is the latest farce conception. It is the work of H. Graham, an English playwright of eminence as a constructor of this class of work. It is original in conception, novel in construction, rapid in action, always brimming over in humorous complications and funny situations.

PARK THEATRE.—The fourth month of Hoyt's, "A Temperance Town," was ushered in Monday night at the Park Theatre with every happy circumstance that could possibly tend to the heightened felicity of all those concerned. The management had the gratification of seeing the house overflowing with auditors who enthusiastically demonstrated their genuine appreciation of the way they were entertained, and the members of the company never gave a better performance of "A Temperance Town," cheered on as they were by the sympathetic audience. It is such merit as this, clean and funny, set in many a ludicrous and pathetic situation that makes the great theatre-going public yearn for the rich treat in theatre entertainment that is to be found in Hoyt's "A Temperance Town."

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—Miss Marlowe and her company are again announced for an engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre in Boston. It has been just a year since this brilliant young star last appeared in the East and since that time she has sought and found fields and pastures new as well as gold and laurel. During the first of Miss Marlowe's engagement she will be seen entirely in comedy. On Monday and Tuesday evenings and Saturday matinee, Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." On Wednesday and Thursday evenings two pieces will be played. The performance commencing with the one act comedy entitled "Rogues and Vagabonds," ending with W. S. Gilbert's famous mythological comedy "Pygmalion and Galatea." Friday and Saturday nights will be devoted to the most brilliant of Shakespeare's comedies, "Much Ado About Nothing." The second week of Miss Marlowe's engagement will be confined entirely to Shakespeare plays.

TREMONT THEATRE.—The next attraction at the Tremont Theatre will be that clever artist Stuart Robson. Mr. Robson will begin his engagement Monday evening, March 6, and will remain for two weeks, with the usual Saturday matinee. Henry Irving's productions of historical tragedy have not excelled Stuart Robson's revivals of classical English comedy. Mr. Robson's initial play at this theatre will be a magnificent revival of John Baldwin Buckstone's quaint old English comedy, "Married Life," presented for the first time in Boston in its present shape, preparatory to its production for a long run at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York City. The scenery by Voegtlin, the master of scenic painters; quaint costumes by Herrman; properties by Henry; and the acting by Mr. Robson and his merry company should be an event of the first importance to people who have become satiated with the idiosyncrasy of modern farce comedy. Mr. Robson will be aided by his charming wife, formerly Miss May Waldron, Mr. George S. Woodward and an excellent company.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

HARPER'S.

Harper's for March has for a frontispiece a dance at the Ponce de Leon as one of the numerous illustrations of "Julian Ralph" in the "Queens of Florida," which, of course, is Florida, whose attractions are set forth in a most attractive manner with pen and pencil. There is a sad story in seven chapters by Margaret Deland entitled "The Face on the Wall." A Conan Doyle's "Refugees" and "Constance Fenimore" are continued and W. D. Howells has a series of poems: "Monochromes" illustrated by Howard Pyle. "The Escorial" is described by Theodore Child in a richly illustrated article, "Official Washington Society" is a bright paper by Henry Loomis Nelson, and "Slavery and the Slave Trade in Africa" with all its enormities is forcibly delineated by Henry M. Stanley. Richard Harding Davis tells the story of young William Astor Chandler's preparations for going to Africa on a private expedition, undertaken at his own cost, with some of the unusual features of this undertaking. There are the usual editorial departments with an amusing introductory story by Thomas Nelson Page, entitled "Billington's Valentine."

A COMEDY OF ELOPEMENT

by Christian Reid is a very entertaining novel, whose scenes are laid in Italy and concludes in Venice, and an elopement that did not take place furnishes the keynote of the plot and involves the two chief lady characters in a good deal of trouble, and causes many scenes that are amusing to the reader, who knows that all will turn out well, but they are far from amusing to those involved. There are several very clever character sketches, and the author succeeds in making his people seem real personages, with whom it is worth while to spend an hour or two, as they are well-mannered and agreeable people, even if they are not very seriously inclined. Published by D. Appleton & Co., in their Town and Country Library. Price 50 cents.

IN THE SUNSHINE OF HER YOUTH

by Beatrice Whitby is a more serious work and has to do with the realities of life. The scene is laid in England, and is concerned with the fortunes of the members of a poor but highly connected family. The theme is a familiar one to the readers of English novels, but it is treated with more than usual power and originality. The eldest daughter is sought in marriage by a wealthy but hopelessly vulgar widower of twice her age, who succeeds by saving her family from destitution, and the story is taken up mainly with the description of the married life of this ill-assorted pair. The vulgarity of the husband, his ostentation and penuriousness, the helplessness of the young wife, and the extent of the sacrifice she had to make are forcibly presented. The sombre part of the story is relieved however by a very amusing love affair between a younger sister and a devoted student of all theologies and sciences, whose love is only equalled by his absence of mind. There are a number of other characters, more or less interesting, and a providential attack of influenza carries off the vulgar husband so as to give a happy ending to the story, before the wife has fully passed "the sunset of her youth." Appleton's Town and Country Library.

COMMANDER MENDOZA

is the latest issue in Appleton's Town and Country Library. It is a translation from the Spanish of Juan Valera, who is called the most popular Spanish novelist of the day, some of whose works have achieved a wide circulation in their English translations. His Pepe Ximenez is styled by the Saturday Review, one of the best stories that has appeared in any country of Europe for the past twenty years, and received high praise from W. D. Howells. Commander Mendoza is a Spaniard who lived a hundred years ago, and who served in the Spanish army in his country's colonies in the New World and had many strange adventures by sea and land, before he settled down and became a model citizen. The book well sustains the reputation of the author and has a freshness and vitality not found in the ordinary novel.

"Yes," said the sad faced man on the Boston express, "Boston is going to the dogs. Here are the street railway people trying to obliterate the Common, and then there's the odious sale of our Old Colony a foreign corporation. I can't imagine what our folks are thinking of; it really does seem as though we were losing all our local pride." And the Bostonian sighed heavily. The sigh died away, however, when the man in the seat behind him was still sitting in his overcoat said, testily, "Yes, you Boston people are in a very bad way. Not only is all you have said true, as is the distressing fact that both pork and beans have advanced to enormously high prices, but I heard today that a New York lowering museum proprietor was in town endeavoring to negotiate for the purchase of the State House codfish, and that there is an effort on foot in Chicago to secure Gov. Billy Russell for exhibition in a glass case at the fair." The train had reached Providence by this time, and the passengers were filing out, but the Boston man still sat in his seat clasping his eyeglasses and his handkerchief, and staring helplessly at the form of the irreverent Providence man disappearing through the door.—Providence Journal.

Hood's Sarsaparilla positively cures even when all others fail. It has a record of success unequalled by any other medicine.

Some of the herbs in Hall's Hair Renewer, that wonderful preparation for restoring the color and thickening the growth of the hair, grow plentifully in New England.

"I've tried all sorts of blood-purifiers" said an old lady to a "cutter," "and you can't persuade me that any other Sarsaparilla is as good as Ayer's." There's where she had him. She knew that Ayer's was the best—and so did he, but it paid him better to sell a cheaper brand.

People with delicate stomachs find Ayer's Sarsaparilla agreeable to the taste, and therefore, prefer it as a blood-purifier to any other. This is one reason for its great popularity as a palatible and family medicine. Safe, certain, and reliable.

The advertising of Hood's Sarsaparilla appeals to the sober, common sense of thinking people, because it is true; and it is always fully substantiated by endorsements which in the financial world would be accepted without a moment's hesitation. They tell the story—Hood's Cures.

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, jaundice, biliousness, sick headache, constipation.

Don't Despair.

If you are weak and weary from some so-called chronic diseases, don't give up. Sulphur Bitters has given hope to many invalids, where all other remedies have failed. It will build up and renew your whole system.—Editor Weekly American.

Everybody Likes

to be called handsome, especially the young ladies. But that is simply impossible as long as their face is covered with pimples, blotches and sores. But wait, there is no need of this; one or two bottles of Sulphur Bitters will remove all such blemishes, and make your face fair and rosy.—Fannie Bell, Editress.

The children's health must not be neglected. Cold in the head causes catarrh. Ely's Cream Balm cures at once. It is perfectly safe and is applied into the nostrils. The worst cases yielding to it. Price 50c.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed, but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharge was cured.—O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,

111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

—The engagement is announced of Miss Onella B. Copeland, only daughter of Mrs. Little B. Copeland, Denver, Colo., to Mr. W. H. A. Clark, formerly of Newton Centre, now with Baker & Felt, Bankers and Brokers, Denver, Colo.
—Mr. Jas. A. McLellan has a house at Ashton Park nearly finished for Alderman Roffe. He will build at the park an English cottage at once for Mr. Wm. B. Young and will commence a house next week for Prof. Bullen on Centre street, near the Baptist church.

—Rev. W. R. Clark, D. D., of Lynn, formerly pastor at the Methodist church here, presided Monday evening at the meeting of the Boston Wesleyan University Club at the Quincy house. A very good likeness of Dr. Clark was given in the Herald.
—W. F. Harbach and others are to cut up a good-sized tract of land off Lake avenue. It will be developed in connection with land belonging to E. M. Fowle and M. G. Crane, and the result will be the offering of a large number of lots in the spring at from 15 to 20 cents a foot. By the way, it does not take a very long look into the future to see that Newton Centre people will some day regret not having a drive around the shore of Crystal lake. It would be a very attractive improvement, and make the shores accessible to the public, instead of having them become private property.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

—Pianos, rented and tuned, Farley, Newton.
—Miss Edith Fewkes is visiting her grandfather at Ipswich.
—Mrs. Wheeler has been confined to her home for a few days by illness.
—Rev. Mr. Morehouse of Dedham street is supplying a pulpit at Sudbury.
—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Spaulding have returned from their trip to Florida.
—Amy Ogden, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ogden, is ill with pneumonia.
—Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Waterhouse are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter.
—The Chautauque circle will meet next Monday with Mrs. Whittemore, Lincoln street.

—The "Frost Party" given by the Congregational sewing circle netted the sum of $61.

—Mr. H. C. Robinson and his son have gone to Washington to attend the inauguration ceremonies.

—Rev. Mr. Dunning will conduct the services at the Congregational church next Sunday morning and evening.

—Rev. Mr. Jaynes of West Newton, will have charge of the Unitarian services, next Sunday at the Episcopal chapel.

—Messrs. J. O. Ransom & Co. have sold their provision business to Mr. W. W. Sherman, formerly of Newton Centre.

—Lenten services at St. Paul's Wednesday 4 and 8 p. m. Short service and address. All are welcome.

—Next Sunday (3rd in Lent) services at St. Paul's will be at 10:45 and 7. The rector will officiate and preach at both services.

—Mr. John R. Henderson has an attack of rheumatism, which is so severe, that he has gone to the Cottage Hospital for treatment.

—Mr. E. Moulton attended the annual dinner of the Richardson Light Guard, of which he is a member, at Wakefield, on Wednesday.

—The order of the M. E. services will be reversed next Sunday, the Sunday school will be held at 3 o'clock, the preaching service at 4 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. C. A. Shatto, is expected to be with his people by that time.

—This (Friday) evening at eight o'clock there will be a service in St. Paul's church at which Rev. H. C. Cunningham will be the preacher. Their Lenten services are brief and hearty with congregational singing and the public are earnestly invited.

—The next meeting of the Monday club will be with Mrs. Barnes on Hyde street. At the last meeting a paper was read by Mrs. Kenrick on "Phrenology, and illustrating the topic by an examination of the heads of some of the members of the club."

—Notices are out for the annual meeting of the Newton Highlands Improvement Association to be held at the Highland club house hall next Monday evening, March 6th at eight o'clock. The public is invited to attend as the questions of a new school building and a park will be considered.

—Tyler Clark, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Peter Clark, celebrated his fifth birthday, March 1st, by inviting quite a number of his associates at the Kindergarten school, to a sleigh-ride, and giving a supper at the home of his grandparents on Waterville avenue, and all had a jolly time.

—Sunday's music at the Congregational church, will include the following:
"The Heavens Proclaim Him" (with organ) Response, "As the Heart with Eager Longing" (Quintette)
Offertory "Lord what offering shall we bring."
(Quintette)
"Thou, who art God alone."

—Hawaii is the topic of the day, and no man in the country is better informed in regard to it than is Hon. Gorham D. Gilman, who will lecture at Mr. Alexander Tyler's next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The lecture will be illustrated by maps and curiosities from Hawaii and the Hawaiian Islands, and will be rendered by Mrs. Tyler and Miss Manson. Tickets may be found at Mrs. C. S. Robinson's, Mrs. Steven's, Mrs. Durgin's, Mrs. Eaton's, Mrs. Tyler's and at the drug stores.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Congregational sewing circle was held on Wednesday at the chapel. In the early evening a bountiful supper was served to the members and their families, and invited guests, after which an entertainment was given consisting of solos by Mr. A. E. Pennell, piano solo by Mrs. Shumway, a duet by Mr. Pennell and Mrs. Hayward, also a very humorous lecture by Mr. E. Gott, descriptive of rare animals and birds, specimens of which were shown upon the screen. The lecturer was most happy in his entertaining descriptions, and had the attention of the audience to the close.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—The married men beat the Independent bowlers by three pins, Tuesday.

—The trial of Mr. Simeon Procter has been postponed until Monday next.

—The last quarterly conference of the Methodist church was held last evening.

—A young man at the Pettie machine works lost a finger Monday, getting it caught in the machinery.

—The Clover Club wishes to extend thanks to those who kindly contributed to the Conundrum Banquet Tuesday evening, Feb. 25th.

—The Quinobquin Association offer the following prizes to the bowler making the greatest number of pins in three consecutive strings: first prize, $5; second prize, $2.50; third prize, $1.50; fourth prize $1.00.

—Mr. James T. Jennings, for the past six years clerk and bookkeeper at E. J. Hickey's mill at Middleton, having been transferred to his mill in this place has been succeeded by the well filled purse by the Middleton employers.

—Not many evenings since one of the N. & B. electricians took in a party of gentlemen returning home from the Newton Club. They all had cigars, but upon entering the empty car refrained from smoking as supposedly against the rules. The conductor entering the car gave them permission to smoke, and in answer to a query as to what he should do if a lady entered, said the car could be given out in a moment by opening the doors. And would you allow a party of workmen to smoke their pipes in the car, continued his questioner? Certainly not! And the prospective policeman stalked slowly out and shut the door.

—The Clover Club gave an excellent entertainment on Tuesday evening at Prospect Hall. The weather was disappointing but there was a good attendance. The supper hour was from 6:30 to 8, and the following was the menu presented excepting the correct names which we add: Substantials, Intoxicated Bovine, Corned Beef; Occupant of the Ark, Ham; Unruly Member, Tongue; A Woman of Wit, Sandwiches; Food for the Springing Wheel, From Green to gold, Rolls and Butter; What Most People Need, Bread; New England Brains, Beans, Appetizers, A Young Man's Sweetheart, Hovey, Labor's Stronghold, Cheese; Constitution Corrupters, Pickles; Tabby's Party, Catsup, Desserts, Porous Maine Substance, Sponge Cake; A Bit of Treasure, Fruit Cake; A Geological Specimen, Marble Cake; Children Cry for Them, Bananas; Farmers' Delight in Them, Apples; A Golden Curve, Oranges, Backbone of History, What Asthmatic People are, Coffee; China Cordial, Tea; Spring Offering, Water; A Wise Beverage, Sage Tea; Ivory Manipulators, Tooth-picks. The supper committee were Misses Flora Ingraham, Libbie Kempton, Ida Hunton; conundrum artfully and museum, Misses Gertrude Brock, Edith Newell; home-made candy table, Misses Jennie Billings, Nellie Flagg; postoffice, Misses Marion G. Noyes, Mattie Randall, and the fortune teller in gypsy costume, a veritable disaster, Miss Sarah Stuntz. The entertainment during the evening consisted of songs, trios and piano duet by Miss Edith Newell, Misses Bertha and Jennie Billings and Edith Newell, and Misses Helen Newell and Florence Billings, several readings being given by Miss Mervie Heaton of Waban.

—The death of Mr. W. S. Cargill came very suddenly to the community. He had seemed better for a day or two and his recovery was hoped for, but it proved only a mental rally and he died at 10:30 a. m. William Storey Cargill was born in Needham 45 years ago. His parents moved to Newton Upper Falls when he was quite young, and he was educated in the public schools. He served an apprenticeship at the Pettie Machine works where he learned the carpenter's trade, which he pursued for over 20 years at the Pettie Machine works, being one of the best of his kind in the city. About five years ago he accepted a position as carpenter at the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Co. shop, where he was employed at the time of his death. The deceased was one of the most respected and winning of men. He was the originator and a charter member of the Quinobquin Association which was organized in 1883. He was also the oldest member and the vice-president of the present belonging to the Association, and had held nearly every office in the Association. The deceased was a prominent member of the Newton Fireman's Association, the Relief Association, captain of Hose No. 7 for 14 years, and had served as warden in Ward Five for four years. A mother, two sisters, several brothers, and a large family of children survive. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock at his late home, and the service was one of the largest attended and most impressive ever held in this vicinity. New 300 friends and relatives, friends, and coming from Lynn, Attleboro, Boston, Needham and the Newtons. Among those present were Alderman Rumery and Councilman Howes of the Newton fire committee, Councilman Howes, a member of the fire department, and delegations from the Quinobquin Association, the Newton Fireman's Association, and the Newton Relief Association. The service was conducted by Rev. Geo. W. Holman of Amherst, formerly pastor of the Baptist church here, and the Mendelssohn quartet of male voices sang "The Good and Beautiful Land." The interment was in the family lot at Needham, and the following committee from the Quinobquin Association, President, Joseph Templey, Secretary, W. F. Bird, Messrs. J. L. Randall and W. H. McIntosh, attended the remains to their last resting place.

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—Miss May M. Smith is to make her future home in Brookline.

—Officer Seaver was off duty Tuesday night after having several teeth extracted.

—The heavy storm of last week gave employment to all hands that could be hired here the past ten days.

—Mr. Henry Vyett is fitting up the Rice building near the depot formerly used as a newspaper stand. He will open a variety store.

—The sale of fancy articles and refreshments held in Freeman Hall last week, Thursday afternoon and evening by the Ladies' Society of the M. E. church, was a very successful venture.

—The fair held by the Ladies' Aid Society on the 23rd, although given under most discouraging circumstances, having been postponed on account of the storm of the 22nd, was quite a success over $100 having been cleared above all expenses.

—A very fair attendance was present at the concert given in St. John's church basement the evening of Feb. 22nd. The severe storm during the day and evening prevented many from attending from out of town, who had previously purchased tickets that are to be good for a repetition of the entertainment that is to be given on the evening of Fast Day.

—At the 4th quarterly conference of the M. E. church held on Monday evening last, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Trustees, P. C. Baker, G. A. Hewitt, Leonard Hurd, Andrew Kimball, M. L. Perrin, C. W. Richardson, Levi Wales; stewards, P. C. Baker, G. A. Hewitt, Andrew Kimball, Mrs. M. L. Littlefield, M. L. Perrin, F. B. Reed, C. W. Richardson, Levi Wales; recording steward, Mrs. N. P. Littlefield; district steward, M. L. Perrin.

—The Eastman Seed Co., East Summer, Me., ever of the alert, this year bring out as their most striking novelty, the "Lightning Bean," the quickest of all beans from planting to the table. Their catalogue of choice seed is constantly adapted to the latitude and climate is sent free to all applicants.

sang at the service held by St. Luke's congregation, Allston, last Tuesday evening, at the corner of Centre and Elmwood streets, a very large number of the members of the choir were present.
—Bishop Jagger, formerly of Southern Ohio, is in England and coming in Grace church Sunday morning. At night the popular western speaker, Bishop Talbot will tell of his experiences in the far west.
—Very appreciative remarks are heard frequently now of the solos rendered by members of the choir of Grace church.
While the chorus has always been good the solo portions are now becoming unusually excellent.
—The plans for the nurses' homes at the Newton Cottage Hospital are now ready in the office of H. H. Richardson.
The building is to be old colonial in style, with reception rooms and bedrooms for 40 nurses. It will be 74 feet front by 50 feet deep.
—The explosion of a kerosene lamp in the block, corner of Washington and Thornhill streets, caused an alarm from box 17 and excited a great crowd, about 7:15 o'clock Wednesday evening.
Engine One turned out but the damage was very slight.
—A sneak thief entered the rooms of Mr.
Geo. L. Pearson in Lancaster block, Tuesday, and stole a bag belonging to a lady operator in the telephone office, containing about eleven dollars in money and some letters and trinkets. The police are looking up the case.
—Mrs. Madden, mother of Mrs. Liver-more, the dressmaker in Lancaster block, died quite suddenly Saturday evening of heart failure. She had been ill for some time, but the end came very unexpectedly.
The funeral services were held Tuesday and were conducted by Rev. Dillon Bronson.
—Rev. and Mrs. Calkins gave a reception to the members of Eliot choir and their wives and husbands on Wednesday evening, and a large number were present. It was a very pleasant social affair, the only exercise being solos by Miss Lawton and Mrs. Bowers. Mr. Paxton furnished the refreshments.
—At the next meeting of the Norumbega Society, the reading of the 3rd of March paper will take place. Charles A.
Worth of the Watertown Enterprise is editor for 1893, and the articles are all originated by the members of the club.
For the April meeting an amusing little comedy is being prepared.

many years engaged in the carriage painting business in Newton, died at the Cottage Hospital on Monday, aged 80 years.
He retired from business on account of failing health, a few years ago, and has been quite feeble most of the time since.
He was a quiet, unassuming man, but an excellent citizen and one who enjoyed the respect of all who knew him.
—The ladies in charge of Mrs. Woolson's lectures to be given in aid of the Nonantum Industrial school, are much pleased with the hearty response they have received.
Mrs. Woolson speaks in Eliot church parlors on Monday, March 13, at 10:30 a. m.

last Wednesday.
—A number of our residents enjoyed a sleighride last Friday evening to Chestnut Hill Reservoir through Brighton to Newtonville, where supper was served in the Newton Club House. Among the party were Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Buffum, Mr. and Mrs. Heaton, Mr. and Mrs. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Harlow, Mr. and Mrs. Flint, Miss Dunlap, Mr. Walter Flint,
Mr. and Mrs. Childs, Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin.
—A well known dog in town some days ago—seemingly suddenly to become ill, much anxiety was manifested from each member of the family, including the servants. The latter, feeling sure he must be suffering from cold and sore throat, were anxious to help the poor animal, and one of them brought a bottle of liniment and faithfully applied the same to the dog's throat and head. After a good dose of acetone the animal was tied to the boiler to await developments. In the course of a few hours upon further investigation the poor fellow was found to be suffering from an injury to his latter extremities, his tail being unable to wag in appreciation of all that had been done for him. He was, no doubt, struck by the train, as he spends his leisure time, (when not in school), trying to outrun the same.

Why so Many Vacant Seats in Our Churches?
To the Editor of the Graphic:
For what purpose do we pay our pew rents? Is it to listen to unpleasant lectur-ings? Is that what ministers are employed to do? To hit this one and that one and get excited over nothing? What would drive our young men from church as quickly. Is it the proper way to bring up our children to love and reverence their home, by reproaching them for their mistakes and acts that fail to please us sometimes.
We attend church with the hope of gaining some useful information, from which we would look up to as capable of bestowing it upon us.
Did Phillips Brooks fill his church to overflowing by upbraiding his congregation? On the other hand, he gave offense to no one. A true hearted, conscientious soul can never be judged by public parade, neither does the title of church membership add one jot or tittle of honor to a human being, or cover their sins. Let me assure anyone who has yet much to learn about society in our wealthy churches, that it is as absolutely impossible for the poor to enter the doors of those churches as it is for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle and the mere thought of the poor getting the slightest footing; why you know not of what you are speaking,
"Live and Learn," yet awhile.
Who of us with the care of a family feels that he "dawdles in the lap of ease?" We trust however that our yoke is not an exceedingly burdensome one, it might be made so should we try to accomplish outside more than our health and strength permit. Let us be merciful, be charitable and forgiving, doing to others as we would they should do unto us.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

LARGELY ATTENDED HEARING—DECEASED OPPOSITION TO ELECTRIC CARS ON CENTRE AND ELMWOOD STREETS—ROUTINE BUSINESS.

The mayor and board of aldermen met at City Hall, Monday evening, and the members except Alderman Emerson being present.

After the reading of the journal Mayor Fenno appointed ex-Alderman Arthur F. Luke as sinking fund commissioner to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George C. Lord, and the appointment was confirmed.

Papers from the lower branch were passed in concurrence.

The charter amendment resolution came up from the common council, and on motion of Alderman Bothfeld, the resolution was defeated 4 to 2, the yeas and nays being called for.

RESIDENTS TO BE HEARD.

The $172 appropriation for transportation of Lower Falls pupils to Auburndale as passed in the common council caused some discussion, Alderman Roffe opposing it on the ground that citizens were against the transfer and were entitled to the same privileges as other Newton citizens and taxpayers.

Alderman Bothfeld had voted with the board to defeat the previous order, but after receiving an explanation of the situation from Superintendent Aldrich, favored the transfer. Only one pupil objected, so he was informed, and of the seven included, three were non-residents, and the youngest was 13 years old.

Alderman Plummer read a letter from Superintendent Aldrich, explaining that Mrs. Whipple, one of the remonstrants, was a non-resident, that the youngest child was 13 years, 10 months, and the oldest 16 years, and that the change was only experimental.

The parents of these children expressed themselves as satisfied with the results attained at the Auburndale school. On the other hand, three gentlemen had called upon the speaker and opposed the transfer, not because of the danger or expense but because such a measure was detrimental to the village. He moved to table the order and then a hearing was granted to those interested, for Mar. 20, at 7:30 o'clock.

The reports of the sinking fund commissioners and trustees of the Read Fund were received.

At 7:30 o'clock a hearing was opened on the widening of Eliot street and no remonstrants appearing, was promptly closed.

A LARGE HEARING.

The hearing on the location of street railway tracks on Centre, Elmwood, Park and Tremont streets, for the operation of electric cars petitioned for by the Newton & Brighton Street Railway Company was then opened.

Mr. H. B. Parker appeared for the company. He said communication between Newton and Oak Square had been long desired as a popular means of direct travel to the heart of Boston. There had been some talk of the West End building from Oak Square to Newton but that company was so occupied with its interests in the city of Boston that there was little chance of its consummation.

The most direct and feasible route was through Elmwood, Park and Tremont streets, where would be secured the most travel. He submitted a petition headed by Hon. H. E. Hibbard and W. S. Hutchinson, containing 98 signatures, all of prominent men who favored the road, a petition which, he believed, should have great weight. There was no question but the line would be of great convenience, to ladies perhaps especially, who could thus avoid the long walk from the Boston & Albany station to the shopping center. It was the intention of the company to connect with all the late West End cars and give the best service possible. When the grades of the Boston & Albany tracks were separated the tracks would be taken off of Elmwood street and connect with the Newton & Waltham tracks via Park and Washington streets.

Thomas Weston appeared in behalf of residents of Wards One and Seven, who opposed the location of the tracks on Centre street especially. He asked if it was the ultimate intention to continue the tracks up Centre street to Newton Centre?

Mr. Parker—it has not been definitely decided yet but it is considered in the near future.

Mr. Weston thought the traveling people might be just as well served if the cars stopped on Elmwood street?

Mr. Parker—The Centre street location to Mt. Ida street would benefit a greater number, taking in the heart of Newton Corner, and the extra cost of construction and running cars would be immaterial.

Ex-Alderman S. A. D. Sheppard said there was but one side to the question considered from a public standpoint. He had no stock in the road, and no considerable personal interest as a resident. He had long considered street railway development in Newton. When in the city government he had tried to get Elmwood street widened with this in view, and the time was not far distant when it must be done. The street car is the life of the people and while there are objectionable features, it is important and essential for the public use. The case of the opposition by Jordan, Marsh & Co., to double tracking in front of their store by the West End company was cited. The road was constructed almost by stealth so bitter were they against it, but he believed today Jordan, Marsh & Co., would be one of the most strenuous objectors to having that little piece of track taken up. This applied, he believed, in almost every case. Those objecting to these roads would hardly know how to do without them, after they had been in operation for a time.

Mr. Parker said here that the company had just decided to file an application at the next meeting of the aldermen for location in Centre street to Newton Centre.

Mr. Edward H. Mason was present in behalf of remonstrants. Against the Centre street location, after reviewing the situation at some length he asked that no further franchise be granted a street railway until the report of the Boulevard commission had been presented in which he believed a comprehensive plan for the operation of street railways throughout the city would be included.

Mr. Weston called upon some of the remonstrants to express their opinions. Dr. E. P. Scales of Centre street said he had been a resident of Newton for 30 years and had a very strong interest in the matter as an abator and in a business way. The railway would not only be a serious inconvenience, but a damage to him in his business. It would be impossible to leave his horse standing in front of his house or for his patrons to do so. He objected to the railway only when it was a damage to citizens. Five other physicians on Centre street were objectors.

Mr. Geo. Farlow believed street railroads were getting to be a necessity, but Newton could afford to spend much time in consideration. He said the width of streets should be considered before any location was granted. It was not a question of convenience today but of expense tomorrow. Boston is suffering today from short-sightedness in not widening their streets years ago in anticipation of the present and future traffic. In a few years double tracks would be necessary in Newton. He believed no location should be granted unless preceded by proper plans for widening.

Mr. Geo. W. Bush of Elmwood street said tracks there would seriously injure his stable business.

Alderman Bothfeld at this time presented a remonstrance signed by every resident and property owner on Elmwood street.

Rev. Geo. E. Merrill of Centre street, as one of the remonstrants, said Newton was generally regarded as especially favored with a freedom from the usual attributes of a city, and this was why it is so attractive to those looking for a residential place. He anticipated the advantages of electric roads and an increased valuation might accrue in certain sections of the city, but he thought it would tend largely to prevent desirable residents from coming here. It would tend to make Newton a cheap suburb of Boston, and the congested condition of Somerville was cited as an example of what Newton might become in the future. He spoke of several signs to the favoring petition, who upon learning a location on Centre street was asked for wished their names withdrawn. The objection of the churches to having electric cars running past their doors on Sunday mentioned.

Mr. John C. Chaffin was decidedly opposed to the location asked for.

Mr. J. Sturgis Potter believed progress in these matters essential to Newton, but there should be no haste and he thought the city should not give these franchises for nothing.

Mr. Charles E. Lord protested against a location on Park and Elmwood streets unless they were widened. None should be granted unless the streets were sufficiently wide for both electric and carriage travel.

Ex-Senator Gilman of Elmwood street said the street had once been widened but was still very narrow, only about 18 feet 8 inches between the curbs at the corner of Park street. He saw no reason why a terminus at Centre street 25 feet from the B. & A. depot was necessary. Business men would rather take the steam cars and go into Boston in 20 minutes. Referring to the petition presented, he said most of them were not residents of the streets wanted and they were not affected, and he believed but few of them would wish to remain on the petition if they knew Centre street was to have electric cars. He thought the proper terminus would be at Washington and Park street, thus avoiding Elmwood street entirely. He believed in the city putting a value on street railway franchises. When the shares, as he was informed, of the Newton & Waltham road, amounted to a par of $100, now they were $150, he thought the company could afford to pay for a franchise. The old horse railroad had been a losing concern six days in the week.

Mrs. North of Elmwood street was present and endorsed the views as expressed by other remonstrants.

Mr. Weston in closing said the citizens represented by him did not wish to be considered as obstructionists, but as favoring that whatever is done be done the best good and in the best way, not only for the present, but for the future. There was no need of haste. The board of commissioners undoubtedly had some plan which would cover the whole city, and possibly have devised some plan providing for these very things. How would double tracks, which must soon come, effect Elmwood or Centre streets? The four great ways north and south are Chestnut, Walnut, Centre and Grant and Waverley avenues. Walnut street is spoiled for driving by the electric and Centre street is now wanted leaving only two. This is not a desirable state of things. An electric road affects the residential atmosphere of a whole street. Could not an avenue for the use of electric cars north and south, be laid out on land that is not particularly valuable near the centre of the city where two tracks could be constructed if necessary, and thus save these boulevards to the city? He believed in referring the whole matter to a special commission. It was not fair to bring damage and sacrifice to residents and property holders to the profit of the promoters of these enterprises, without compensation to the city for such rights, when some other way was possible. He opposed the hedge legislation by which they had to run from Elmwood to Mt. Ida street. It was simply a wedge to secure easily the whole line to Newton Centre.

Mr. A. Lawrence Edmonds appeared as a remonstrant, and for Messrs. E. W. Converse, A. C. Walworth, Miss Mary Shuman and Mr. Fiske.

Mr. Charles E. Eddy protested against granting the location.

Mr. Parker said double tracking was too far distant to consider at this time. The company asked for a single track. Elmwood street was desired for the temporary use when the Boston & Albany separated the grades they should run via Park and Washington streets to connect with the Newton and Waltham. Centre street was desired because the cars were wanted on the travelled streets, Waverley avenue or a street of that nature would be of no value.

The petition presented had a number of names of Centre street residents.

Mr. Weston said he knew of several gentlemen who signed the petition, but since learning Centre street was included, wished their names were off.

Mr. S. L. Powers thought it was another way of looking at the matter. The residents of Brighton hill and the hill opposite have always wanted street cars on Tremont street to afford them quick transit to the depot or home at night. This necessitates the use of Elmwood street. These are the 90 cars the citizens whose names are on that petition. A large number, particularly ladies, would use the cars to go to Boston in the summer season when they are much more comfortable than steam cars and leave them near the large stores. The men who will run this road are Newton citizens. It is no corporation come here to monopolize the streets. It is purely a question of public convenience for the greatest good to the greatest number and he believed it would be better done by Newton men. The Berlin idea of paying for a franchise was getting to be quite a fad, but before Newton roads were asked this, he wanted them to have the privilege of stopping every little while at red poles to go and collect fares as practiced in Berlin.

Dr. E. B. Hitchcock thought some light on signs of the petition would not be of place. There were a number who were kept in ignorance of the location on Centre street and nearly all were unaware that a location to Newton Centre would be asked for. When this was learned there was a large number who wished their names were off the petition. Children, he continued, had been taken from schools previous to the building of the tunnel, because of the danger in crossing the B. & A. tracks and he believed electric would prove even a greater danger. The traffic would be very detrimental, especially on Sunday.

Ex-Alderman Sheppard emphasized the fact that Newton ladies, "and they are ladies," prefer in summer to walk to Oak Square in preference to taking the steam cars and the ride out through Allston and Brookline was a beautiful one. No boulevard people would wish to spring up in that vicinity. He saw plenty of hoodlums travelling Tremont street now and did not favor building a railway so they could ride. He had been requested by Mr. Hammett to sign the petition, but refused because he wanted to sign the remonstrance. He had been told that Mr. E. W. Converse's name was on the petition and was surprised.

Mr. Hammett said he asked young Mr. Converse if his father, who was absent, would favor the location asked and had received an affirmative answer.

Mr. Edmonds presented a telegram from Mr. Converse which was sent in answer to one forwarded by him, in which the former protested against such location being granted on Centre street.

The hearing was then closed.

NEEDHAM STREET RAILWAY.

A hearing was opened on the petition of the Needham Street Railway Company.

Mr. James S. Warden, its president, appeared to explain its purposes. No remonstrants appearing the hearing was closed.

Several nominations and promotions were recommended by the chief of fire department.

PETITIONS.

The Newtonville & Watertown Street Railway Co. withdrew their petition for location to have electric cars. They presented a substitute petition for location on Watertown from the corner of Walnut street. A hearing was granted for April 3 at 7:30 o'clock.

John Monaghan petitioned for license for hackney carriage on Margin street. Referred.

John Collins gave notice of intention to build dwelling house 24x14 feet on Webster street; J. H. Hoyt, shed 21x19 feet on Auburn street. Granted.

W. M. Russell et al petitioned for a bell and striker in the tower of the new hose house. Referred.

The N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. petitioned for location of poles and wires on Centre street between Gile and Cotton streets, and a hearing was appointed for April 3, at 7:45 o'clock.

A communication from Katy Fitzgibbons claiming damages for a sprained wrist, caused by a fall on the icy sidewalk, Newtonville avenue, Feb. 23. Referred.

A communication was received and referred from John B. Turner, attorney for the estate of Mrs. Sarah F. Thayer, Court street, asking abatement of sewer assessment.

The petitions of Wm. Lowe to build addition 15x25 feet on Chestnut street for use as store and tenement, and Hannah B. Edmonds for two dwelling houses 30x40 feet, on Erie avenue, were received and referred.

W. F. Dearborn et al petitioned for concrete crosswalk on Lowell, opposite Foster street.

The claims committee was referred the communication of Bridget Ahern by Lawrence Bond, attorney, relative to injuries received to spine by falling on an icy sidewalk on Webster street, Jan. 30.

The Nonantum Worsted Co. et al petitioned for one street light on Chapel street.

Joseph Bowman petitioned for license to move dwelling on Homer street. Referred.

ORDERS.

An order rescinding the taking of certain land on Fairview street for sewer purposes was passed.

Alderman Plummer moved that the recommendations of the chief of fire department be taken from the table. The recommendation was taken up and the following appointments were made by the mayor and confirmed by the board: Joseph L. Richardson, honorable discharge, from Truck 70; Loring L. Cook, hoseman, No. 5 hose; Harley A. Smith, promotion, foreman No. 7 hose, vice W. S. Cargill, deceased; J. E. Trowbridge, promotion, assistant foreman No. 7 hose; Joseph Temperley, hoseman, No. 7 hose.

Alderman Rumery presented an order which was passed appropriating $3000 for the furnishing of the new horse house at Nonantum, this sum including everything but the horse wagon.

Alderman Bothfeld presented an order which was passed, authorizing the city treasurer to borrow $400,000 in anticipation of the taxes of 1893.

An order appropriating $4000 for interest on sewer bonds was passed.

An order appropriating $4000 for interest on sewer bonds was passed.

Inspector of Buildings.

structing the ordinance committee to prepare an ordinance to that effect. In explanation he said the city engineer upon whom this work now devolved had too much to attend to and a competent man was necessary for the proper inspection of buildings, to prevent the erection of such firetraps as Stevens block at Newton Highlands had proved. The city engineer made some failures at times and it was impossible to expect invariable accuracy of an overworked man. The expense of a competent man would be saved to the city in many ways.

Alderman Plummer endorsed the views expressed.

Heard him believe if a thoroughly competent man could be secured for the position it would be for the best interests of the city to establish such an office.

The resolve passed.

The petition of the Newton & Brighton Street Railway Company for location on Centre, Elmwood, Park and Tremont streets was referred.

JURORS.

The mayor then proceeded to draw jurors for the Superior Court at Lowell, resulting as follows: J. Franklin Fuller, Highland street; George W. Hachens, Kendrick street; George W. Brown, Jonsson street; Phillip A. Hartley, Walcott street. The board then adjourned.

DEGREE WORK NOTED.

High Standing of Newton Lodge of Odd Fellows.

GREAT PRAISE DUE PAST NOBLE GRAND E. A. WOOD.

The history of Odd Fellowship in Newton dates back to April 19, 1871, when Waban lodge 156 was instituted with large and representative membership, and enjoyed a period of great prosperity extending over several years. Then came a time of lessened interest and fluctuating epochs of success and failure in the way of progress.

During its halcyon days Newton encampment was founded, but it had only a comparatively brief existence, and was relocated in Waltham about ten years ago, retaining for a time all that remained of its Newton membership. The Waltham encampment still has a considerable representation of Newton members, but many of the original number are now in Garden City encampment, formed by Waban and Home lodges of Newton a few years ago, first located at Newton, and afterward at Newton Highlands, nearly two years ago.

Waban lodge several months ago removed from Newton to Newtonville, and since its relocation the membership has increased, and promises to again resume its original proportions.

The second Odd Fellows' lodge in Newton was instituted in the Upper Falls district April 3, 1873, and it took the title of Home lodge, but it was weary of the material scenes and surroundings, and about three years ago removed to Newton Highlands, since that time more than doubling its membership.

Newton lodge was instituted in West Newton, June 15, 1887, starting off with a membership of 165. On the occasion of the first lodge session, 140 members were initiated, and those who enrolled themselves in the membership were among the most prominent business, professional and public men of the city. It started with a boom and has kept to the fore ever since. The membership has steadily increased and has now nearly reached the 300 mark.

Much of its success and progress has been due to the versatile and enterprising character of its members. The lodge is noted for its brilliant entertainments, concerts and ladies' night receptions. It has been particularly fortunate in possessing talent within itself, including well known amateur and professional vocalists, elocutionists and comedians. Prominent among those who have contributed to the success of the entertainments is T. E. Stinson of Boston Cadet minstrel fame, who played one of the principal parts in the original production of "1492," and later enacted a role upon the occasion of its first professional presentation at the Globe Theatre. Others who have rendered aid are Mr. Fred Hobart, comedy sketch artist and instrumentalist, and Prof. Fred Metcalf of the Emerson school of oratory.

Newton lodge, however, secured its greatest prominence through the plan devised by Past Noble Grand Elijah A. Wood of combination degree work. This important move in the way of perfecting degree explication and extending the interest in the work of Odd Fellowship beyond mere local lines was carried into effect Jan. 1, 1892, when Mr. Wood was in the noble grand's chair. The lodges interested in this movement were the Gov. Gore and Prospect lodges of Waban and Newtonville. Degree staffs were organized by each for the work only of one degree. Newton lodge was allotted the third, and in its execution, has made a reputation which entitles it to first place in the lodges of the Massachusetts jurisdiction. This distinction is of unusual significance to Massachusetts, the country in perfection of details of degree work.

An impressive feature is introduced by Newton lodge in the vocal interpretation by a quartet of trained male voices.

Since this departure the spacious hall of the home lodgeroom, with a floor space of 100 feet square, has been only adequate for the accommodation of members and visitors from all parts of the state upon the occasion of the third degree nights.

Charity covers a multitude of sins—paint a multitude of imperfections. The better the paint the more effectively are the imperfections concealed and the greater the quantity of them hid from view. Given durability, the best test of paint is the quantity of surface that it will properly cover. Wherever the Chilton Paints have been tried, it has been found that they effectively cover from 30 per cent. to 40 per cent. more space than a like quantity of any other paint. Moreover, being seven times ground in all shades there is an absolute uniformity of color and an absence of streaking particles. They are made with Linseed Oil and the best turpentine drier and give a beautiful finish. Get a pound can and see for yourself. New York and Boston.

NEW HOUSE OF WORSHIP OPENED.

SERVICES HELD IN THE CHURCH OF THE MESSIAH AT AUBURNDALE.

The doors of the new church of the Messiah in Auburndale were thrown open to the public Sunday for the first time. Nearly every seat in the audience room was occupied at the services. The sermon was delivered by Rev. William N. Ackey of Rhode Island.

In the afternoon special services were held, which were attended by the members of Dalhousie lodge, F. A. M., in a body, partly as a mark of respect to Rev. Mr. Ackey who is a past grand master of the state of Rhode Island, and as a tribute to their late brother, S. K. Harwood, in whose memory a beautiful window has been placed in the new church, the gift of the lodge. It represents the figure of St. John the Evangelist. Over the head there is an open Bible and on either side of the figure the columns of the temple, symbolizing masonry.

The following was the order of exercises at the afternoon services:

Hymn, "The Church's One Foundation," choir; reading of psalm, Rev. G. W. Shinn, D. D.; the first lesson, Rev. Calvin Cutler, pastor of the Auburndale Congregational church; the second lesson, Rev. T. E. Bishop, pastor of the Auburndale Methodist church; the creed, Rev. H. Usher, Monro; the litany, Rev. John Matteson, rector of the Church of the Messiah; prayer, Rev. Mr. Monro; hymn, "Rise, My Soul," choir; sermon, Rev. W. N. Ackey, subject, "Life Building Upon Sure Foundations."

The new church structure was erected from plans of Mr. J. Foster Ober. The architecture is of the gothic school. The material used is brown red sandstone. The inside dimensions are 100x44. The principal entrance is through a gothic tower 70 feet in height, located at the southeast corner of the building. The interior finish is hard wood, and the roof is supported by heavy hard pine trusses resting on fluted columns. The cost was about $15,000.

There are to be a number of memorial windows. One, already in position, was presented by Mr. E. B. Wilson of West Newton, in memory of his daughter, Mrs. G. S. Lincoln.

Other gifts to the church are a handsome iron pulpit, from St. Agnes Guild; a beautiful reading desk; chancel rail from the Kings' Daughters, carved hymn board from Mr. G. F. Pond, and a brass book rest, the gift of Miss Webbturn in memory of her father, the late John Davis Washburn.

An Opera Bouffe Princess.

(Springfield Republican.)

Theophilus H. Davies, manager for the Princess Kaiulani, has scored his first success. We read that on Monday afternoon the princess called on Mrs. Oliver Ames in Boston, and that, returning to the Brunswick, she "received a throng of callers" from 4 to 6 o'clock. Among those callers were Mrs. Oliver Ames and a lot of Howes, Peabodys, Brewers, Philipsees, Walkers, Chandlers, Wessels, Gilmanes and Wellises—all belonging to the Back-bay society. In thus obtaining social recognition for the Hawaiian princess from Boston's most aristocratic set, our astute friend, the Britisher, gave a display of managerial strategy upon which neither Maj. Pond nor the lamented Phineas Taylor Barum could have improved a little bit. We are very far from offering flattery to Mr. Davies when we say: "Theophilus, thou art 'the stuff.'"

She makes a very pretty picture—this dear, charming girl with the large, dark eyes—sweetly asking bluff old Uncle Sam to give back her throne. And innocent as can be! We predict a large sale of the photographs for which Theophilus arranged a sitting on Monday forenoon—again that shrewd Theophilus! Let no one call that man a fool. Ever he knows the great American people. Maj. Pond has been given, him points. Were it as easy to regain as to lose a throne, no one could doubt that Mr. Davies' efforts in behalf of his ward would be crowned with success. But what is the exact status of the Princess Kaiulani? Where does her "royal" blood come in and how much of it has she? And if her blood is "royal," is it entitled to our special consideration?

Kaiulani's father was a Cleghorn, the son of an obscure Scotchman or Englishman, who started from Australia to California during the early days of the gold fever, and got no farther than Honolulu. Kaiulani's mother was a Hawaiian woman named Likelike Pakea, and when she married Cleghorn neither Likelike nor her husband anticipated that they would ever find a perch on the royal roost. But one day, it happened that the last of the Kamehameha, an ancient dynasty that had ruled over Hawaii and the neighboring islands for many generations. Who should be king, now that Lunalilo was dead? They held an election, and he was chosen who was named Kalakaua, the son of Pakea? A Hawaiian who has descended from a native family having "chieft" blood. But there was no "royal" blood in Pakea's veins, and his son and daughters and grandchildren, among whom must be numbered Kaiulani, could not have had any. George Parsons Lathrop, who claims familiarity with this theme because he was born in Honolulu, even casts doubt upon the existence of any real blood relationship between old Pakea and his son and daughters, by reason of the very prevalent custom among Hawaiians of giving away their children at birth.

Kalakaua, whatever his birth, became king one fine day, and immediately Liliuokalani and Likelike, his sisters, became royal princesses, whereas before they had been about as obscure as native Hawaiians at Honolulu could be. King Kalakaua made his sister, Liliuokalani, his heir, and she appointed as her own daughter of her sister, now known in aristocratic Boston and elsewhere as the Princess Kaiulani. To appoint a successor was constitutional and proper, but after the overthrow of Liliuokalani by the people of Honolulu, the claim of her successors passed away with the old regime, and cannot be vitalized again unless the revolution is defeated and the old line as represented by the ex-queen re-established.

There are hundreds of educated red men in the West whose blood is "royal" as much as Kaiulani's. We have heard of many Americans of Irish descent whose ancestors were once real kings in Ireland. Their "rights" are quite on a par with Miss Cleghorn's. If the young woman has any political potentiality, it inheres to her personal popularity among the Hawaiians and to her capacity as a convenient figure-head. She might prove useful in the establishment of some sort of stable government at Honolulu under an American protectorate. But her "royal" blood and her "rights" are of the opera bouffe type, and in urging them upon the American people Theophilus is playing the part of the opera bouffe "comedian" who has learned to fall on his stomach four different ways.

Watertown's New Church.

More than a year ago a subscription was started for a new Methodist church building in Watertown, which had for a long time been needed, and the sum of $16,000 was soon obtained, with the understanding that, when $20,000 had been pledged and $15,000 paid in, work on the structure should begin at once. Through some excellent and vigorous effort on the part of the Ladies' Aid Society, one of the finest lots in town—a piece of high ground on Mt. Auburn street—has been purchased at an expense of $8,000, and on this site the new church will be erected. The plan presented by A. P. Haynes, architect, of Watertown, was decided upon. The new building will be constructed of Milford granite, with brownstone trimmings. It will be cross-shaped, with a chapel in the rear having a seating capacity of about 300. The estimated cost of the building is $20,000. The building committee consists of the pastor, Rev. G. M. Smiley, George E. Priest, L. S. Cleveland, F. J. Berry, Chester Sprague, R. H. Paine.

RAILWAY ON CENTRE STREET.

Strong opposition was developed at the hearing on Monday evening before the board of aldermen, to having any railroad on Centre street. Any one who will stand on the street and watch between the depot and Mt. Ida street, any morning or afternoon, when people are going to or coming home from Boston, will see the objections to having the middle of the street taken up by a street railway. There is now hardly room enough for the teams, the street is a narrow one, and all the people on the south side of the track who have teams have to use that portion of the street.

An electric railway would cause great confusion and annoyance to the drivers, and would be a constant source of danger. Teams now stand all along the street waiting for the cars, in the afternoon, many of the horses being too frisky to make it safe to drive them into the depot yard, and such horses are much more afraid of electricity than of steam cars. With a railroad on this street, all families who wanted to get to and from the depot in safety would have to exchange their fine teams for sober plums, warranted not to be afraid of anything.

Another objection is found in the narrowness of the street, which is narrower in spots than Washington street, and any one who has driven over that street the past week would not have to be told that a street railway in a narrow street makes driving upon it almost impossible in such a winter as we are having now. Many people who have to drive to West Newton now go by way of Pearl or some other cross street and Watertown street, as they find that they save time in spite of the greater distance.

A railroad from Newton to Newton Centre would be a great convenience, but there should be a wide street to accommodate it, and it is not easy to see how the greater part of Centre street could be widened. The houses are built near the street line, and taking all the land available by making the houses stand fish with the sidewalk would not make a very wide street, and would also be a very expensive proceeding. Centre street is a main thoroughfare, but it is only wide enough for the present carriage travel.

There is said to be a strong sentiment among the property owners on Waverly avenue, in favor of having the street railway on that street, and if the aldermen would give the land necessary to make the street of reasonable width there would probably be no objection to having a railroad run to Newton Centre by that route, and the cars could run to the corner of Tremont street, without any objections, and this would be about as convenient as the Centre street route, and would also open up much more vacant land for building purposes. Street railways are a necessity, we suppose, but the general sentiment seems to be that there is no need of giving up our most popular and beautiful streets to them, when a route a little more round-about would serve the patrons of the street railway equally well, and probably bring them more custom. A street railway on a narrow street is a nuisance, at the best, and the board of aldermen should be very slow to grant a location until they are convinced that it is an absolute necessity. Immediately after the cars begin to run there is an imperative demand for a widening of the street, and it might be a good thing to ask the company seeking such location, what they will contribute to the expense of such street widening.

When Alderman Johnson was in the city government he used frequently to advocate that a company seeking a valuable franchise in the streets of the city should be required to pay for it, and this idea has already been adopted in some cities, when a certain small per cent of the gross receipts is required to be turned over to the city treasurer. If the companies make such large returns on this cost as some of them are reported to be doing, such a provision would not be unfair, and this money could be laid aside to help pay for the necessary widening of the streets on which the street railways run.

THE CITY PATRONAGE.

The dispensation of official patronage is always liable to cause dissatisfaction, unless the desire to divide it fairly is very manifest, but the city official who gives out the city printing evidently makes no attempt at any division. It has been evident for some time that the printing offices attached to the two Newton papers were getting very little of the city work, and that little was growing less every year.

Some three or four years ago there was something like a fair division, but the policy that has prevailed the last three years is illustrated by the auditor's reports for 1890 and 1891.

In the first year, for instance, the GRAPHIC obtained the city printing by making the lowest bid, but outside of this the GRAPHIC had less than $200 worth of city printing, and the Newton Journal about the same amount, while the Fanning printing company collected the handsome sum of $1751.31, from the city. Of course each paper had city advertising, which it would have whether it had a printing office or not, but as each paper has as large an amount invested in its job printing plant as the Upper Falls concern, and the proprietors of the papers each pay as large an amount of taxes to the city, and what is of main importance, do as good work, such a "division of spoils" is curious, to say the least.

In the year 1891 there was an even greater lack of any attempt to divide things equitably. The Fanning company collected from the city $2337.98, as shown by the auditor's report for that year, of which some $600 was for the printing of the city documents, obtained by them as the lowest bidder. The Newton Journal and the GRAPHIC each had less than $200 of the city printing or less than one-tenth of what was given to the Fanning company.

The Auditor's report for 1892 is not yet published, but the books of the two Newton papers show that they did an even smaller amount of printing for the city than the year before. It seems to make no difference whether the candidates of the papers are elected to the City Council or not, or what efforts they make after election to secure a fair division of the city printing. Two years ago a certain alderman, who felt friendly to the papers, made several ineffectual attempts to stem the tide and divert some work to this section of the city, but he at last had to give it up, as there was always so much difficulty made, or so much fault found if anyone but the favored printer did a job. This year an alderman who was somewhat indebted to one of the Newton papers for his election was heard to remark when a job of printing was under discussion, "Oh, send it to Fanning," and naturally it went to Fanning.

We do not pretend to understand why one printer should have such a "pull" at City Hall, to the exclusion of all the rest, or why such discrimination is used against the offices of the two Newton papers. It is the tax-payers' money that is used to pay for the printing, and not the money of the City Clerk, Isaac F. Kingsbury who gives it out. which would seem to be a good reason why no one firm or office should be given a monopoly of the city patronage.

LOOKING AHEAD.

It is wisely suggested that the work of parcelling out streets for electric railways should be handed over to a commission, of the nature of the boulevard commission, who will draw up some systematic plan for the whole city, which shall accommodate the greatest number of people and at the same time save for the use of the general public the handsome streets. Railroad companies of course desire a location where there is the best prospect of an immediate return on the capital invested, but it is hardly necessary to point out that such a policy may not prove an advantageous one for the city. When a track is once laid on a street it will be too late to find fault, or to find that the city would have been benefited if a different street had been chosen. Street cars are the people's carriages, and find their patrons chiefly among those who do not keep carriages, and many real estate men say that a car line on a street built up with handsome residences would not add to the value of such property. It is only necessary to visit Boston, to see the effect of putting street car lines on a residence street. The street railway locations in Newton present a problem which calls for the wisest consideration on the part of the city council, to protect the present and future interests of the city.

In the case of Washington street, for instance, the problem was an easy one, it is largely a business street, with few costly residences, and street cars would prove a benefit to the whole street. The building up of the vacant land along the route, between the centres of population, of which so much was said, has not materialized yet, it is true, but real estate owners have been waiting to see what was to be done about widening the street and this has been waiting for some decision in regard to the abolishment of grade crossings. From West Newton to Lower Falls, Washington street is bordered mostly by vacant land, and could be widened at small expense, provided the aldermen are wise enough to take advantage of their opportunities. A wide avenue there would double the value of the land, and a street car line would prove a benefit, instead of a detriment. Watertown street is another location where a street car line would be of benefit, but in the case of an old and settled street like Centre street, where the expense of widening would be enormous, where many of the houses are built near the street line, the request of a railroad company for a location upon it calls for the most serious consideration of the results that would follow. A large portion of the wealth of the city is located along this street, and there are but few vacant sites for building purposes, unless the present residents should decide to move away from the noise and cut up their large estates for building lots. These are some of the considerations why those who hastily signed the petition have on further consideration changed their minds and now oppose any location on that street.

A NEW BOULEVARD.

The gratifying announcement is made that the new boulevard from Chestnut Hill to Newton Centre is practically assured. This means a rapid development of that section of the city and probably the history of the Beacon street boulevard in Brookline will be repeated. There the real estate increased in value 300 per cent. after the boulevard had been laid out, and the new Newton boulevard is right in line with this development, and will be practically a continuation of Beacon street. The land owners have been wise enough to see what will be to their own advantage and have agreed to give the land for the purpose, and the proposition will soon be submitted to the Newton city government.

The outline of the plan is as follows: The boulevard will be 125 feet wide and will start at Centre street opposite Grafton street, and run parallel with Ward and Beacon street to Hammond street, at Montvale, crossing Grant avenue, and thence run to South street, connecting with the boulevard which Boston will build.

A syndicate, with the formation of which Mr. A. D. S. Bell has had much to do, owns most of the land, and it is due to his energy that the project has been carried through. The syndicate are ready to give the land needed, and so are the other holders along the proposed route.

Beside the driveways there will be reservations for electric cars, so that Newton Centre and region beyond will be given direct and rapid transit to the city. This has long been desired by the residents of that beautiful village, but no agreement has been reached as to the best route. Now that the owners of the land offer to give the land, it is believed that the city will accept the proposition and that the street will soon be a reality.

A vast amount of beautiful land will be opened up by this boulevard. Newton has just begun to feel the impetus which is coming from the building up of Brookline, and her people are awakening to the necessity of taking advantage of it by proper preparation. To prepare the way, an able commission has been appointed to plan a system of boulevards, which shall adequately meet the demands of an increasing population, and they will probably consider the feasibility of extending this boulevard through to Lower Falls.

Electric cars on such a route would serve a useful purpose, as the land is about half way distant from the railroads on either side of the city, and would thus make all this land easily accessible.

The question is often asked what arrangements the Newton & Brighton street railway company can make with the West End for the transfer of passengers at Oak Square. One can ride from that place into Boston for five cents, but if another five cents is required to ride from Newton to Oak Square, the cost of the round trip would be greater than to go in by the steam cars, at the rate at which 100 ride tickets are sold. If one five cent fare would cover the cost of a passage from Newton to Boston, that would be in the direction of cheaper transportation, and would prove a benefit to the city, but in that case it is difficult to see where the Newton & Brighton road would make any money. The old plan of extending the West End line to the Newton depot had this advantage, of offering one continuous passage for a single fare.

The condition of the sidewalks the past week would have been a disgrace to a settlement in the backwoods. Slush and deep were left on the walks, through which every one had to wade, when a few minutes' work by each abuttor would have remedied the matter. Here and there an abuttor cleaned his walk, but the most of them evidently decided to show the city council just what would result from the lack of an ordinance. Bad as the condition is in Newton, it is worse in the Centre, Highlands and Auburndale, whose representatives not only oppose having clean walks for themselves, but also oppose any other section of the city having better walks. Such a disgraceful condition of the sidewalks was not known even under the old town government, when there was an ordinance, and it was also enforced. If all the people who are growling so loudly would growl to the representatives from their wards, the ordinance would be passed in short order.

THE strong opposition developed against any change in the tenure of office of the heads of the city departments has killed the scheme to have the city charter amended, and it received its quietus Monday night, by a vote of 4 to 2 in the board of aldermen. As the GRAPHIC said at the time the scheme was presented, the bill was hastily drawn, and the more the people thought it over the less they liked it, and the communication published in the GRAPHIC and the Boston Herald last week stated the arguments against the change so strongly that the aldermen could do nothing else than vote against it.

ONE excellent move that was made at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen, Monday night, was Alderman Thompson's motion for the establishment of an inspector of buildings. Such an official is needed in Newton, and the office would be of value to the city, if the occupant is given power sufficient to make himself respected.

A STREET railway is like a boil, every one is perfectly willing to have it on some other fellow.

A Plea for the Little Ones.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC: Will you kindly allow me to say a few words in behalf of the children? I dearly love them and am the mother of four, am interested in all their work and pleasures, but I wonder if there are any mothers who agree with me that evening entertainments are injurious to the health of these little ones; it sometimes seems to me that I stand alone in these convictions, when I see night after night these gatherings which call the children out and keep them anywhere from six to eleven o'clock. My little daughter, twelve years of age, thinks it very hard to be deprived of these good times when all her mates are enjoying them to the fullest extent, and it grieves me to deny her, but when I look into the faces of these little friends and see the pale cheeks and hollow eyes, I feel that these dissipation are undermining their health; would it not be better, if the children must have parties, to have them at an hour when their health at least will not suffer?

Another question arises—how can these children who go about so often accomplish their work at school? I am speaking particularly of grammar school children; of course there are a few very bright ones who always have their lessons well learned, but I am confident that the majority of those who are out evenings and whose minds are distracted by all sorts of outside attractions, cannot do good work and give satisfaction to their teachers. How often do we hear parents say "It was not so in my day," but we do not want to deny it, little ones as in those days, but can we not arrange their entertainments with more regard for their health? A MOTHER.

A TEST OF BOWLING SKILL.

NEWTON'S INDIVIDUAL TOURNAMENT A BIG SUCCESS.

Wednesday, for the first time since the organization of the Massachusetts Amateur Bowling League, the experts of the various clubs represented in its membership came together in matches for the individual supremacy. The opportunity was afforded by the bowling management of the Newton Club, which arranged an invitation tournament, offering prizes for the winner, the runner-up and the bowler making the highest 10-frame score.

These clubs sent bowlers: Waverly, Casino, Salem, Kernwood, Oxford, Allston, Arlington, Melrose Highlands, Jeffries, Neighborhood, Old Dorchester, Melrose Social, Vesper, Melrose Athletic, Jamaica Plain, Central of Somerville, B. A. A. and Lowell Highlands. More than 1000 persons were present.

The first matches in the preliminary round were started shortly after 1 p. m., and the finals were completed in the evening. The scores were rather small, but this is accounted for by the fact that new pins were used, and the alleys given a coating of oil which rendered them less fast than under ordinary conditions. In the preliminary, first and second rounds only two strings were rolled. Three were rolled in the semi-finals and finals.

The prize for the winner of the tourney was a handsome decanter, with jug of cut glass overlaid with silver, delicately ornamented with hand engraving. The prize for the runner-up was a pearl pin surrounded by tiny diamonds in an exquisite gold setting. The prize for the highest 10-frame score was an oak and cedar cigar case, with oxidized silver trimmings.

E. H. Gray of the Waverlys and Warren Hill of the B. A. A. met in the finals, and Gray not only captured the winner's prize, but also won the special trophy for the highest 10-frame score—188. He rolled in great form in the concluding round, had several lucky falls on his first balls and added still more to his scoring by ball work, missing very few chances for spares. Hill was a little handicapped in the concluding strings, as he had previously rolled six in succession, while Gray had a chance for a rest, having been first drawn to play in the semi-finals.

A red-hot match in the semi-finals was played between Merrill and Gray, the former losing by a small margin. Plummer also rolled well. He made his top 10-frame score in the second round, knocking down 186 pins in the second string in the match with S. T. Whittier. This total was within two pins of the best individual score of the tourney.

The prizes were presented by Mr. Samuel L. Powers in behalf of the Newton Club. The recipients of the handsome trophies were loudly cheered, and expressed their acknowledgements in the customary manner upon repeated call for speeches.

The scores in detail are given below:

—Mr. J. H. Noyes and family remove next week from Bowers street to Highland avenue.

—Dalhousie lodge, F. and A. M., conferred the third degree on five candidates Wednesday evening.

—Gen. Hull Lodge, A. O. U. W., will offer the degrees on three candidates next Tuesday evening.

—Rev. E. E. Davidson has returned from Bloomsdale, Pa., where he has been conducting a series of revival meetings.

—Mr. George Martin, who has been home for a short stay, left this week on an extended business trip through the West.

—Captain B. F. Gilbreth is seen again on the street and at his club and his friends are glad to know he has recovered from his late illness.

—The Neighborhood Club will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Soutie tomorrow evening at their residence on Brooks avenue.

—The N. L. H. C. meet with Mrs. Lodge, March 1. The next meeting will be at the residence of Mrs. Shirley, 21 Boyd street, Newton, March 15.

—Mr. A. A. Savage and Mr. C. F. Shirley will represent the Newton Club in the National bowling tournament to be held in the Casino building.

—The topic of the debate at the session of the High School Lyceum tomorrow (Saturday), evening 12, is: "Shall Capital Punishment Be Abolished?"

—The ever popular "Shaugraun" will be given at the Lyceum, next Friday evening, by the Newton Young Men's Association, with a fine cast, and new scenery.

—The annual meeting of the Universalist Ladies' Sewing Circle was held Thursday afternoon. There was the usual social features and a supper following the business session.

—The Universalist Y. P. S. C. will hold a union meeting with the Universalist Y. P. S. C. of Waltham next Sunday evening, March 12, at 5.44, at the Church of Our Saviour, Main street.

—Mr. Henry F. Ross suffered internal injury when he was thrown from his carriage so violently a week or two ago and has suffered much in consequence, he hopes to take a much needed rest soon.

—Mrs. Caroline Oliver of Otis street was 89 years of age Monday and received her friends informally. She was the recipient of many congratulations and had besides many useful gifts, which will serve as a pleasant reminder of the occasion.

—Mrs. Elijah Brigham has been very ill for many days, she is in her eighty-fourth year, a bright, active lovable neighbor and friend despite her declining years. Her family have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends in their anxious watching.

—Mrs. Mary R. Martin has been suffering from a serious throat trouble which has kept her home and she has been greatly missed. There are few who could fill so large a place well, and it is hoped she will soon be equal to her duties again.

—Dalhousie lodge, F. and A. M., attended the opening services in the Church of the Messiah Sunday afternoon. The lodge has been placed in position in the new church edifice in memory of the late S. K. Harwood.

—On the 14th, the guild will have a "Spanish afternoon," papers will be presented by members who have studied and personally enjoyed travel in that land of romance and it will, without doubt, be a delightful hour and a large attendance is anticipated.

—The Newton Club billiard and pool tournament is a great success this season and some very interesting matches have been rolled. One of the close ones in the pool tournament was rolled last Saturday evening between Messrs. Fearing and Fitzpatrick, the latter winning in a 50 point game by a margin of only 5.

—The Chaloner exhibition just ended in Providence, R. I., was a successful one and visited by a large number of art patrons and artists of that city as well as Bristol and Fall River. The watercolors sold went into some of the most finely appointed homes of the lovely old university and it is expected that the Newton exhibition will take place in April.

—The Young Ladies' Missionary Society of Eliot church is to give an entertainment in the chapel, Tuesday, March 14, at 7.45 p. m., in aid of both Home and Foreign Missions. The program will consist of eastern customs and costumes. Tickets may be obtained at Hubbard's drug store, price fifty cents. Ladies are asked to remove their hats.

—The water department has moved into their new pipe yard and building on Watertown street. The city will probably sell the old building on Austin street. The new building is heated by steam, and a water motor is being put in to run the machinery. The stable for horses is in the second story, and has ten stalls and a box stall. The office and work rooms are in the basement.

—The amusing farce, "The Only Young Man in Town," was presented by the Goddard Literary Union Tuesday evening in the Universalist church parlors. The cast was an exceptionally good one and the performance was marked by a smoothness and dash which is not always to be noted in the histrionic efforts of amateurs. A musical program was also a pleasant and enjoyable feature of the entertainment.

—At the meet of the Newton High School Athletic Association in the grill hall Mar. 17, a specialty is to be made of track events. Raised sections have been placed in position for the race course, to facilitate getting around corners. The program this year will offer an unusually large number of attractions and lovers of amateur sport will be provided with an entertainment of a very interesting and enjoyable character.

—The details of the invitation bowling tournament on the Newton Club alleys Wednesday are given elsewhere in this paper. It was a very successful one and the management is to be congratulated. Bowling has been given its greatest impetus through the active, energetic policy of the Newton Club, and its sport in this state owes much of its development and present lively interest to those men who started the ball rolling when the old alleys were first introduced to the more antique belongings of the Gen. Hull mansion.

—The regular meeting of the Goddard took place Tuesday evening, the church vestry was well filled and listened to a very fine program, which consisted of a piano solo by Carrie Curtis, a song by Mrs. Chas. Cunningham, a piano solo by Miss Rose Cunningham, a song by Miss Alice Barlow with Miss Lena Barlow piano accompanist on the piano and Master Fred Barlow on the violin, a piano solo by Miss Thelma Park. The literary part was a recitation by Carrie Curtis, a recitation by Mr. H. G. Tuckerman and a farce "The only young man in town," by Mr. Ed. Willey and the Misses Calley, Park, Wellington, Curtis, Fisher, Trotter and Williams; all the parts were well taken, evidently giving much satisfaction to the audience.

—At the annual meeting of the Newton Co-operative bank on Tuesday, the old board of directors and officers were elected without change, with Mr. Francis Dewson as President and Mr. J. Cheever Fuller secretary and treasurer. $11,000 was sold at 5 cents premium and the 10th series of shares was opened and 900 were sold. There are only 100 left, and those desiring them should make an early application. The next series will be opened in September. About 100 new depositors have been added this month.

—There will be a Public Meeting, under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Society, in the Universalist church, Wednesday, March 15, commencing at 10 a. m. and continuing through the day. This is to be a basket meeting, and all those who attend must provide themselves with lunch. The following is the order of exercises: 10 a. m. Short Praise Service; 10.15 a. m. Practical Talk by the President, Mrs. J. A. Patterson; 10.45 a. m. Address: Speaker to be announced; 1.30 p. m. Praise Service; 2 p. m. Address, Rev. C. R. Tenney; Topic: "Systematic Giving." 2.30 p. m. Address, Rev. G. G. Hamilton, Shawmut church; Topic: "Woman's Work in Our Church." The talks and addresses will be followed by general discussion. 3 p. m. Address, Pres. E. H. Capen, topic, "The Needs of the Lady Students in Tufts College."

—The C. C. C. subscription party on Tuesday afternoon was a very pleasant affair, and the three mysterious C's proved to have a very practical value. Chocolate, Chat and Chink, and there is the enjoyment of the hour and avoidance of the tedious work of a fair and the object gained of getting the necessary funds to carry on the good work of the Guild. Mrs. S. W. French sang charmingly and Mrs. Geo. Cook received the subscriptions smilingly and over all the genial presence of the president shed its happy influence.

In the dining room, as in the church parlors, plans and difficulties lent a charm of color and interest to the occasion. Mrs. J. A. Patterson, assisted by a perfect "rose-bud garden of girls," Misses Hill, Martin, Churchill, Drury, Sacker, Milliken and Macomber, while matronizing in that department were Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Morehouse and Mrs. Macomber. Members unavoidably absent still have the privilege of sending their gifts to the treasurer assured that it will all be "counted in."

Mr. Winslow will be remembered from his former connection with the Oread Institute."

—The Gospel meetings conducted by Rev. E. E. Davidson, have been held daily this week in the Congregational and Methodist churches. The attendance has been good and a great deal of interest manifested. They began with a united communion service, Sunday morning. The Congregational church being quite full. On Tuesday the meetings are all in the Methodist church. The subject of the evening sermons next week will be as follows: "How do we know the Bible is true?" Tuesday, "Eternity," Wednesday, "Hell," Thursday, "Heaven," Friday, to be announced.

—From the Musical Courier, New York, Mich., 1st: New York's loss is Boston's gain, and when the Hub gets Horatio W. Parker it will add a lustrous name to its famous musical circle, which includes MacDonell, Palmer, Chadwick, Fogg and Nerin. Parker will leave the organ bench of Holy Trinity, Madison avenue and Forty-second street, May 1st, to become organist and choirmaster at a princely salary, the price announced is not at liberty to disclose, at Trinity church, Boston, made famous by the eloquence of the late lamented Bishop Brooks who was so long its musical director. Parker is one of the deepest of musical thinkers in this country and will not be thirty years old till Sept. 15, next. He may feel assured that his many friends and admirers here are equally sorry to have him leave, and will see that they insist upon counting him a New York man.

Lasell Notes.

The Symphony concert, as usual, was well patronized by Lasell music lovers, on Saturday evening last.

The lessons in swimming begin this week. This is a good opportunity to learn an art at once delightful and very necessary to know. Everyone ought to know how to swim.

Many of the students have been attending the lenten services at the Episcopal church, and the special services at the Methodist and Congregational churches of Auburndale.

LANGUAGE OF THE HAND.

Round nails belong to obstinate, generally stupid people.

Vigor of constitution is indicated by a long, clear life line.

Straight, good colored lines are generally favorable; very red lines indicate a bad temper.

The third finger belongs to Apollo, and its mount betokens the artistic in the temperament.

Prominence of any mount or clearness of any line intensifies the characteristics supposed to be indicated.

Long white nails are an indication of decay and trenchery; also of a feeble constitution and much sickness.

Pointed fingers indicate rapid conception and execution. They are the fingers of the poet, the novelist, the religiousist.

When the line of the head unites with the heart line, it denotes an individual whose reason is overcome by his passions.

A liver line which extends from the mount of Mercury to the mountain of the moon denotes capriciousness of character.

Napoleon, who rarely gave attention to details, but laid plans for others to execute, had very small and perfectly formed hands, with taper fingers.

The line of the liver begins at the intersection of the life line with the wrist and runs diagonally across the palm to the base of the fourth finger.

A strong heart line, broken at the ends and here and there having an appearance like a chain, belongs to the gallant and indicates many love affairs.

A bifurcation of the life line at the base, near the wrist, means mental decay brought on by severe sedentary labor. Such a sign is common among literary men and artists.

Knotty fingers, with square phalanges, are peculiar to theorists on practical matters—such as affairs of government and administration. Pascal and Descartes had such fingers.

The mountain of the moon is on the outside of the hand, opposite the thumb, and just above the wrist. When this mount is prominent, the indication is of a sentimental disposition.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

American innovations travel rapidly. A kite shaped track is being built at Leeds, England.

Goldsmith Maid won more money and trotted more heats in 2:30 than any horse, mare or gelding that ever faced the starter.

The California Turf says that Santa Clara county of that state will be represented at the World's fair by a horse made of prunes. That trotting is growing very popular abroad is shown by the fact that about 46 trotting meetings will be given in Great Britain during the year.

In daily use at the Pleasanton stock farm, California, is the sulky to which Nancy Hanks trotted her mile in 2:04. Double borrowed it for that occasion.

Walker H, the bay gelding that won a race in 2:27 1/2 at the Buffalo fair last fall, was raised by a farmer near Albion, N. Y., and worked on the farm until four weeks before he made his record.

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

If the ivory trade increases at the present rate much longer, the elephant will soon become extinct. One firm alone in Sheffield, England, last year received the tusks of no fewer than 1,380 elephants. A few years ago 800 pairs of tusks were sufficient for them.

VALUABLE RECIPES.

How to get rid of a rusty screw: Apply a red-hot iron to the head for a short time, the screwdriver being applied while the screw is hot.

How to preserve eggs: Add 2 pints of slaked lime and a pint of salt to a pailful of water. Pickle your eggs in this fluid, and they will keep for a year.

How to kill the nerve of a hollow tooth: Take half a dram of white oxide of arsenic, a dram of sulphate of morphia, mix with a little creosote and apply to the cavity.

How to start a balky horse: Take the horse out of the shafts and make him go round in a circle until he is dizzy. It is a sure means of accomplishing your purpose.

How to color dress goods red: Take an ounce of cochineal, an ounce of muriate of tin and a little cream of tartar dissolved in water enough to cover them. Boil the goods in this preparation for 10 minutes.

POWDER AND BALL.

The swords of Toledo and Damascus were so popular in the middle ages that they sold for their weight in gold.

The French military schools graduate about 650 officers annually, and about the same number are lost by death, dismissal or retirement.

GOOD NIGHT.

We hear it from a mother's knee, in echo down the stair, Ofttimes in notes of childlike glee, ofttimes at close of prayer.

We hear it at the garden gate, half whispered, sweet and low,
While lovers linger until late and loath even then to go.

We hear it said in gilded halls, where mirth and gladness reign,
Where beauty glows and music falls in captivating strain.

We hear it at the bedside, where dread pain and grief are known,
And tender ministrations share with the stricken and the lone.

We hear it when the sun of day withdraws from mortal sight,
What comfort, then, to hear and say, "Good night, dear heart," "Good night."

—Clark W. Bryan in Good Housekeeping.

TWO TENDERFEET.

The "old timer" in Colorado has a supreme contempt for tenderfoot, or newcomers. This feeling is gradually dying out, but it will never be wholly extinct until the last old timer has passed "over the range." There was a time, however, when the old timer looked upon the tenderfoot as an interloper and usurper.

Less than 10 years ago two bright young fellows from New York arrived in Colorado bearing letters of introduction to the most prominent and wealthy men in Denver. They were young men of ample fortunes and announced their intention of engaging in mining. They did not desire to purchase a mine. They wanted the excitement of prospecting. They were hale and hearty and were anxious for the experience of roughing it.

Among others to whom they brought letters of introduction was Uncle Billy Golden, an old timer, who had "struck it rich" in Leadville and was rated financially at $3,000,000.

Uncle Billy had all of the pioneer dislike for tenderfoot, but these young men were such manly, independent fellows that they soon found favor in the old man's eyes, so that one morning when they came to him and announced their intention of going to Leadville to prospect for "carbonates" the old man gave them some very valuable information.

He told them of a locality where he was confident they would find mineral. He shook them warmly by the hand at parting, and they promised to take his advice and never to forget his great kindness.

"Those boys have the right kind of stuff in them," said Uncle Billy.

A month later he received a letter from the boys. They had located a claim in the exact spot suggested by him and had named the claim the "Uncle Billy" in his honor. They were very sanguine of striking mineral, and as Uncle Billy had given them a "pointer" on this promising location they felt that they ought to show their appreciation in some substantial way, so they sent him a deed to a one-third interest in the "Uncle Billy" mine.

Two months passed by, and Uncle Billy received occasional letters from his young tenderfoot friends. They had not struck mineral, but they were expecting to do so any day.

A few weeks later Uncle Billy received the following telegram:

NEW YORK, July 10, 1882.

To William Golden, Denver, Colo.:

What will you take for the "Uncle Billy" mine? Spot cash. Answer quick.

J. MADISON WRIGHT & CO.

This telegram set Uncle Billy to thinking. He reasoned that the boys had struck it in this mine and had acquainted their New York friends with the fact. He had been purposely kept in ignorance, so that they could buy him out cheap. It was all clear to Uncle Billy. He had been through a number of mining transactions, but he had never yet been "done up by a tenderfoot," as he expressed it. He wired back:

DENVER, July 10, 1882.

J. Madison Wright & Co., New York:

I cannot make a figure without consulting my partners, who are now in Leadville. If you want my one-third interest, wire me, and I will name price.

WILLIAM GOLDEN.

That night came the answer:

Must have the entire property. See your partners and fix lowest possible price. English capitalists waiting.

J. MADISON WRIGHT & CO.

The next night Uncle Billy arrived in Leadville, and early the next morning started for the mine. He had little trouble in finding it, for the fame of the "Uncle Billy" had quietly spread throughout the camp.

"Halt!"

This challenge brought Uncle Billy to a sudden standstill. It came from a miner standing in front of the "Uncle Billy" shafthouse. As he gave the command he lowered a Winchester rifle to enforce it if necessary.

A parley ensued. Uncle Billy learned that the mine had been closed and left under an armed guard. No one was allowed on the premises.

"I am one of the owners of this mine!" exclaimed Uncle Billy.

"I can't help that," was the reply. "You can't come any farther. I've got my orders, and now you've got yours. Keep off."

"Where are young Jackson and Miller?"

"In Denver."

Uncle Billy managed to get a handful of the dirt on the dump when the sentry was not looking and made a dignified retreat.

"I see how it is," he said; "these young tenderfeet are trying to do me up. I'll show 'em a trick with a hole in it."

He hurried back to Denver and found young Jackson, one of the co-owners of the "Uncle Billy" mine.

"How much do you and Miller want for your interest?" asked Uncle Billy.

"We are not anxious to sell," replied Jackson. "We think we have a pretty good thing, but if you want our interest you can have it for $100,000 cash."

"Come in this evening," replied Uncle Billy.

He at once wired J. Madison Wright & Co.:

"Will take $500,000 for 'Uncle Billy' mine."

The answer came promptly:

"Terms satisfactory. Will leave for Denver tonight." This telegram was signed "J. Madison Wright."

That evening William Golden gave James Jackson a check for $100,000 and received a quit claim deed to the property.

Then he waited for J. Madison Wright. Four days passed. J. Madison was due to arrive. A week elapsed, and no J. Madison came.

Then Uncle Billy telegraphed the firm of J. Madison Wright & Co. and inquired about the delay. He received an answer that they did not know to what delay he referred. Explanations followed, and Uncle Billy learned that no telegrams had been sent him by the firm of J. Madison Wright & Co. "If any such were sent to him, they were forged," the telegram concluded.

"Bunkoed!" exclaimed Uncle Billy, "and by tenderfeet too."

James Jackson and John Miller were sitting on the veranda of a quaint little hotel in the south of France in the early summer of 1884. A bottle of wine and a box of cigarettes were on the table. Miller was laughing uproariously.

"You ought to have seen the look on the old man's face," said Jackson as he lighted a cigarette, "when I gave him the deed. He actually thought he was doing us up in great style. I would have liked to have seen him when he got into that sand bank which we called a mine."

"I suppose he has found out by this time that I sent those telegrams," said Miller as he raised a glass of wine to his lips. "Oh, well," he continued when he had drained the glass, "it was only $100,000, and he has more left, while we will soon have to go to work again, for we have only $15,000 left. Why, what is the matter, old man?" he suddenly asked as he observed his companion gazing at a London paper, his face pale and his hand trembling. "What is the matter, old man; are they after us?"

"Read it," replied Jackson.

"The Denver Tribune records a wonderful mining sale. William Golden, the noted Colorado millionaire and mine owner, has just sold the 'Uncle Billy' mine on Fryer hill, Leadville, to an English syndicate for $1,000,000. During the past two years this mine has produced $300,000."

Miller's face was white. His lips trembled as he said, "We've been bunkoed!"—New York World.

A. M. and P. M.

I had often wondered what the letters "a. m." and "p. m." are taken to mean by those who are ignorant of Latin—the very great majority. Not long ago I had the opportunity of obtaining some slight evidence on this point. I had been lunching at the Savoy hotel with a friend. On leaving the hotel by the back entrance my friend's attention was attracted by a notice that that entrance was closed at 12:30 a. m. "A. m.," he cried; "why, it ought to be p. m. Here, porter!" The porter came and assured my friend that, as I had in vain been endeavoring to explain to him, a. m. was perfectly right. "Of course it is," I added; "a. m. stands for after midnight, doesn't it, porter?"

"Yes, sir," said he, "that's it." Afterward it occurred to me that if a. m. stands for after midnight, p. m. might just as well stand for past midday. At any rate, it is curious that both a. m. and p. m. can each of them be understood to stand for two words of which the general sense is the same in both Latin and English.

The Italians are much better entitled to use a. m. and p. m. than we are, for they have no need to invoke Latin, and say e. g., "le due antimeridiane" and "le due pomeridiane." But they do not seem to use these letters. I myself have the impression that I have seen ant. and pom. An Italian lady whom I have consulted is quite sure that they use an. but is not so sure about pm., though she believes it to be used. In an Italian time table book I find simply a. and p.—Notes and Queries.

The Language of Animals.

There may be no dumb animals—only their voices may be out of our ear. It must be supposed that small creatures, including quadrupeds, bear sounds much more acute than are audible to us, but none of the lower notes of our scale. This is perhaps the case with cats and dogs, who can obviously communicate with one another, coming so close as almost to touch noses, but making no sound audible to us. Thus there is not such a confusion of noises as there would be otherwise. The vast difference of pitch heard by different great tribes of creatures causes us and them to have, so to speak, the world to ourselves.—New York Home Journal.

How to Measure a River.

Anybody can measure approximately the breadth of a river without a surveyor's compass or any mechanical means whatever. The man who desires to make the experiment should place himself at the edge of the stream, then stand perfectly still, face the opposite bank and lower the brim of his hat until it just cuts the opposite bank. Then let him put both hands under his chin to steady his head and turn slowly round until the hat brim cuts some point on the level ground behind him. Mark the spot where the hat brim cuts the ground, then pace off the distance, and it will be found about the breadth of the river.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Too Liberal.

Wife—Here's an advertisement in the paper that you'd better look into. It says a man is wanted, and he won't be worked to death, and he'll get paid enough to live on.

Husband—Says he won't be worked to death, eh?

"Yes, and they promise to pay enough to live on."

"Huh! Some catch about that."—New York Weekly.

A Sartorial Discussion.

The Impertinent Press.

What are we coming to if the press is going to take the starch out of everything? An esteemed contemporary—we have forgotten which one—has complained that the reports of the daily press have made the recent heresy trial appear ridiculous in the eyes of the public. The dignity and mystery of theological discussions, once so awful that angels scarcely dared to tread the platform where the discussion was carried on, have been reduced to a commonplaceness comparable to the reports of a ward meeting or a filibustering session in congress.

The impertinent press persists in treating everything and everybody in an everyday sort of a way. Even religion has to undergo the same treatment. If there is any sham or mysticism or superstition in it, it is liable to be handled as a detective handles an embezzlement. The press, as a rule, believes in pure and undefiled religion, but it wants a religion that is good for Mondays and Thursdays and Saturdays as well as Sundays.

It is complained by some Roman Catholic authorities that the press is unnecessarily meddling with the alleged controversy between the archbishops, and that the laity of the church is being stirred up by a contest which ought to have been confined to the prelates and settled by them. But everything is news, and so important a matter as alleged insubordination in the high places of the Catholic church can no more be kept quiet in these days than could the outbreak of a volcano on Manhattan island. It does indeed detract from the dignity and mystery of ecclesiasticism to have its quarrels reported in the papers, but it cannot be helped except in one way. Let quarrels cease and the press will quit its impertinence.—Springfield Union.

General Butler on His Yacht.

General Butler was happiest on the deck of his yacht, where he clad himself in jaunty flannels, surrounded himself with pretty girls and renewed his youth. If the truth were to be told, he liked to cruise in well frequented waters, where now and then a crowded excursion steamer would be met. On such occasions he was perfectly sure to be cheered heartily; he lifted his cap while the cheering was going on and then beckoned to one of the young ladies. She understood the signal, and stepping aft pulled a cord which discharged the steamer's biggest gun. Boom! It was a beautiful noise. Once more the crowd on the excursion steamer cheered, the general lifted his cap, the young ladies smiled, and the America sailed exquisitely on her way.

Innocent weaknesses were those of the old general. If he had been a bad man or a really crafty one, he would probably have attained a higher degree of power. He sought his own purposes, but not with that consummate guile, that perfect self seeking, which makes one utterly forego present purposes in order to obtain ultimate ones. Men who are a great deal worse and more mischievous than he ever was have not been abused one-twentieth as much as he.—Boston Transcript.

Cornstarch For Chills.

The unusual cold weather of the winter has made chills quite a common complaint. A woman who has suffered from the most annoying torture which this particular affliction entails reports to have found relief from a new remedy, or at least from something which is not one of the usual remedies.

"After trying hot salt and water, witch hazel, cold cream and the rest of the list," says this woman, "the idea came to me that to bury my feet in the creamy coolness of cornstarch might assuage the intolerable burning. I tried it, with instant success. Don't use a little from a powder puff. Take a bowl or dish and plunge the foot in quite to the instep and keep it thus buried for some minutes. Then dust off most of the cornstarch, and the stocking and shoe can be resumed with comfort."

This simple, inexpensive suggestion ought to be circulated. Car drivers and others whose occupation forces them to stand almost continuously are likely to be the greatest sufferers in cold weather from frost bitten feet and following chills.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

A Quaint Wedding Gift.

A watch which the kaiser gave as a wedding present to his sister, Princess Margaret of Prussia, on her marriage with Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse has a curious history. It originally belonged to Queen Louise of Prussia, the mother of Kaiser William I. The watch was looted by French soldiers after one of the victories which practically placed Berlin as a conquered city in the hands of Napoleon's troops. Being taken to Strasburg, it was a year or two later won as a prize in a barracks lottery by the cook of the officers' mess.

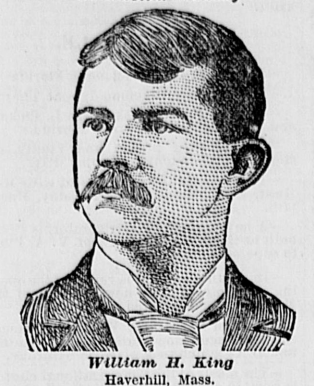

This man gave the watch to his sister, who subsequently obtained a domestic position in the palace of Potsdam, where Queen Louise, noticing the watch in the woman's possession, recognized it as her own and obtained repossession of it in exchange for a generous sum of money. The late Empress Augusta entrusted the watch to the present emperor, with an expression of her wish that it might always remain the property of a Prussian princess.—Manchester Times.

Cost of Patenting.

"I have just been figuring up what it will cost me to have an invention patented throughout the world," said Alfred Emerson, a young Kansas City inventor, "and I have found out it takes a fortune. There are on this mundane sphere 64 governments that run departments devoted to fleeing the poor inventor and pretend to give him idea protection. Sixteen of these sharks are to be found in Europe, 8 in Africa, 4 in Asia, 27 are on the two continents of America, and 9 are in Oceania. Of course the charges differ in every case; some are comparatively small, others are not so small. In the aggregate they average about $27.35 each, or a grand total of $14,560. That's a pretty sum for a man to spend to keep an idea from being stolen, isn't it?"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Hood's Cures Catarrh in the Head

William H. King, Haverhill, Mass.

"I have been a victim of catarrh for ten years. It has kept my head feeling badly with a sense of fullness and ringing in the ears. Instead of discharge from the nose, as many have, it has acted so that either one or the other of my nostrils has been tightly closed up so that

Dry Goods & Notions

For Bronchitis

"I never realized the good of a medicine so much as I have in the last few months, during which time I have suffered intensely from pneumonia, followed by bronchitis. After trying various remedies without benefit, I began the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and the effect has been marvelous, a single dose relieving me of choking, and securing a good night's rest."—T. A. Higginbotham, Gen. Store, Long Mountain, Va.

La Grippe

"Last Spring I was taken down with la grippe. At times I was completely prostrated, and so difficult was my breathing that my breath seemed as if confined in an iron cage. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and no sooner had I begun taking it than relief followed. I could not believe that the effect would be so rapid."—W. H. Williams, Cook City, S. Dak.

Lung Trouble

"For more than twenty-five years, I was a sufferer from lung trouble, attended with coughing so severe at times as to cause hemorrhage, the paroxysms frequently lasting three or four hours. I was induced to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and after taking four bottles, was thoroughly cured. I can confidently recommend this medicine."—Franz Hofmann, Clay Centre, Kans.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5. Prompt to act, sure to cure.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Another strong dramatic success is promised the patrons of the Grand Opera House next week in "Kidnapped," a play which was brought out last season. The author is Mr. D. K. Higgins, and has written into original creation for this season's presentation several new situations and climaxes. The realistic episodes of the play have also been strengthened and new ones added, and "Kidnapped," although a very pleasing and powerful play as originally presented, is now better than ever. "Kidnapped" belongs to the class of plays which are written to instruct and amuse, and build to please the masses. The play deals with many phases of life characteristic of the crowded cities, its characters being drawn from the slums, the home and the street. The author himself fills an important part in the drama and he has been successful in the selections he has made of the people to fill out the cast. "Kidnapped" is sure to draw the usually large audiences to the Grand Opera House.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—The second week, beginning Monday, March 13, of Miss Marlowe's engagement will be devoted entirely to plays of Shakespeare. Three will be presented, and special scenery brought by the company will be used in all. Miss Marlowe has been seen before in Boston in these parts, and therefore, comment is not necessary. Of her "Juliet" which she will play on Monday evening and Saturday matinee we reprint the following from Chicago: "Miss Marlowe treats Juliet from within, rather than without; gets into it so to speak, and lives it, instead of analyzing it from an intellectual basis and acting a theoretic Juliet. A more artless unaffected, and we may say, uneloquent Juliet this generation of theatregoers has never seen."—Elwyn A. Barron in Chicago Inter-Ocean. Regarding her Rosalind in "As You Like It," which will be given Tuesday and Saturday evenings, we quote from Philadelphia: "The charm of her voice and unaffected manner is not less than that of her sweet, young face. But the impersonation has charm, it has the distinction, color, and a fine quality that in so young an actress points to a great achievement."—Dr. A. C. Lambdin in Philadelphia Times. On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings "Cymbeline" will be presented. Indianapolis records her Imogen in these words: "She manifests her rights to the title of great. Her Imogen is the greatest Imogen. So certain as she lives will she entirely place her Imogen in the storied chamber where scholarship, taste and intellectual reverence keep their treasures classical."

PARK THEATRE.—Hoyt's, "A Temperance Town," still continues to attract overflowing houses to the Park Theatre. On Monday, March 13th, it will have reached its 100th performance at the Park and the management will make the event memorable by issuing to every coupon holder a beautiful souvenir of the occasion. The souvenirs will out-do all previous attempts by the theatre management and Messrs. Hoyt & Thomas in this direction. The demands in the box office continue to be so great that it is well to order seats ahead in order to secure the most favorable locations. The souvenir will be found probably the most unique and expensive one ever given in Boston. It is very appropriate for this attraction; it being an ink-well and paper weight combination of bronze in the shape of a barrel, the barrel presumably similar to the one which explodes in the cellar of Fred Oakhurst's saloon, when the temperance folks raid the place. The 15th week begins Monday next.

THE DURELL OPERA SEASON.—The debut of Lillian Durell in the test role of Marguerite in Gounod's "Faust" at the Boston Theatre, on Monday evening, the 13th inst., promises to take great prominence in the season's musical events. The success made by Miss Durell in "Mignon" last season will be readily recalled, and her appearance in "Faust" will afford her a splendid opportunity to display her gifts as a dramatic singer. She will be supported by the English tenor, Payne Clark, who makes his first Boston appearance on this occasion. Mr. W. H. Clark, the popular American basso, Mr. G. Campanari, the favorite baritone, and Mme. Lizzie MacNichol Vetta the eminent contralto. The engagement of the Durell Company is for only a single week, and will include the reappearance of Miss Durell as "Mignon" as well as the production of "The Bohemian Girl." "Faust" will be repeated on Thursday evening, March 16, and Saturday afternoon, March 18; "Mignon" will be given on Wednesday evening, March 15, and Friday evening, March 17, and the "Bohemian Girl" is announced for the Tuesday and Saturday evening bills. Mr. S. Behrens will be the director of the performances.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE.—The return of "Jimmy" Powers and Mr. Peter F. Dailey in the comedy success of the season, "A Mad Bargain," will make the Bowdoin Square Theatre attraction for the week beginning, March 13. Since the original production of this clever piece by Messrs. J. J. MacNally and Julian Mitchell in this city, early this season, it has been enjoyed by immense audiences all through the country, and its New York run could have been continued until the end of the season without success if the time could have been got. Mr. Dailey shares the honors of the piece with Mr. Powers, and the company includes many other very clever people. "A Mad Bargain" will supply an enjoyable evening to all amusement seekers, and it should be remembered that the company remain at the Bowdoin Square Theatre only for a single week.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.—The week of March 13 at the Columbia Theatre will be divided between the presentation of "His Wedding Day" and four performances under the auspices of "The Theatre of Art and Letters" of New York. "His Wedding Day" which will be repeated on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evening and matinee made a decided hit during the past week and has attracted the usual large and fashionable audience that form the clientele of the Columbia Theatre. "His Wedding Day" does not claim a high place as a literary work, but in fulfilling its intended mission of provoking mirth it is admirable and unexcelled. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights and matinee, a remarkably strong company will produce at the Columbia under the direction of the Theatre of Art and Letters, New York, four new plays, each by a Boston author. The plays will be produced at separate performances and a public verdict invited. "His Wedding Day" was preceded by "Sweet Will," by Henry Arthur Jones, and made a hit.

CHAS. J. RICH'S BENEFIT.—The annual benefit that is tendered Assistant Manager Chas. J. Rich of the Hollis Street Theatre is always a notable event in the theatrical annals of Boston. Mr. Rich has made himself immensely popular with all people with whom his business brings him in contact. He has been intimately connected with the Hollis Street Theatre since its corner stone was laid, and by his unvarying courtesy to all patrons, his strict business methods and his natural many qualities have made friends for him with the vast number of people who attend the Hollis every year. His benefit is the event of every season and it has been his aim to accumulate on this occasion an array of specialists who gladly volunteer their services and who would, if their salaries formed a portion of the expense of any regular company, render it the most extravagant organization in the world. Mr. Rich's testimonial will occur at the Hollis Street Theatre Sunday night, March 12. Some of the well-known people who will appear are: Peter F. Dailey, Richard Carle, Chauncey Olcott, Wilbur quartet, John C. Rice, Sallie Cohen, W. Sweetman, "Trip to Chinatown," Bernard Delyon, Bonnie Thornton, Miss Dora Wiley, Miss Maud K. Williams, Miss Augusta Klous and John C. Mullaly's orchestra of twenty.

Children Cry for

Pitcher's Castoria.

Elderly people remember their spring bitters with a shudder. The present generation have much to be thankful for, not the least of their blessings being such a pleasant and thoroughly effective remedy as Ayer's Castoria. It is a health-restorer and health-maintainer.

For restoring the color, thickening the growth, and beautifying the hair, and for preventing baldness, Hall's Hair Renewer is unsurpassed.

For all derangements of the throat and lungs,

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the speediest and most reliable remedy. Even in the advanced stages of Consumption, this wonderful preparation affords great relief, checks coughing, and induces sleep.

Now your blood should be purified. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best spring medicine and blood purifier.

I have been a great sufferer from dry catarrh for many years, and I tried many remedies, but none did me so much benefit as Ely's Cream Balm. It completely cured me. M. J. Lally, 39 Woodward Ave., Boston Highlands, Mass.

After using Ely's Cream Balm two months I was surprised to find that the right nostril, which was closed for over twenty years, was open and free as the other, and can use it now as I could before. I feel very thankful. R. H. Cressingham, 275 18th St., Brooklyn.

Of Course You Read

The testimonials frequently published in this paper relating to Hood's Sarsaparilla. They are from reliable people, state simple facts, and show beyond a doubt that HOOD'S CURE. Why don't you try this medicine? Be sure to get Hood's.

A Druggist says.

Marvin C. Brown, Druggist, Meredith Village, N. H., says: I have sold your Sulphur Bitters for years, and I can say to most medicines, I never sold a bottle to any one who said it did not help them. They cured me of those terrible sick headaches when every other medicine failed.

Unable To Tell.

Yes, that was so. For years I suffered severely with sciatica; sores broke out all over my body, and I am unable to tell one half that I suffered. I was not able to obtain relief until I used Sulphur Bitters, which completely cured me.—C. B. Dale, 17 Allston street, Boston.

"The Blood is the Life."

Runs the old saying, and everything that ever makes part of any organ of the body must first place therein through the blood. Therefore, if the blood is purified and kept in good condition by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, it necessarily follows that the benefit of the medicine is imparted to every organ of the body. Can anything be simpler than this method by which this excellent medicine gives good health to all who will try it fairly and patiently?

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Coughing Leads to Consumption, Kemp's

Balsam stops the cough at once.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a work of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach."

CARLOS MARTIN, D. D., New York City. Late Pastor Bloomingdale Reformed Church.

Castoria cures Colic, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Eruption, Kills Worms, gives sleep, and promotes digestion. Without injurious medication.

"For several years I have recommended your 'Castoria,' and shall always continue to do so as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

—Mr. E. J. Payne of Lake avenue is somewhat improved.
—Mrs. Samuel F. Wilkins, Summer street, is entertaining friends.
—Mr. F. P. Tenney of Ridge avenue has returned from Jamaica.
—Mr. Mellen Bray is able to be out of doors after a short illness.
—Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Smith of Centre street have removed from town.
—Miss Lottie Maloney has taken a position as bookkeeper for A. H. Roffe.
—Miss Susie Arnold of Braintree will spend a few weeks in Newton Centre.
—Mr. F. T. Stuart and family of Ripley street leave town this week for Florida.
—Mr. D. H. Andrews handsome new house on Lake avenue is nearing completion.

—Rev. E. J. Young, D. D., of Waltham, will preach next Sunday at the Unitarian church.
—Congratulations are in order for Mr. and Mrs. William Ireland on the birth of a daughter.
—The regular monthly social of the Baptist society was held in the chapel on Wednesday evening.
—The wife and daughter of Rev. Mr. Hosmer of Worcester are spending a few days in Newton Centre.

—The patrons of Vachon's pool room are now contending for a gold watch to be presented to the most popular player.
—The fine Woodward property on Centre street has been purchased by Mr. Daniel F. Haggerty of Newton Upper Falls.

—Rev. Dr. Edward Abbott has recovered from his cold, and will preach in Trinity church, next Tuesday evening, Mar. 14, at 7.30.

—Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Frost, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Woodman, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Baldwin returned from Washington, Wednesday.

—Highland Degree Lodge, Daughters of Rebecca, are arranging for a Calico party to be given in Associates' hall the evening before Fast Day, April 5th.

—Prof. George Bullens' new house to be erected on Centre street, next to the Baptist church, has been commenced, men being at work on the foundation.

—Mr. William Lee Church of Pleasant street has taken a long lease of Mr. J. A. Baldwin's house on Institution avenue and expects to occupy it about the first of May.

—There are letters at the postoffice for: Miss Helen Brown, Miss E. W. Blagden, John H. Cole, H. F. Dexter, Mr. A. Dyer, Lizzie Ives (2) Chas. Noyce, I. R. Sherman Martin, Wetz.

—Mr. D. A. White's horse came home on Wednesday in somewhat of a hurry; the sleigh was in more pieces than when it went out. A member of the family had been left in the soft snow uninjured.

—Mr. John Ward, who has recently returned from an extended trip through the south and west, has been taken suddenly ill, due in some measure to the fatigue of the journey, which did not improve his health as much as hoped.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Burns of Station street celebrated their silver wedding, Wednesday evening, March 8th. A large number of friends gathered to offer congratulations to the worthy couple, the presents were numerous and elegant.

—Home Lodge of Odd Fellows, who were burnt out at Newton Highlands, have reaped some benefit from holding their meetings in this village, seven applications are being considered and several more are expected. They are occupying White's hall at present.

—Rev. F. B. Allen, superintendent of the Episcopal City Missions, Boston, preached in Trinity church, Tuesday evening, 7.30, instead of Dr. Edward Abbott, who was confined to his house with a cold. An interesting account was given of Boston Mission work during the last fifty years.

—The icy condition of the sidewalk along Institution avenue and the depot platform during the first of the week, was freely commented upon by those who journeyed across it most expeditiously or those who came to a sudden halt in this endeavor. Newton's beautiful sidewalks!

—Rev. Dr. Edward Abbott, who is to preach in Trinity church, next Tuesday evening, is the "Rollie" in the famous "Rollie Series." The books were written by his father, Jacob Abbott, for his instruction when a boy. Dr. Abbott is a brother of Dr. Lyman Abbott, editor of "The Christian Union."

—Mr. H. W. Stone and family have returned to Newton and taken one of Mr. Ivory Harmon's houses, Oak Hill. His father, Mr. Samuel Stone, is now with them. They are of the well remembered line of Oak Hill stone, being the sons of Deacon Eben Stone and Mr. Reuben Stone, now of Berkeley, Mass.

—The Christian Endeavor social at the Congregational chapel Tuesday evening, proved very enjoyable and entertaining. After the usual social features, progressive logomachy was introduced, Miss Alice Ward winning the ladies' first prize, and Mr. Percy Boynton the first prize for gentlemen. Chocolate and cake was then served.

—The parish gathering in the parlors of the Baptist church on Wednesday evening was in the line of a "Japanese Tea," and was much enjoyed. The rooms were tastefully decorated with lanterns, etc., with Japanese style of napkins and other table articles. A dozen young ladies in costume and with tones of paint to give the oriental style of face, served ice cream, cake and Japanese tea.

—Mr. Noah S. King, who was driving through Centre street last Saturday near Woodman's news depot, was followed by a dog who pulled the robe from his sleigh and started off across the street dragging it after him. Mr. King after recovering his presence of mind, stopped his horse and chased the dog until he recovered his robe. His opinion of Newton Centre people as far as dog training is concerned is said to have greatly deteriorated.

—Rev. Thomas A. Jaggard, Bishop of Southern Ohio, will preach in Trinity church next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Morning service at 10.30. Sunday school at 12. The regular evening service at 7.30 will be omitted next Sunday. The 4 o'clock service will take its place. There will be no confirmation at this service, the Bishop comes simply to preach. Dr. Jaggard succeeded Rev. Phillips Brooks as Rector of Holy Trinity church, Philadelphia, when Dr. Brooks came to Boston.

—The King's Daughters of the Methodist church gave a missionary tea and sale Tuesday evening in the church parlors. The early part of the evening was devoted to supper, which was followed by the sale of fancy articles, Chinese curios, popcorn and confectionery, each table being in charge of the little King's Daughters. Miss Cushman who has been engaged in Mission work in China gave a very interesting account of her experiences while there, and the manners and customs of the people. The proceeds of the sale will go to benefit Chinese missions.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Scudder of Floral avenue are receiving congratulations on account of the birth of a son.
—Mrs. E. J. Hyde of Boston was at the Highlands on Monday, to attend the meeting of the Chautauqua Circle.

—Mr. Francis Bellamy will lecture on "The New Americanism" at the club, Tuesday evening, March 21, at 8 o'clock.
—Mrs. R. Whight, who is now at the home of her father at South Boston, is making good progress towards recovery.

—The Lenten services at St. Paul's have been marked by good attendance. Wednesday at 4, Friday at 8. Address at each service.
—Rev. Mr. Dunning will have charge of the services at the Congregational church next Sunday morning and evening. All welcome.

—The bishop of Southern Ohio will visit St. Paul's to administer the rite of confirmation on the 14th of April, instead of upon the date first announced.
—The Boys' Club met last Wednesday and enjoyed an evening of readings and games. Masters George Stevens and Willie Abbott were elected members.

—The M. E. services will be held next Sunday in the Congregational chapel. The pastor, Rev. C. A. Shatto, will preach at 3 o'clock. Sunday school at 4 o'clock.
—Services at St. Paul's church next Sunday will be as follows: Holy Communion, 9.45; Morning Prayer, Litany and Sermon, 10.45; Evening Prayer and Address, 7.

—Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ferren, who have been spending the winter with their daughter, Mrs. Waterson, at Shelton, Conn., have returned to their home on Winchester street.
—Sunday's music at the Congregational church will include the following:
"Lead us Heavenly Father, lead us," J. Naator
"We're with us, ever with us," Dox Response, Lord's Prayer.
"Rock of Ages," Mason
Bills

—The Monday Club will hold its next meeting with Mrs. P. Nickerson, Lincoln street, on Saturday of this week, at 2.30 o'clock. A lecture will be given by Miss Annie Payson Call on "Physical Culture." There will be no meeting on the following Monday.

—A week ago Monday the Chautauquan Circle held an afternoon tea at the home of Miss E. E. Ball. Mrs. Ellen A. Ball, wife of Prof. Goodwin of Harvard College, read a paper on Athens. Delegates were present from Worcester, Malden and the various parts of Newton.

—The bowling tournament still continues at the Highland Club and great enthusiasm prevails among the members of the different teams. The knowing ones say that the teams are very evenly matched, so the result at present is very doubtful. The tournament ended April 1st, when suitable prizes will be given to the successful team and to the highest men in each class. Messrs. Leutwiler, Heckman and Spear, the gentlemen in charge, have spared no pains that the tournament should be a success in every way.

—Grace V. Christie, daughter of Mr. Geo. W. Ball of this place, has lately been granted a divorce from her husband, James H. Christie, on the ground of adultery, and has been permitted to take her maiden name, Grace Vaughan Ball. Christie is the Boston agent for Loeb & Schindler, a New York house, and does a large business. They moved here from Boston about four years ago, and since then Mrs. Christie has acquired a large number of friends who sincerely sympathize with her in her late trouble, and hope and trust that brighter days are in store for her in the future. She will continue to make her home with her parents on Walnut street.

—Through the generosity and courtesy of Hon. Gorham D. Gilman and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Tyler, the M. E. society realized a substantial sum of money as proceeds from last Tuesday evening. Mr. Gilman's lecture on Hawaii is described by Mr. Gilman as one of the most delightful and interesting lectures ever given in Newton Highlands. Maps and charts were freely used and most interesting curiosities were shown, which had been brought by Mr. Gilman from Hawaii. The National Hymn was sung by Mrs. Tyler and Miss Manson in so thrilling a manner that the lecturer himself joined in the chorus, and reminded him so strongly of Hawaii. Miss Manson also played in her own fine style Queen Kapiolani's March.

—Tuesday night was ladies' night at the club, and a large number of ladies and gentlemen were present. After enjoying the bowling alley and billiard tables, the members and their lady friends adjourned to the hall where a varied and pleasing entertainment was given. Miss Edith Nickerson gave a piano solo and Mrs. Newell and Mr. Ryder furnished the vocal music for the evening. The entertainment ended with a farce entitled the "Champion of her Sex," given with great credit by the following young ladies: Miss Heckman, Miss Kate Manson, Miss Johnson, Mrs. Brickett, Miss Levi, Miss Palmer, Miss Tarbell and Miss Logan. A lunch was served in the hall after the entertainment and all agreed in saying that it was one of the most enjoyable ladies' nights of the season.

—A large and enthusiastic company of ladies and gentlemen met at the Highland Club house, Monday evening, March 6th, the occasion being the regular annual meeting of the Newton Highlands Improvement Association, as the questions of a new school house and park were to be considered. The executive committee reported during the year 1892, eighty trees were planted and cared for, making four hundred and sixty-seven since the organization of the association in 1886, and that the fountain at junction of Walnut and Forest streets had been completed. The following list of officers were elected for the ensuing year: For president, E. R. Tarbell; vice-president, Alexander Tyler; secretary, H. W. Taylor; treasurer, S. D. Whittemore; executive committee, S. W. Jones, E. C. Hanson, M. G. Crane, Mrs. Alex. Tyler, Mrs. F. C. Johnson, Mrs. H. E. Holmes. A committee of three were chosen to draft suitable resolutions to present to the school committee urging prompt action by that committee before the city government on the great necessity for a new school house, as the present one was deemed unfit for occupancy. A committee of seven were also chosen to look into the various sites suggested for a park. Every resident should trail themselves of the privilege of becoming members of this association and help the good work along. The only requisite is the handing in of one's name to any member of the executive committee and paying the annual membership fee of one dollar.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Mrs. Paronto removed on Tuesday to Lynn.
—Officer A. M. Fuller is confined to his home by illness.

—Mrs. Shonfield of Winter street is recovering from illness.
—The Gamewell bowlers defeated the Benedicts on Tuesday evening by 59 pins.

—Rev. A. W. Jefferson of Norwood will preach at the Baptist church next Sunday.
—Miss Carrie Jones has so far recovered from her severe illness as to get about the house some.

—The next meeting of the Clover Club will be held at the home of Miss Ida Hunt, Tuesday evening.
—Mr. George H. Wright has taken a contract to cut off the standing wood on the River View Park lands.

—The new four tenement block, being constructed for Mrs. Levi C. Wade on Chestnut street, is nearly completed.
—The Hickey Paper Mill and Morse's Paper Mill have both shut down. Several rumors are in circulation regarding the cause.

—The ways of the highway department sometimes seem enigmatical, but there are always two standpoints from which to view these matters.
—A meeting, under the auspices of the International Association of Machinists, was held Tuesday evening in the old schoolhouse hall, addresses being made by O. W. Hicks and members from Boston lodge.

—Mr. Harley A. Smith has been promoted to be foreman of hose 7 in place of the late W. S. Cargill and Mr. James E. Frowbridge has been promoted to the position of assistant foreman. Joseph Temperley has been confirmed as hoseman.

—Ed. Cooper, with a score of 557 pins made in three consecutive strings, leads in the contest for the prize offered by the Quinobquin Association. Pete Coleman follows with 539 and Tom Shaughnessy with 510. The contest is opened until April 1st.

—Mr. William Lowe is about to further improve his Chestnut street property by replacing the building, now occupied by Dexter F. Johnson, with a new structure which will contain a store, dimensions about 18x20 feet and a tenement in the second story. The building will have a street front of 15 feet and will be 37 feet deep. Work will be commenced in April.

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—Mr. Richard Meskell is here from Pennsylvania on a short visit.
—Mrs. F. G. Morse has arrived home after a three months visit among relatives in the West.

—Our neighbors in Wellesley appear to be wrangling on the school question as well as the citizens in this precinct of the city, although there is quite a difference in the matters concerning each.

—The sidewalks here are in very bad condition for travelling and will continue so for sometime on account of frozen gutters. Additional help has been constantly at work since the recent heavy storms, chopping out the gutters and channels.

—Mr. Daniel Warren started to attend the inaugural exercises at Washington last week Thursday, being among a Boston party, but by a series of delays through accidents and storms, the party were delayed twenty hours, arriving at Washington late Saturday, being too late to be present at the ceremonies. Mr. Warren arrived home Monday night.

—St. Mary's church, now thoroughly refitted, and with its new channel and choir rooms, will be opened for divine service next Sunday, morning and evening. The new vested choir, singing services are at 10.45 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. The consecration of the new channel and choir rooms take place at a later day. The friends of the parish are cordially invited to be present.

—The board of aldermen were to take action Monday evening on the appointment for a master at the district court for the regular meeting, but on account of the absence of citizens here who are interested in the matter, no action was taken. A petition is being circulated and will undoubtedly receive the signatures of all taxpayers here, and will be presented at the next meeting, which is to be held Monday evening, March 20th.

—Col. Albert Clark was moderator at the Wellesley town meeting Tuesday, and the following were elected: Selectmen, Richard Cunningham, Sylvanus C. Evans, Oliver C. Livermore; town clerk and collector, Fred H. Kingsbury; school committee, Gamaliel Bradford, Jr.; water commissioner, Frank L. Fuller; park commissioner, Isaac Sprague, Jr.; auditor, Charles C. Henry; constables, Chester A. Bigelow, William Cunningham and William J. Dana; assessors, Flavins J. Lake, Herbert J. Stevens, Daniel Warren. Appropriations: School, $13,500; school incidentals, $2100; highways, $8500; poor, $2500; care town hall, $800; carrying library books, $100; printing and stationery, $800; police, $800; concrete sidewalks, $200; salaries, $2500; shade trees, $100; incidentals, $1000; new library books, $200; removal snow, $1000; watering streets, $1000; interest, $400; collection and abatement of taxes, $900; Mead's day, $100; soldiers' relief, $100; dog licenses added to library appropriation, $400; street lighting, $3500. Vote on license—No 212; yes, 59.

Lower Falls Schools.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:—
With much interest I read the report of the last meeting of the Common Council in reference to the transfer of scholars from this village to Auburndale and while much pleased at the stand taken by the member from Auburndale, was surprised at that taken by our own representative, which he must know is directly opposite to the almost unanimous sentiment of the residents of this village.

Then the president of that body resigned his gavel and took the floor against us. Why such great interest on his part for this section of the city? He evidently has allowed himself to be influenced by one side without thinking that there are two sides to every question and his remarks show that he did not look into the matter personally. He made the statement that $1900 was saved the city when that was the amount paid the former master and the very order he introduced calls for $200 to be appropriated on account of doing away with that teacher. Evidently he did not figure correctly. He believes the committee should have the power to do as they please. Really! We think that as long as we pay our share of the taxes we should have something to say about it and furthermore we propose to do. He then made the statement that Superintendent Aldrich said the children of those who submitted communications were not those to be transferred. How about the two petitions sent to the School Committee containing the names of nearly every resident and real estate owner, and which have not been heard from although sent in several months ago? I was not one that sent a communication to the City Government and my child is not yet old enough to go to school, but that does not prevent me from realizing that the children of other people are as dear to them as mine is to me and travelling as I do nearly every day on the same train as do these children and seeing the dangers to which they are exposed I feel it my duty to my friends and neighbors to stand with them and protest against this action of the school committee.

I spoke to a member of that board last fall in regard to this matter and was told that it was only a three months experiment. That three months expired last November. We do not care to be experimented with any longer and the next time such things are proposed we would like to be consulted in the matter, and when we heard a petition to that body we would like the courtesy of a reply. Certainly such a unanimous sentiment as is shown in this matter by our residents should be recognized and I believe the City Government will do so.

NEWTON.

—Pianos, Farley, 433 Wash. St., Newton

—Mr. Wallace Goodrich returned this week from a visit to New York city.

—Hair cut to conform to the features of the face at Burns' popular barber shop.

—Heber Emery sailed this week for Bermuda where he goes in the interests of his health.

—Easter eggs in great variety can be found at Paxton's, who is making special preparations this year.

—Rev. Mr. Hornbroke addressed the Lowell Unitarian Club last evening, on the subject, "What Civilizes."

—The Social Science Club will meet at Mrs. G. D. Gilman's, Baldwin street, Wednesday, March 22 at 10 a. m.

—Mr. G. W. Goddard has taken the Luther estate on Park street, intending to occupy same after improvements are completed.

—The Unitarian Sunday school Association was addressed in Boston, this week by Rev. Mr. Hornbroke, on "How to Teach Christian History."

—Samples of Phillips Brooks Easter souvenir spoons at Theo. L. Mason's jewelry store, 300 Centre street, Eliot block. Call and see them.

—The Newton Street Railway will have special cars at Newton at the close of the performance of the "Shogun" at Eliot Hall, this (Friday) evening.

—At the entertainment of the Eliot Literary Society, Thursday evening, March 23rd, the Symphony Banjo and Guitar club of Boston will give a concert.

—It is reported that the Stanley Dry Plate Company will turn their present buildings into a tenement and build a larger factory in the vicinity.

—Mr. H. E. Johnson has returned from Wood's Hall, where he has been for two months supervising a large contract for the installation of electric lights.

—In another column will be found full particulars of the china exhibit in Newton, under the management of the lady commissioners of the world's fair, for Massachusetts.

—The Ladies' Whist Club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Dr. Jewell, and will meet next week with Mrs. Whiton of Church street. A gentleman's night is talked of for the closing meeting of the season.

—Rev. Mr. Hornbroke will preach at Channing church next Sunday evening, and the following week Rev. James de Norwiche will preach, which will close the evening course of sermons.

—The Entertainment club are making extensive preparations for their final entertainment, March 23rd. Three plays will be given, "The Nettle," "A Case for Eviction" and "That Rascal Pat."

—Mr. Miner Robinson has just completed wiring the new houses of Mr. Arthur G. Jones and Mr. E. H. Brown on Franklin street, also that of Mr. F. O. Stanley on Hunnewell avenue for electric lights.

—Mr. Edward F. Barnes has rented the handsome house of Mr. N. L. Ripley on Elbridge street, to Mr. Chas. W. Shaw, of the firm of Gregory, Shaw & Co. of Summer street, Boston, on a three years' lease.

—Two very severe claps of thunder were heard about one o'clock, Wednesday morning, and then came a severe rainstorm, followed by snow soon after daylight.

—Gentle spring seems to have put in an appearance, the telephone wires suffered somewhat from the electrical disturbance.

—Miss Leslie V. Grant was one of the six young ladies who presided in the dining room, at the reception given by Mrs. A. M. Silsbee and sister, Miss Batchelder, at Watertown, Wednesday afternoon. Miss Max Sheppard and Mrs. Wright of Newton gave several vocal selections during the reception.

—Music for Grace church Sunday evening. Processional "Christian! dost thou see them?" Magificat Nunc Dimittis Solo "Saviour breathe an evening blessing" Anthem "Sweet is thy mercy Lord" Barby Recessional "Saviour again to thy Name we sing."

—The Elliott Hickory Wheel Company are said to be thinking of moving away from Newton as their business has increased to such an extent that their present buildings are entirely inadequate to their needs. No location has as yet been selected, although a number have been looked at.

—Usual services at the Methodist church next Sunday. Sermon by Mr. Brinson in the morning, address by Miss Yveta O. Greer of Pekin, China, in the evening. Miss Greer is a charming lady and greatly interested all hearers in telling of the Chinese people and her notable work in the Pekin University.

—Rev. Mr. Scott, who has purchased the Luther estate on Park street, will remove the present house and put up a $15,000 residence for himself. Rev. Mr. Scott is a retired Congregational clergyman, and his wife was Miss Dow of Charlestown, who later became a large fortune for her father, the proprietor of the Waverly magazine.

—There were large congregations at both the morning and evening services at Grace church, on Sunday. In the morning Bishop Jaggard of Ohio preached a very interesting and practical sermon, and in the evening class of 27. In the evening Bishop Talbot of Wyoming delivered the sermon and gave a very graphic account of missionary work in the far west.

—The Newton Camera Club is soon to be organized and twenty-four amateur photographers have already signified their intention of becoming members. The club will probably buy or lease a lot of land and put up a building suitable for their purpose, and the organization will soon be effected. Amateurs wishing to join should apply to Dr. E. B. Hitchcock or to Mr. Chas. Fewkes.

—A concert will be given in the Eliot chapel on Wednesday evening, March 22nd, at 8 o'clock, for the benefit of the Easter music and flower missions for the hospitals. The soloist will be Mrs. Carrie Carper Mills, contralto; Messrs. William H. Dunham, tenor; Willis Nowell, violin; Leo Schulz, violinello, and Charles F. Dennee, piano. Tickets will be sold, but an opportunity will be given everyone to contribute in aid of this worthy charity.

—The Unitarian club held its regular monthly meeting in the church parlor, Thursday evening. Papers of much interest were read by members of the club, that of Mr. Harold Hutchinson being upon Virginia Cession and of much historical interest. Mr. Arthur F. Burnett's paper was upon Music in the Church, and was very interesting. Music for the evening was by Mr. Walter Cotton, violin soloist, accompanied by Mr. A. F. Burnett as pianist.

—The out-of-town alarm was sounded in this city last Friday night as soon as the news of the Boston fire was received by telephone, and in 50 minutes the hard pull of seven miles was covered. The company, attached to engine 1, Frank Jenkins engineer, 15 men and a hose wagon, took up its position at the corner of Beach street and Harrison avenue. The men were in charge of Chief Bixby and Capt. Lyons. The Newton fire ladders performed good service and it was duly appreciated by their heroic brethren of the Boston department.

—"Rest and Let Rest on the Rest Day." Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts of Pittsburg, editor of the Christian Statesman, author of "The Sabbath for Man" and other works on sabbath rest, and honorary secretary of various societies devoted to this interest, will speak at the evening service of Eliot church, next Sunday, March 19, on the Humanitarian and Patriotic Aspects of the Sabbath Question and the Scientific Basis of Sabbath Laws, with special reference to the local status of this reform, the subject being illustrated by charts.

—Aban, Trowbridge & Co. have sold the Hastings estate at the East end of Wolcott Park, Auburndale. House and 26,000 feet of land, to Miss F. H. Barker of Boston, who will soon improve and occupy the same. They have rented the northerly half of the Gould house on Mt. Ida Terrace to Mr. I. M. Bailey of Boston. Mr. Albert Bullen takes the South half of same house. They have rented the Estabrook house on Western side of Emerson street to Miss C. J. Fenton, formerly at 314 Washington street. Mr. George L. Pearson takes the Murdock house, No. 7 Bacon street.

—A very enjoyable evening was spent by the E. O. C. N. H. S. O. at the residence of Miss Emily Stanley, 6 Franklin street. Progressive whist was played and the prizes were awarded to Miss Mabel C. Worcester and Mr. Edward E. Howard.

—Miss Grace Elkins, and Mr. Frederic Blanchard, 2nd. The party then adjourned to the dining room where an elaborate collation was served. Among those present were Misses Fennor, Worcester, Crane, B. Crane, Rusey, Elkins, B. Stanley and Messrs. Dillingham, Howard, Atwood, Wiggin, Levi, Blanchard, Waite and Mitchell.

—The hearing before the legislative committee on public health at the state house Wednesday afternoon in relation to the abatement of the Boyd pond nuisance and in connection therewith of the petition by the City of Newton of certain lands in Watertown, has had no result in the immediate solution of the legal rights involved. The committee recommended further considerations by the Newton and Watertown authorities with a view to an adjustment mutually satisfactory, laying stress, however, upon the importance of speedy action in the interests of the public health.

—The Young People's Choir of the Channing church gave an interesting evening concert Monday evening and afforded a good deal of pleasure to a large audience. The vocal work was especially fine, Haydn's Kinder Symphony being well interpreted, and the instrumental parts were taken by Messrs. Vetterbee, Miss Leslie Grant, Miss Alice Adams and Mr. Russell A. Ballou.

—The Middlesex Banjo Club had a full house at Armory Hall, Wednesday night, and their first concert was a very successful one. The club played very finely, and the leader, Mr. Browning, was in his place and to be filled at very short notice. The most popular feature was the wonderful playing of Mr. Gad Robinson, who was enthusiastically cheered, and his "Idle Wakes" and coquettish violin pleased the audience beyond measure. Miss Coates, the reader, had the honor of a recall, and Miss Grout gave pleasure by her song and Mandolin solo. Mr. Robinson was accompanied by Mr. Cooke.

—Among the Newton people who were present at the great Casino-Vesper champagne party, Wednesday evening, were Messrs. W. J. Follett, L. C. Powers, W. F. Hawley, Joseph Byers, C. B. Buswell, D. Harding, W. H. Emerson, M. N. Smith, C. H. Haskell, R. G. Elkins, H. N. Baker, Stinson, Lewis, A. F. Cooke, A. F. Adams, C. E. Roberts, A. R. Mitchell, J. I. Richards, William H. Coolidge, J. B. Fuller, Richard Andrews, A. D. Stephenson, H. S. Langdon, A. Byfield, W. F. Kimball, Herbert Condit, Chas. Taber, C. W. Hamilton, E. D. Van Tassel. The gentlemen were accompanied by their wives and ladies and some well known gowns were conspicuous in the section reserved for the Newton contingent.

—The Young Ladies' Missionary Society of Eliot church gave an entertainment in the chapel Tuesday evening. The program was of a very interesting character, comprising the following features: Voices from Heathendom, Woman's board of missions, Miss Weston, tableaux, Japanese cradle song, Miss Stone, "Pas-Pied, (Gillet), Watertown Orchestra club, pantomimes of social life, (Turkish wedding, wedding feast and afternoon call); closing tableaux, "Good Night." The society is indebted to Rev. Dillon Brinson for the management of the evening.

—The Young Ladies' Missionary Society of Jamaica Plain and others for correct representation of Eastern customs and for the loan of many valuable curiosities.

—The Newton Young Men's Association will present the three-act Irish comedy-drama, "The Shaughraun," Eliot Hall, this evening. It is the most important work that they have thus far attempted and every effort has been made to reach the ideal of an excellent presentation. The cast has been carefully distributed as follows: Captain Molineux, Thos. P. Joyce; Robert Ffolliott, Jos. J. Connor; Father Murphy, John J. Healy; Corry Kinchela, James Maguire; Harvey Duff, James Collins; Conch O'Sullivan, E. H. Farrell; Sergeant Jones, of the 41st, Edw. M. L. Fall; Sullivan, Kelly and Mangan, peasants; Howard O'Grady, Fred O'Sullivan; Arthur O'Sullivan, Art O'Sullivan; Katie Hewes, Claire Ffolliott; Miss Manie Boughan; Mrs. O'Kelly, Miss Jennie Burns; Moya, Miss Julia M. Meenan.

—A critical but appreciative company gathered in Eliot Lower Hall, Monday evening, to listen to the reading of "The Land of the Shrew" by Mr. Fredrick L. Williams, and highly enjoyed the rare entertainment furnished. Mr. Williams used not her book nor notes but recited the entire play from memory, without a single break. The play was a remarkable feat, but what was of more importance he recited with good taste and judgement, representing the different characters by a change in his voice, and giving the audience a good idea of the merits of the play. Mr. Williams is certainly one of the best of the many readers before the public and his entertainments have an educational value, besides the chance they afford to listen to a trained elocutionist. He is soon to give "Julius Caesar" before a West Newton audience.

For The World's Fair.

There will be a china exhibit at Eliot Lower Hall, Newton, Tuesday, March 21st, and at places of the Woman's Columbian Exposition Committee of Massachusetts. The hall will be open on Monday the 20th, and all ladies are requested to send their china in early as possible on a train to Boston. The exhibit is soon to be shown by Boston ladies who will select such articles as shall in their judgment best represent the work of the Newton women. These articles will be forwarded to the place of the exhibit in the women's building. The tables will be in charge of well known Newton ladies. Entertainment will be furnished by Mrs. Barber, harpist, and other talent. Admission 25 cents.

Y. M. C. A.

On Monday evening last Mr. John Baker of Watertown interested a large company of men at the Y. M. C. A. with a practical talk upon his experience as a prisoner in a Russian dungeon and a thrilling account of his journey toward Siberia and escape before reaching that place. He also gave a very interesting account of Russian life.

—Mr. George Allen, Jr., secretary of main department of the Boston Y. M. C. A., will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Meeting for boys at 3 o'clock.

—Mr. Arthur E. Patterson, secretary of the Pope Manufacturing Co., will give a practical talk at the Y. M. C. A. on next Monday evening at 7:45 o'clock upon the manufacture of bicycles. He will have a bicycle and several parts on the platform to illustrate.

WABAN.

—The Readers met last Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Reading.

—Miss Mertie Heaton entertained Miss Jenks of Natick last week.

—Mrs. Goodwin gave a luncheon to the members of the Whist Club last Monday.

—Mr. and Mrs. James Boyd of Boston were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Harlow this week.

—Now is the time when those who live on Windsor Road smile at the mud and water while walking on the dry plank walk.

—An entertainment with a dance and refreshments is to be given by the Zephyr Club next Friday evening in Village Hall. As this is for charitable purposes a large attendance is desired.

—Miss Mertie Heaton's "bonnet party" last Friday evening was a grand success. A large number were present and the sport ran high the whole evening. The bonnet trimming was especially interesting and many of the young gentlemen demonstrated that their futures should be as managers of millinery establishments. Miss Heaton deserves great credit for so pretty a party.

Easter Flowers

in great variety will be found at W. E. Doyle's, 43 Tremont street, Boston, and also at the Doyle Conservatories, 1509 Cambridge street, Cambridge. Easter Lilies, Azaleas, Hydrangeas, Spiraea, and a large assortment of decorative plants, will be at this popular flower depot.

Seeds.

The Eastman Seed Company will send their catalogue of new and choice varieties to any who write for it. See adv.

Bowdoin Square Theatre—Manager Atkinson's bill at the Bowdoin Square Theatre next week will be the new Irish play of "Kilbarney," in which Katie Emmett has been making a great success all the season in other cities. "Kilbarney" is a drama of the traditional cast, but its lines, scenes and situations are said to be very bright and original. The plot deals with incidents of life about the famous lake of Killarney in the latter part of the last century, and the story turns upon the experiences of a young Irish heiress, who has as an enemy an unscrupulous villain, who has wronged her father. A number of strong character parts are introduced which are given to Robert McNair, George Boniface, Fraser Coulter, Hubert Sackett, Harry Leighton, Nanette Haines and Grace Thorne. Elegant scenic and costume effects are introduced in the staging of the play, and some pretty musical numbers are sung by Miss Emmett, who appears both as the wronged heiress and in disguise as Terry Doyle, a blundering Irish boy. The play is announced for only a single week, and will be followed by the popular melodrama of "After Dark."

CITY GOVERNMENT.

The meeting of the Common Council Monday evening was presided over by President Weed and Councilmen Staples and Howes were absent.

After the reading of the records of the last meeting papers from the board of aldermen were acted upon in concurrence.

A hearing on the widening of Eliot street was opened at 7.45, but no remonstrants appearing, was closed.

Councilman Hatch presented a petition from J. G. Thompson and others for a fire alarm station, corner of Otis and Appleton streets. Referred.

Various petitions for sewer apportionment were received.

An order authorizing the mayor to make necessary contracts and settlements for claims arising from sewer construction to the extent of $5000, was passed.

President Weed appointed Councilman Green to fill the vacancy on the legislative committee.

The council adjourned.

The Proposed Street Railway.

To the Editor of the Graphic:

The subject of street railway transportation has been interestingly discussed the last four weeks among our sensible and wide awake citizens.

Newton is a residential city. Gentlemen and gentlemen have bought land and had houses built for their homes. They were fully aware when deciding upon locations, just where the railroad station was built and how great the distance from home to church, school, and business. These they arranged for. Many had desire and leisure to walk, others a sufficient income to own horses and carriages, or were perfectly willing to depend upon the many well furnished livery stables which are owned and in charge of respected and interested citizens.

Their homes were selected as places of peace, beauty and repose. The drives in and about Newton were perfect; the roads well kept and nothing around that need cause them to be in constant fear of accident.

Now come forward a few men with this modest request, "Will you please give us your three narrowest streets in the valley, for some street cars to accommodate us who are on the hill top, and cannot get down?" We do not intend to buy the right of way, nor care to have the city share our profits, but you will have the privilege of widening these streets after we plant our tracks. No matter how much you spoil the front yard of the abutments, perhaps after you have ruined the grounds and surroundings for homes of decent and respectable families, and the value of real estate is decreased considerably, we would then like to buy those same estates, build some tenement houses and stores, large and small.

"Many of our friends have now to walk to Oak Square, so they can enjoy an hour's ride for five cents; we would like to accommodate them with a seat in our cars and take an extra five cents for the present and later share the single fare." There is quite a bond between a small portion of Newton men and their friends in Brighton, especially on Sundays. Now how convenient it would be if they could ride, and really it would be a humane act, as often they find it very difficult to walk. Their friends could come here and would be treated well, as license laws will not allow to be any.

You wonder how a terminus in the valley will aid us. Well, we only dared ask for a small portion first, but you know that after such a wedge is admitted how very easily it will work its way, and we soon connect Newton Centre by Centre street, and eventually work its way back through Waverley avenue, then all our petitioners will have their prayers answered.

The number of narrow escapes which are of daily occurrence are many, from the bank to Bellevue street.

Has the city any hold upon a corporation to prevent its selling the right to another corporation? If not, would not this corporation sell to the West End? I hear the West End is quite desirous of reaching Wellesley.

TAX-PAYER.

Rapid Transit in Newton.

To the Editor of the Graphic:

The subject of "Rapid Transit" has reached Newton in full power during the last two weeks.

A well organized corporation proposes to run electric cars through the city and was quite surprised that there should be remonstrances made, to prevent our Garden city, the home of so many Boston merchants, being shorn of much of its beauty, peace and repose.

Doubtless there are many good reasons advanced why such a road should be allowed. First, 'tis a fine money making scheme, for the company, much more than it is for the city. I fail to see how the city has been enriched by the road through Washington street, but I hear the company is perfectly satisfied with the result.

The cry comes that we must connect with Oak Square. Why? Because a resident of Brighton Hill remarks, "That it would aid so many in his vicinity and from below who are obliged now to walk."

Then why should not the route be through Copley or Grasmere streets to accommodate these poor pedestrians, and also bring into the market land for some small houses to be built, which was another reason urged. Certainly we do not desire to accommodate the riff raff which promenade Tremont street, especially the Sunday travel. Although there was a strong cry from Belmont and Arlington streets district, that they were sorely in need of it, so perhaps it would be well to run through those streets, thence up Waverley avenue through Sargent street, as nearly all the signers of the petition, who desire and favor the laying of tracks, were residents in that vicinity and then continue to Newton Centre, as this was one of the terms, which the company had in view as soon as they could enter the wedge to open as far as Mt. Ida street. How much further the wedge would be driven after that result should be obtained was not divulged, but I know that one among them saw in the immediate future Elmwood street changed to a business thoroughfare, Warner's block demolished to widen the street and establishments a la Jordan & Marsh and S. S. Pierce at either end, and as the class of people which comes by such a road, would prefer to vote a year rather than a day on the license question, the out of the way Brook street would make a miniature Kneeland street.

I hope the need of more street railways in Newton is far distant and that the boulevard commissioners will always keep in mind that Newton is a residential city.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

COMMISSIONER E. C. HOVEY TO LECTURE IN NEWTON.

Newton, March 9th, 1893.

E. C. HOVEY, Esq., Secretary, Massachusetts World's Fair Commissioners.

Dear Sir:

Believing that the citizens of Newton would be interested in hearing about the World's Fair, with which your duties have made you so familiar, and that success your efforts have so largely contributed, we respectfully suggest that you should lecture on the subject in Newton at such time as may be convenient to you.

Very respectfully,
J. R. LEESON,
HERMAN E. HIBBARD,
SAMUEL L. POWERS,
ROBERT H. GARDINER,
GORDON D. GILMAN,
WILLIAM E. WEBSTER,
LOUIS A. FELIX,
GEORGE S. BULLENS,
WINFIELD S. SLOCUM.

309 Sears Building,
Boston, March 13th, 1893.

Messrs. J. R. LEESON,
HERMAN E. HIBBARD,
SAMUEL L. POWERS,
ROBERT H. GARDINER, and others.

Dear Sirs:

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your very courteous letter under date of March 9th, inviting me to give an illustrated lecture in the City of Newton on the subject of the World's Columbian Exposition.

In reply, I beg to say that it will give me pleasure to act upon your suggestion, and to notify you that I have made arrangements to carry out your wishes on the evening of Wednesday, the 22nd of March, at eight o'clock, in Eliot Hall.

The marked interest which is being taken by the citizens of Massachusetts in the World's Columbian Exposition is a matter of very great satisfaction to those who, like myself, are actively interested in it.

Again thanking you for the courtesy of your request, I remain,

Very respectfully yours,
E. C. HOVEY

New Racing Track for Bicyclists.

The wheelmen of eastern Massachusetts are about to have a bicycle track that will be the fastest and best in the world. It will be located in Waltham which is a center of the bicyclists of the eastern part of the state.

The track, three laps to the mile, will be constructed on scientific principles and the maker, W. E. McClintock, commissioner of roads, will be guided as to its composition by the crack racers of America. The grand stand will be a handsome structure seating nearly 10,000 people while uncovered seats will be provided for nearly as many more.

The work of building the track and grand stand will commence as soon as the snow is off the ground and will be pushed to completion so that the track will be opened on May 30 when the associated Cycling clubs will hold their spring meet. All of the crack riders of America will be present on this occasion. The track will be under the management of the League of American Wheelmen and all of the races will go on record.

The Endowment Lobby Again at Work.

We had supposed that in the collapse of the endowment swindle in this state the dishonest and demoralizing character of the operations of the various companies had been demonstrated to the satisfaction of every man worthy of a seat in the Legislature. Argument more eloquent and convincing on that subject could not be had than the rapid and crushing fall of these companies and the rascality of management, the inherent dishonesty of their constitution and the losses visited upon thousands of poor people, which have been disclosed. We had presumed that not another word was needed to send a bill flying through the Legislature which would provide that no more "business" of this character should be transacted under the seal and sanction of the state.

But it appears that of the half-hearted or more endowment concerns chartered by the commonwealth, nine have contrived to keep their feet. Their managers are of course not disposed to give up their most profitable game, and a chance of life remains. They see in the withdrawal of public attention from this evil, caused by the downfall of the companies, an opportunity to gain a new foothold and bring an abundance of new victims into the fold. They have consequently set out to stop the passage through the Legislature of a bill winding up the business of the surviving companies and prohibiting further operations of the kind. This bill is now in the Senate, and they are using every means to frighten and cajole the members to kill the measure. It is said by those on the ground that there is danger that they may succeed.

We cannot suppose it to be possible that the General Court will fail so ignominiously at this point to do a plain duty. The facts are before it. No member can now plead ignorance of the nature of the business to be outlawed. It has already left a stain on the commonwealth which years cannot efface. The state must retire from partnership in this business of fleecing the poor and ignorant within its borders. If it is prolonged beyond this session of the Legislature the people will insist upon knowing the reason why.

Two Uses of "Bishops."

(From Christian Register.)

There are some still living here who will recall a venerable divine of the ancient New England pattern, in his theology, ministrations, garb, and manner of life. Rev. Dr. Jonathan Homer, pastor of the First church of Newton, brother-in-law of Dr. James Freeman of King's chapel. He died in 1843, at the age of eighty-four, after a continuous ministry of sixty-three years. He was a quaintly interesting person in all his clerical and social ways. He was a devoted literary student of the Bible, and commentaries upon it, and of the history of its versions, gathering many treasures in his library. He prided himself on his attainments and acquisitions of this sort. Presiding as moderator over the convention of Congregational ministers in the court house, in the prayer which he offered was a sentence as follows: "We thank thee, O Lord, that we are the descendants and successors of the servants of who read the Holy Scriptures in the original tongues." This he said, for the writer of this reminiscence heard him. But a wag, acquainted with the doctor's seeming vanity in his special acquisitions, added, in a report of the prayer, "of which thine unworthy servant possesses several precious copies." This the doctor did not say. He had very pleasant and intimate relations with that much loved and highly esteemed man, of mild and gentle spirit, Bishop Griswold; and they often amicably disputed their respective Congregational and Episcopal tenets. Our older fellow-citizens will remember that some fifty or more years ago there first appeared among us, as an article of female costume, a bunch, or cushion, worn on the back just below the waist, to project the dress. This appendage, being sometimes of formidable size, was an object of criticism, generally humorous, for the man who wore it was called a "bustle." Dr. Homer it was not a commendable device. This appendage, sometimes called a "bustle," was as often called a "bishop." In one of the conversations between the doctor and the prelate Bishop Griswold had said, "I will not insist that a bishop is a title for the head of the Christian church but I think it is necessary for its perfection." "Not at all, not at all," replied Dr. Homer. "A bishop is no more necessary for the perfection of the church than it is for the perfection of the female form. It is an excrescence either way." G. E. MILLINERY FOR THE SEASON.

A STUDY OF THE STYLES—ROSES, VIOLETS AND HELIOTROPES IN ABUNDANCE.

If you ask any milliner what is to be the feature of the season, you will get but one answer, "eminence." And indeed you would not have to go far on the street before discovering the appropriateness of the answer, for eminence is a color that is sighted up to 1200 yards and is warranted to kill at twice that distance. There can be nothing more refulgent or dazzling than a maid with vermeil cheeks reflecting a rich purple glow from an eminence trimmed hat and a sweeping wide bow of the same sumptuous color. To be in the mode by the way you must speak "eminence" with a strong nasal twang on the last syllable to show that you have been in Paris. But you will do well to be cautious about wearing it, for it is not what one would call a becoming color. This is a high-colored season generally and the question arises, what will be done with all these perishable gauds when May comes and everyone starts for the World's Fair. In fact there will probably be two sharply marked periods in the spring styles this year, the splendors of Easter being followed by a more quiet and serviceable type.

Another striking feature of the season is the astonishing prevalence of roses, which are used with perfect abandon. Sometimes there will be a whole cluster of them in front, another at the side and still another at the back or under the rim. Sometimes the whole crown is a mass of roses or there may be a band of them underneath. Violets and heliotropes are also used a great deal, especially on account of their colors. Flowers easily take the lead, but there is also plenty of room for tips, the straight price of Wales effect being the correct thing. The tendency to striking effects is shown in the return to bizarre combinations of color, which strike the eye as a pronounced Wagnerian harmony does the ear. Among the most startling of these combinations are navy blue and olive green, pink and green, and emerald and green. You get used to it after a while, if you do not become color blind in the mean time. There is also a marked return to changeable or glaze effects.

There is a tendency to shape the edges are not so marked. The round hats are about the same, but there are none of the extreme styles like the large cart wheels which kept the streets so shady last year. There are a good many turbans worn and the toques that had such vogue last year are for the most part giving way to bonnets. There is also a tendency to return to the old-fashioned poke bonnet. The colors, too, are not changed in any revolutionary way. For evening the light greens, Nile green, and bright green, the light blues, pink and rose will all be favorite colors. For general service nothing will be more popular than the beige, which are pretty, becoming and useful. Red will be used sparingly, principally in dark cardinal or similar hues. Old rose will also be worn a good deal.

All the milliners are now hard at work preparing for the spring openings, and some have a large variety of the latest styles ready. A special decoration in the shape of a huge inverted pyramid of roses attracts the attention of all who visit the millinery department and emphasizes the characteristic flower of the season. One of the prettiest hats shown is of medium size and round shape with a foundation of black lace, a rim of quilled white lace, a crown of lavender straw, a band of roses underneath and a trimming at the front and back of variegated prince of Wales tips, one black and green and the other green and heliotrope. The ties are of black satin ribbon and there is a large steel buckle. The front is trimmed with small roses. Another pretty hat is of the three-cornered "continental" shape, with smoothly plaited green velvet, a rim of black lace and soft twisted velvet round the crown. It is finished with a buckle and black prince of Wales tips. The fashionable shade is shown in a bonnet, which has a front of eminence, a crown of iridescent colors, iridescent butterflies and pink roses. The ties are of narrow velvet. An English turban of chip is in a rather dark shade of eminence. The rim is of two bands of black satin wire and the crown of black straw braid. The trimmings are of white wings with small steel buckles. There is a cluster of heliotrope and a trimming of black lace fastened with a bunch of heliotrope. A very simple and useful bonnet is of navy blue straw, combined with olive green. There are green wings and a gilt buckle and narrow navy blue ties. A small round hat that is quite pretty has a green straw fan with changeable velvet in front, and the back is trimmed with thistles and pink roses.

Judge—Prisoner, you say you inherited this ring from your mother. The initials in it are M. R. and your name, you say, is O'Toole.

Prisoner—Yes, sir; but my mother's maiden name was not O'Toole, yer honor. That was the name of my father.

Vick's Floral Guide.

The irrepressible sons of the late James Vick, the veteran Rochester (N. Y.) seedman, are putting more vim than ever this season into the business which has been so widely and favorably known for so many years past. Their Floral Guide for the current year is called "the poet's number," because of the poet quotations from the best authors scattered through its flower-illustrated pages. There are handsome colored plates of Alpine asters, begonias, dahlias, canna, besides innumerable engravings of the more common flowers and blooming shrubs which contribute to make the garden beautiful. Quite a specialty is made of pansies, and the list embraces an unusually rich variety. For the more prosaic kitchen gardener extended lists of the best vegetable seeds and small fruits are presented, with copious illustrations and descriptions. The Guide is not, however, a mere catalog, but a useful manual for the successful culture of the many beautiful flowers which please the eye, or of the fruits and vegetables which tickle the palate, the merits of which it chronicles. Simply for reference purposes, it is well worth the dime asked for it. Vick Bros. had intended to make a great floral display at the world's fair. A part of horticultural hall was at first assigned to their use, and then, much to the vexation of the florists, the space was withdrawn. As an incentive to potato growers, the Vicks offer several hundred dollars in cash prizes for the best crops of two extra good potatoes which they are seeking to introduce.

A PRISON AND PALACE.

Behold the tall and lambent spire
Irradiate with sunset fire,
Those windows smit with twilight beams,
With evening's iridescent gleams;
How they reflect the early night,
Its mingling gold and azure light,
And how those tall translucent towers
Bloom 'gainst the night like granite flowers;
How grandly lifts up burnished dome
A sky-like shape of fire and foam!
"What are the buildings, friends?" said I,
"That loom against the eastern sky,
And dashed with many a sunset gleam
Look like the palace of a dream?"

"Them buildings, boss," the man replied—
A sly smile in his features pale—
"You just lookout you keep outside;
Them buildings is the county jail."

Pained at this ending of my dream,
This anticlimax to my theme,
I found a poetical for my pain
In this wise moralizing strain:

We all live in a county jail
Those towering spires we cannot scale,
Though firmly, all in vain, we press
Against its granite stubbornness.
Dull, cold as fate, its walls arise
And shut our vision from the skies.
But when hope's sunlight falls upon
Its thick and heavy walls of stone,
They loom against the coming night,
Transfigured in a mystic light,
And, bathed in gold and amethyst,
The granite grows as soft as mist—
Transformed becomes the culprit's jail,
And from its towers cloud banners fling
Their gorgeous windings to the gale—
It is a palace of a king!

—S. W. Foss in Yankee Blade.

The Tahitian when discovered was as uncultured as the Papuan now is, yet the former approached as near positive beauty as the latter does to positive deformity.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

The Worst.

We have read of men whose fame will never decay.
Who for daring broke all records of the day.
Whose audacity so grand
Was of Himalayan brand
And would efforts of all others overlay.
But we're ready now emphatically to say
That they none of them were "in" with the Jay
Who is bold to that degree
That he owns himself to be
The man who wrote "Ta-ra-ra Boom-de-ay."
—Boston Courier.

With or Without.

"Stamps, please," curtly said the young lady.
"With or without?" queried the facetious drug clerk.
"With or without?" Without what?" was the indignant inquiry.
"Whiskers, ma'am. One-centers has no whiskers on Columbus. The 2-centers has."—Philadelphia Call.

Presence of Mind.

"Jennie, did I not hear Mr. Porckpops kissing you last evening in the parlor?"
"No, mother."
"Are you sure? It sounded very much like it."

"Quite sure. There was a box of candy on the table, and the noise you heard was caused by his eating a piece."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Question of Pride.

"So the painting which you showed me last week has been sold to the baron for $3,000?"
"Yes, sir."
"Well, give me one for $4,000. I want folks to see that I am a better art connoisseur than the baron."—Fliegende Blätter.

Reunion of Tramps.

Out from the dumping grounds of time,
Far from abodes of taste,
Two gashly relics met and frowned
As each the other faced.

"And who are you?" each groaned aloud
In dismal voice and damp.
"I'm the souvenir spoon," one coldly said,
"And I the souvenir stamp."
—New York World.

Explained.

Fogg, seeing a fly on a lady's face, remarked that the insect was indulging in a desecration.
And this is how Fenderson repeated it to his inamorata when he saw a fly on her face?
"That fly is crossing the plain. Isn't he?"—Boston Transcript.

An Illustration.

"Papa," said Jack, "what is extravagance?"

"Well, my son," returned the wise parent, "if you have a 75-cent straw hat blown off into the sea, it would be extravagant to hire a boat for a dollar to go out and get it."—Harper's Young People.

YOUR ORDER for any kind
JOHN PRINTING
Leave at the Graphic Office.

The main purpose of paint is to preserve; a secondary one to beautify. Wood is subject to decay, metals to rust, stone to scale and crumble. Paint prevents these. How well or for how long depends on the quality of the paint. A good pure linseed oil paint with the finest turpentine driers and well ground colors, is known as "Chilton" brand, and it is only another name for perfection in paint. It is so well and so— and, that half a gallon of it properly applied almost as much surface as a gallon of other paint. Besides this, it preserves from decay for a longer time any material it covers. It has a good solid body, gives a beautiful gloss to the work, and earns admiration wherever it is used. Only reliable dealers sell it. You can make an arrangement with them that they will allow you what you paid for all unopened packages which you return in good condition. Thus you have no paints for future generations to stumble over in the cellar. If you want to paint your house economically and well, and not have to paint again for years, use Chilton. A HYPNOTIC IMPOSTER.

An Englishman Who Could Do Many Things For Teachers of Hypnotism.

The subject who came to me had been a shining light in the profession, and I have reason to know that he was exceptionally gifted. He had performed to crowded houses under several great artists at the Aquarium, and elsewhere in London and the provinces. He had figured at select seances of scientific hypnotists. He had been privately operated on by medical men anxiously seeking after truth. And, by his own statement, he had humbugged them all. What proof had I, then, that he was not humbugging me? Ample proof. He offered, in the first place, to do under my direction everything which he had done in public and private seances when under supposed hypnotic control. I contemplated, in the first instance, accepting this offer and giving a demonstration to a select circle, and it was solely owing to myself that this was not done.

As a preliminary, I asked him to exhibit a few of his powers for my private edification. He complied without hesitation. He first of all passed himself into the "cataleptic" state and lay on the floor rigid. Two members of my staff took him in this condition and laid him across the backs of two chairs—the back of his head resting on one and his heels on the other. He remained so for several minutes. On a pass being made over him with the hand, his body became arched upward or downward. Two fairly robust individuals next sat on his body, and the "cataleptic" supported them without signs of inconvenience. He then himself thrust a needle into his arm and through the lobe of his ear, to prove that he was insensible to pain while in the cataleptic state.

Next he showed how one side of his face could be drawn down by toothache ("suggested" by the operator), while the other side was distended in a broad grin. Again, at the "suggestion" of the operator, the grin and the toothache changed sides, and so on. He offered to swallow an ounce of cayenne pepper in a glass of water, but unfortunately I had no cayenne pepper at hand. I asked him whether he could take a wineglassful of ipecacuanha, and he professed readiness to do it at once. The cayenne pepper I could partly understand. It would be a mere question of standing a certain amount of pain. But I asked him how he managed to control the effect of the ipecacuanha. "We only do it for a time," he said. "You can learn to do it with practice, like the rest of the tricks. But we always bring the stuff up after the performance."

He also expressed his readiness to drink oil. Among novel tricks which he offered to perform was that of "slowing" the pulse while under hypnotic influence. Of this he claimed to be the original inventor. I asked him whether all the "subjects" were equal imposters. "All," he said. He knew them all personally and would answer for them. He ridiculed the mere suggestion that there could be anything genuine in hypnotism, whether in Paris, London or anywhere else, but here he may have spoken beyond his knowledge.—London Truth.

A Reminiscence of Fanny Kemble.

The late Fanny Kemble is remembered by old residents of Germantown and Philadelphia as a superb horsewoman. She had a fiery temper, which matched that of her husband, Pierce Butler, and speedily brought about what is still one of the most noted divorce trials reported in the law books. In her youth she was remarkably beautiful, and in the role of Juliet she was the personification of dazzling loveliness. She was noted for her keenness of wit even in the days of her old age. Once, when an impatient street loafer stepped up to her while she was looking in the window of a bric-a-brac store and said, "Are you fond of antiquities?" Mrs. Kemble quickly unpinned her veil and turning on the man her aged face (she was then 73) asked, "Are you?" One of Mrs. Kemble's daughters is Mrs. Wistar of Germantown, well known in literature.—Harper's Weekly.

A Matter of Fact Dog.

There are prosaic men and women, and there are matter of fact dogs. For purely business purposes they are often the best. We once owned an excellent retriever spaniel of the simple order of mind, without a grain of humor. This dog accompanied us unasked when we wanted to shoot a bullfinch in the garden to stuff. The gun went off, and the poor bullfinch dropped.

Now, this dog had been used, when the gun was fired, to go and look for a dead or wounded rabbit. So, instead of looking under the apple tree, he disappeared into the hedge, and in a few minutes he returned with a rabbit in his mouth! So much for the value of a matter of fact dog.—London Spectator.

The First and Last Time.

On a sultry day in August an aged negro who gloried in the name of Pompey, was driving through Main street in Springfield, Mass., a poor old skeleton of a horse attached to a heavy load of wood.

By the most frantic efforts the horse had succeeded in dragging his load over an unusually high crossing when suddenly the poor animal stopped, reared in the air and fell dead on the street. Pompey stood for a moment in silent astonishment, with extended hands, pendant lip and bulging eyeballs, then exclaimed, "By gum! I nebbber knowed him do dat afore!"—Cor. New York Press.

A First Thought In Church.

A little western boy less than 8 years old was taken to church for the first time. He gazed about with much interest and finally asked in a clear but awestruck voice, "Mamma, where's God?"—New York Tribune.

Love For Teachers.

"Do you love your teacher?" "I suppose I have to." "Why so, Tommy?" "Because the Bible says we must love our enemies."—New York Telegram.

A Frivolous People.

"I maintain," said a shrewd observer recently, "that the American people are becoming frivolous."

When he was asked what evidence he could bring to prove his assertion true, he replied:

"I want no better evidence than their indifference to serious public affairs. Our political system has developed certain defects, but no effort is made to get rid of them. The people of some of our largest states submit to 'boss rule' which they could crush forever by giving attendance at caucuses and the polls for three consecutive years.

"See, too, how a system of frequent and prolonged holidays has developed. We work fewer days and fewer hours in the day than our fathers or even our elder brothers did. Every one seems to be forever looking forward to vacation, like a schoolboy.

"And what do they read? What do you read? When you open your paper in the morning, to what do you turn first? To the proceedings of congress, or the great happenings at home or abroad? I throw not. You look at the score of the baseball games, or the discoveries of reporters relative to the latest sensational murder, or at some other personal stuff about people of whom you never heard before, and who are dragged before the public by circumstances in which the public ought not to have the smallest interest."

This is a harsh judgment, but it cannot be denied that there is enough truth in it to cause us to pause and remember with the poet that "life is real, life is earnest."—Youth's Companion.

Stealing the Declaration of Independence.

When James Monroe was president and John Quincy Adams secretary of state, an ingenious English engraver obtained permission of the two dignitaries mentioned to take the Declaration of Independence and engrave it in facsimile on copper. He carried the precious document to the printing office of one Peter Force. When everything was in readiness, he placed it upon the imposing stone and laid a sheet of india paper of the same size upon it. This india paper was next moistened with water in which gum arabic had been dissolved. A heavy proof roller was then rolled over each end and was then rolled several times over the historic document. When the india paper was removed from the face of the instrument, it took with it at least one-half of the ink used in writing and signing the document.

The document is less than a century and a quarter years old, and with proper care should be almost as legible as it was on the 5th day of July, 1776. As it is, only 11 signatures out of the 53 can be read without a glass, and some of them have disappeared beyond recall, all on account of the thieving trick of a government which, when they found that they could not keep the colonies dependent, stole the very ink from the document which declares our independence.—St. Louis Republic.

The Wife of Robert Louis Stevenson.

Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson is a portly, gray haired woman, who was a grandmother—and looked it—when she married this second husband. Her son Lloyd, who collaborated with Stevenson in the ghastly tales, "The Wrong Box" and "The Wrecker," was a middle aged man before he began to write. Her only other child is the wife of Joseph Strong, the artist, and is herself a painter in a small way. Stevenson has been accused of thrusting his sisters, his cousins and his aunts into fiction. Certainly, although Fanny Stevenson has produced some creditable work as Mrs. Osborne, she had no reputation for brilliancy in a very clever San Francisco set. There she was introduced solely in the capacity of chaperon, to sit, smiling, in her black silk gown, while her gay little daughter sang French songs or chatted with the bright Bohemian club men.—New York Times.

How Tennyson Decided a Matter.

Here is Tennyson's own account to Mr. James Knowles, editor of The Nineteenth Century, of how he was offered and accepted the laureateship: "The night before I was asked to take the laureateship, which was offered to me through Prince Albert's liking for my 'In Memoriam,' I dreamed he came to me and kissed me on the cheek. I said in my dream, 'Very kind, but very German.' In the morning the letter about the laureateship was brought to me and laid upon my bed. I thought about it through the day, but could not make up my mind whether to take it or refuse it, and at the last I wrote two letters, one accepting and one declining, and threw them on the table and settled to decide which I would send after my dinner and bottle of port."

The Letter "R" in Conversation.

The letter "r" has met with almost as many vicissitudes of late as the unfortunate British "h," and the "r," unlike the "h," is not exempt from danger in America. To be sure, the most elegantly soft spoken American does not pronounce "modern" as if it were written "mod'n," a common pronunciation among the upper classes of Great Britain, but the "r" suffers a somewhat similar elision in many words throughout this latitude, and even the superfluous "r" often heard in the New England pronunciation of "law" is met with in and about New York. Curiously enough most persons who are guilty of this blunder seem incapable of distinguishing between the correct and the incorrect pronunciation in the mouth of a third person.—New York Sun.

Congressional Mistakes.

It would be interesting to calculate and valuable to find out, just how much of the people's time and money are wasted in "mistakes." The representative seems to have a deep rooted objection to being called plain Smith or Brown or Robinson and insists that he be called "mister" even if, as is frequently the case, he does not know why the roll is called. About two hours a day through a long session amounts to considerable wear and tear of the treasury as well as of the clerk's lung tissue.—Washington Post.

DUAL PERSONALITY.

RESIDUAL PHENOMENA OF THE MIND IN SANE PEOPLE.

This Feature of Complex Personality Is Best Seen in the Case of a So Called Absentminded Business Man—Experiences of the Sleeping Mind.

Evidence is not wanting to show that what we call personality is an extremely complex thing, the sum of subsidiary personalities which now shift and change like the figures in a kaleidoscope, and again becoming sharply defined under some abnormal condition crystallize into two or more distinct groups of elements, which alternately sleep and wake or even coexist. These complex elements may be so unstable, the groups composing them constantly breaking up and forming new combinations, that the idea of multiple personality does not naturally attach itself to them; it is only when they become stable, and especially when each exhibits a well defined consciousness that we begin to think of such a thing. But besides the abnormal and diseased conditions which cause such a separation or crystallization there are other conditions in which it appears somewhat less distinctly. To one class of these I desire to call attention very briefly—to that embracing what may be called cases of residual personality.

Residual phenomena of all kinds are particularly interesting and instructive, especially those where the few things remaining in a group after many have been removed differ widely in their collective properties from those that have been taken away, while these latter are not in any way distinguishable from those of the sum of both before the division. This is the case often with residual personality. Nothing is more common than for a group of elements in what we call a person to be differentiated in one of various ways, leaving behind a residual group differing altogether in its characteristics, though the differentiated group represents to us and is considered to be identical with the original person.

The commonest method of such differentiation is sleep. The elements of sleep are, as it were, subtracted from the normal personality, but there is usually left behind a very curious something—illogical, credulous, fantastic—whose nightly experiences the whole reunited person recollects in the morning as dreams. The next commonest case is that of the absentminded person. The major part of the person being absorbed in mental processes of some sort, the residual person lives its own separate mental life, thinks, feels and wills by itself, and perhaps carries on a train of processes which is continuous with a preceding train carried on under similar circumstances the day before.

This residual person may act very mechanically. The reunited person may fail to recollect what its acts or thoughts were and be surprised to find how it has been making use of his limbs while he—what he vainly regards as the one unalterable ego—has been absorbed in thought. But, on the other hand, it may be perfectly conscious and may carry on an entirely different train of thought of its own. Almost always, however, it is eccentric and betrays a weakness at one point or another.

For instance, a suburban resident, whom we will call A, is accustomed on landing at the New York side of the ferry to abandon the mechanical task of walking to his office entirely to his residual personality and to give up the major part of himself to thought. The two personalities act often with perfect—always with practical—separateness, the residual person being quite equal to the low task of evading vehicles, steering clear of passersby and turning the proper corners. When the office is reached and the two persons again become one, it is often a difficult task to remember any circumstances of the walk.

On one occasion, however, A left the Astor library on Lafayette place, as he supposed, intending to walk down Clinton place. To do this he must turn first to the left, then to the right and then again to the left. He turned once to the left, and after some time became dimly conscious that he had walked for a long time, and that the place for the second turn had not been reached.

Coming to himself, he found himself far down Broadway. Tracing back his course mentally, he discovered that he had been in the Mercantile library instead of the Astor. His first turn therefore had taken him down Broadway, and he of course did not reach the place for the second. Mark now the peculiarities of his residual person. It knew just where it was to turn and in what direction, and had sense enough to be uneasy when it did not come to the proper place to turn, but it had not intelligence enough to know that it was on the wrong street. Its mind was too weak to be trusted further than it was accustomed to go. This residual person, in short, was about on a par with a harmless idiot.

Again, B, a New Yorker, is walking along absorbed in a process of thought, when his residual personality seizes his friend C approaching. It is not astonished, for he is near C's lodgings, and as the person supposed to be C comes near, it sees that he only slightly resembles C. He has on shabby clothes, and his face is entirely different. The natural conclusion would be that the person approaching was not C. The residual person, however, does not argue thus. It concludes that C has greatly changed, that he has become poor and that his appearance has altered for the worse.

Pity and surprise are plainly felt by the residual person. During these mental processes, so similar to those of a dream residual, the major person has kept on with his own train of thought. Finally, however, on the close approach of the supposed C, they unite in a flash into the normal person, the two separate consciousnesses become one, and the truth is recognized at once. No doubt these cases can be paralleled by thousands of others. It seems to me that they are as true instances of double personality as any exhibited by epileptic or hypnotic persons.—A. E. Bostwick in Science.

DAUGHTERS OF EVE.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger's correspondents receive notes from her written on pale gold paper.

Dr. Mary Walker told a reporter who interviewed her on the subject that crinolines were wicked, immoral and unhealthy.

Mrs. John Mackay is most unassuming in her attire and seldom wears jewels of any kind. Her favorite color is pearl.

Mrs. T. De Witt Talmage makes her husband's pastoral and social engagements and has charge of his interests in his lecturing business.

Mrs. Mary H. C. Tanner, the only surviving child of Theodore Hook, is living in England a poor and neglected widow. She is 73 years of age.

Miss Sydney Randle of the Georgia Normal and Industrial college, junior class, has been appointed postmaster of the house of representatives at Atlanta at $4 a day.

The stenographer of the Danish house of representatives is Miss Grundtvig, who is a leader in movements connected with the higher development of women in Denmark.

Miss Anna Gould, the young daughter of the late Jay Gould, attends a boarding school in Boston. She is quiet, studious, especially amiable and beloved by her companions.

Mrs. Hoke Smith, wife of the secretary of the interior, is a very youthful and attractive appearing woman, with a pink and white complexion and a face that has a sweet and happy expression.

Mrs. Henry M. Stanley, although an artist, has absolutely no taste in dress. Her favorite blouses appear even on occasions of full dress, and they are, as some one graphically describes them, "such blousy blouses too."

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, the political lecturer, is a handsome woman in the early autumn of life, has smooth, bright brown hair, a fair complexion and gray eyes. She is clever as a lecturer and irresistible as a conversationalist.

Mme. Pinitz, widow of the Slavic major of that name who was assassinated by M. Stambouloff some three years ago, has outlived her sorrow and astonished her friends by marrying a banker at Sofia who is Stambouloff's intimate friend.

PEN, CHISEL AND BRUSH.

Carmen Sylva has written a new novel, "Snow," illustrating rural life in Roumania.

"The Fire Worshipers' Rock," an ideal picture from the "Lalla Rookh," is an embodiment of the picturesque imagination of Mr. Frank G. Green.

Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson lately lost in the mail the end of his new novel. It was burned on its way across the plains. He takes his loss comfortably.

T. H. Bartlett, the Boston sculptor, took a death mask of Bishop Brooks the morning after the bishop's death. The mask was made with perfect success. Mr. Bartlett at the same time took a cast of the bishop's hand.

Mr. Norman Gale, the author of the pretty verses of "The Country Muse," is a tall and handsome man of 30, unmarried and very bashful and shy. He has a country house at Rugby and spends but a few hours of his life in London.

M. Alphonse Daudet, the French novelist, is very shortsighted, but in revenge he boasts that he has as acute a sense of hearing as blind people proverbially enjoy. He has a good memory, which he has strengthened by a number of little tricks of his own inventing.

Verestchagin, the painter, has been sharply criticised in Russia for the appalling honesty with which he has portrayed the realities of war. His pictures of battlefields are thought to be reflections on the humanity of Russia. But as the artist is in favor in high circles the attacks do not injure him.

THE NEWEST NOVELTIES.

A new claret jug of silver has a band of vine leaves around the body of natural size.

Loving cups of polished silver with broken and raised edges and pendent garlands are new.

Perforated silver pen racks, perforated silver toothpick mugs, perforated silver for everything!

The orchid has furnished a model for a new candlestick. The flaring, upturned leaves are carefully modeled. The candle is held in the upright cup.

An interesting paper knife of silver is hammered and looks like some ancient specimen hewed out by the Etruscans and dug out of an Etruscan mound.

The new soup dishes are of bright silver mounted on a platter with a perforated edge. These have the distinct merit of usefulness as well as of economy.

The prettiest silver buckles are Italian, in perforated scrollwork, with graceful flowing lines. Other styles are solid, with raised straight edges, and between them are full floral ornaments in relief.—Jewellers' Circular.

EXPOSITION ECHOES.

Four of the old portraits in Independence hall will be exhibited at the World's fair.

By invitation of the officers of the Columbian exposition, the General Federation of Women's Clubs will hold a council in Chicago next July.

The lady managers of the Columbian exposition hope to collect for the library of the Woman's building every book written by an American woman since 1620.

Colonel Singler, the well known horseman of Pennsylvania, is feeding for exhibition at the World's fair the ox Jumbo, which is 12 feet long, 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighs almost two tons.

An English salt concern has made a salt statue, modeled after Bartholdi's "Liberty Enlightening the World," in New York harbor. The statue is 5½ feet high and stands on a rock salt base 7 feet high. The salt was taken from a mine 230 feet deep.

THE CENTRE STREET RAILWAY.

From the number of letters and personal comments the GRAPHIC has received the past week, the property holders on Centre, Elmwood and Park streets, and those who have occasion to drive on those streets, are strongly opposed to any street railway company being granted a location on those streets. The more it is thought over the more opposition there is to such a project, at least until those streets are widened. It is hardly probable that in the face of such opposition a location will be granted by the board of aldermen, but evidently there are great preparations being made to show a sentiment in favor of the scheme, as canvassers have been hired to secure signatures to petitions in favor of the road, and they are asking every one to sign, without regard to their condition. The list we saw was mainly made up of non-tax-payers, and of those who have no personal interest in the matter, one way or another.

The time has come when the board of aldermen ought to take up a definite position in the matter of street railways, and resolutely refuse to grant any more locations on narrow streets. Our necessities in the way of inter-communication are now provided for, and we can get along without any luxuries.

One point that the aldermen should consider is the great expense that will come upon the city, from widening the streets on which the electric cars already run. Washington street from Newton to West Newton will have to be widened at once, at a cost variously estimated as from one hundred thousand to a quarter of a million of dollars. The Newton & Waltham Street Railway tracks make this an imperative necessity, but although this company is reported to be making money, no one is foolish enough to imagine that it will help to pay this expense.

There is already a lively agitation for the widening of Walnut street, on which the Newton & Boston Company's cars run, and the claim is made that its narrowness makes it unsafe for both cars and teams. Probably the widening of Walnut street will have to come in time, and the cost will be fully as great as the widening of Washington street. Then there is a company asking for a location on Washington street from West Newton to Lower Falls. Fortunately only a small portion of this street is built up, so that the widening of it would not be expensive, but the aldermen should insist that the street should be widened before any tracks are laid, and if the company is in earnest about the road, they could probably get the abutments to give the land, so the cost would not be excessive. After the tracks are laid and the street built up, the expense of widening would be enormous, but it would have to come in time.

But the expense of widening Centre street would prevent such action ever being taken, and it is wide enough now for the present traffic. It is the great highway for pleasure driving, but a street railway would destroy that. Secondly, the great majority of the residents object to a street car line. Thirdly, there is no cheap land on the street to be developed by street cars, as only a very small portion of it, above Cotton street, is unimproved, so that street cars would have no chance to build it up, unless the holders of the handsome estates along the street became disgusted, as has always been the case where car tracks were laid in a narrow street, and moved away to some other city, cutting up their land into small house lots, and making the handsomest street in Newton like one of the streets in Somerville, filled with small houses, and the whole character of that section of the city would be changed.

Street cars on the south side of the Boston & Albany railroad would be a serious injury to the future interests of the city, and we can afford to wait until there is some more urgent demand for them than exists at present. Of course any company that secured the location would get a "soft snap," as the line would probably pay, but the aldermen are not supposed to be influenced by any speculative project for the benefit of a private corporation, but rather for the interests of the city, and the abandonment of Centre street to tenement houses would hardly be for the interest of the city. The same might be said also of Elmwood and Park streets and of Tremont street, as far as Waverley avenue. With their present width there is no room for electric cars.

A LAME DEFENCE.

City Clerk Kingsbury, we understand, defends himself for conferring the great amount of patronage at his disposal upon one favored printer, by saying, "I don't see why I should not send my printing where I can get it done best and most cheaply," and then pointing out that as the Upper Falls printer occupies a little building of his own, he has no rent to pay and so of course does his work more cheaply than the two Newton papers, which pay large rents and are under heavy expenses.

Of course this might be a reasonable excuse, if the facts were as stated, and would show that the City Clerk was actuated solely by a patriotic desire to save the city's money, and not by some other less worthy motive.

It is not true, however, that the Upper Falls company does work any more cheaply for the city than other printers, as is shown by the fact that on jobs on which bids are called for, they do not always or generally get the contract. This year, for instance, the Journal secured the printing of the city documents. Three years ago the GRAPHIC obtained the contract, and on other jobs the contract comes to the GRAPHIC, for instance, quite as often as it goes to the Upper Falls concern, and the two papers together secure more jobs when bids are called for than the Upper Falls company.

When bids are not called for, no one would be simple enough to suppose that the Upper Falls company charges a lower price when it does not have to make a bid, than it does when bids are called for. Outside of the city reports, the tax bills and water bills, very few bids have been called for, the past two years, and those make a very small part of the $2,600 odd dollars the concern obtained from the city last year.

The excuse that they do work cheaper is just as baseless as the plea that they do work better, or that they have more money invested in printing material, none of which are true.

The real reason must be sought elsewhere. The two Newton papers have not the influence at City Hall, evidently, that one would naturally expect, perhaps from the reason that they have been too good-natured in their dealings with city officials, have gone out of their way, for the credit of the city, to defend them when Boston papers have talked about the Newton "City Hall ring" and have good-naturedly overlooked many things that were open to criticism. The Newton papers have always shown a disposition to live peaceably with all men, and perhaps if they had not been so good-natured, they would not be always spoken of so contemptuously by certain City Hall officials, who have come to have a Napoleonesque idea of themselves, as David Hall Rice puts it.

THE WISE POLICY.

In regard to boulevards and street widening, of which much is being said now, not only in Newton but in all our neighboring towns and cities, there is one policy which it will pay any city to follow and only one. The money expended should be concentrated on one great roadway system, where every dollar expended will bring a fair return, instead of practically wasting the money on small widenings here and there. One wide boulevard through the centre of the city would do more to develop Newton than half a dozen disconnected schemes, without any comprehensive plan.

Any student of what has been done in other cities and towns, in Brookline, for instance, would see striking evidence of the truth of this. On the Beacon street boulevard, for example, laid out through the town by enterprising citizens, the increase in valuation from 1880 to 1891, for 500 feet on either side of the roadway, was $3,844,100, which at $10 a thousand yields an income of $40,000 to the town, more than enough to pay the interest on the cost of the boulevard.

If this has been the case in Brookline, it would be equally beneficial to Newton, and this is why so many have such great confidence in the proposed South street boulevard, which is the most promising of any of the schemes yet brought forward, as it is right in line with the Brookline improvements, and would serve as an extension of Beacon street, and in a short time would be built up with handsome residences, as it goes through the most desirable land in the city. There is a great opportunity here for Newton, which should be taken advantage of, and a boulevard laid out through the city which would not only be a credit to Newton, but a means of adding largely to the wealth and population of the city.

The land along the line of the proposed boulevard is now assessed at from $1,000 to $1,500 an acre, and there are some 150 acres lying between Centre street and the reservoir which will be opened up if the boulevard goes through. It will immediately double in value, to say the least, and conservative real estate men say it will be eagerly bought up at $5,000 an acre, by those wishing to build along the line of the new street, so that the great increase in taxable property, if this improvement is carried through, can be estimated. As the owners of the land will give what is needed for the boulevard, it is an opportunity which the city should not be slow to take advantage of.

AN HONORABLE POSITION.

Representative Estabrook's letter, published in the GRAPHIC two weeks ago, shows his position on the repeal of the sewer ordinance, and the report that he in any way opposed the bill in the legislature has been found to be incorrect. On the contrary, he has advocated and worked for its passage by every means in his power, taking the position that as the people of Newton showed their opposition to the present law so decidedly at the last election, their wishes in the matter should guide any one chosen to represent them, whether he personally believes in the repeal of the ordinance or not.

We are glad to make this statement, as it is both honorable to Mr. Estabrook, and also a welcome change from the habits of some city officials, who seem to have an idea that they were chosen to represent their own opinions and not those of the people.

Mr. Estabrook says that he thinks the bill will pass, provided there are found to be no legal objections to it, and it is to be hoped the legal objections will not prove insurmountable. The committee considering the case might stretch a point, if they find it is necessary, for there has been no change in the sentiment of the people, and the present ordinance is even more unpopular today than it was at the time of the city election, when the voters gave a two-thirds majority against it.

The corporation that seeks a location in Newton says that many people who signed their petition are now opposing it. It only shows that on second thoughts they have changed their mind, and their later attitude is the result of a careful consideration of the question, while their first action was merely the result of a good-natured impulse to oblige the gentleman who was carrying about the petition. Many people are apt to sign a petition, merely to oblige a friend, without giving the matter any thought, and this will explain the seeming inconsistency of many of the signers of the original petition.

The first day of spring was ushered on Monday, and we hope that the end of an old fashioned and unmerciful winter is at hand. The warm sun and genial breezes of Monday and Tuesday caused the snow to disappear as if by magic, and bluebirds and song sparrows and robins were heard, and every one felt relieved at the prospect of moderate weather for the end of March. Of course there will be cold winds and frosty nights, but in less than six weeks spring will be on hand, and already there are signs of green grass on the sunny side of buildings.

The sidewalks have finally got into passable condition again, thanks to the warm sun of Monday and Tuesday, and Newton no longer presents the spectacle of pedestrians walking in the street, because the sidewalks are covered too deeply with melting snow and water. Perhaps if we have no more snow storms we may be able to get along till another winter without that sidewalk ordinance, but Newton still enjoys the distinction of being the only city in the state without such an ordinance.

No more street railway tracks in narrow streets would be a good motto for the aldermen to paste in their hats.

Lower Telephone Charges.

Mr. J. N. Keller, manager of the New England Telephone Company, was before the legislative committee on mercantile affairs Thursday morning in opposition to a bill to reduce the price of telephone charges.

He said the company he represents has 21,000 subscribers, 18,000 of whom are in Massachusetts. The invested capital is $3,153,000, and the entire capitalization $10,304,000.

The taxes paid last year to the commonwealth amounted to $50,000. The company pays 3 1/2 per cent. dividends. Mr. Keller said it was absolutely impossible to reduce the present charges. The company does not earn enough money to do so.

Surface Drainage of Newton.

The plan for the surface drainage of Newton has been perfected by Messrs. Albert F. Noyes and Edward A. Buss, civil engineers. The scheme provides, in connection of natural water courses, the carrying out of a boulevard and small park system. Sections of land on either side of water courses to width of 120 feet, at intervals widening out for park sites, are to be secured. The water courses are to be deepened and straightened and made to dispose of the entire surface drainage of the city.

It is thought that the carrying out of the project will greatly increase the valuation of the city, as it will make large sections of low land, now useless because of lack of drainage, available for building purposes. The cost, it is estimated, will be only one-tenth of what would be required to build close brick drains.

The plan divides the city up into areas contiguous to the location of water courses, as follows: Hyde's brook, including territory adjacent to Chestnut Hill; Strong's pond, north section of Chestnut Hill; lower Charles river, comprising territory of the Morse field region; lower Laundry brook, comprising land below Bulbough's pond; Hammond's brook, including part of Newton Centre and Chestnut Hill; Cold Spring brook, providing for territory in Newtonville and Newton Highlands; lower Charles river, comprising land bordering on Waltham; Upper Cheesecake brook, providing for West Newton, Auburndale and Waban; middle Charles river, providing for territory between Waltham and Upper Falls; Meadow brook, providing for the Upper Falls sections.

In connection with the surface drainage plan, it is proposed to provide a method by artificial means of keeping the water of the Charles river through Auburndale at a certain height all the time. By this plan the exposed sections of the banks of the river in this vicinity will cease to become a menace to public health. There has been considerable malaria among the residents of this section of the city, and the scheme of raising the water of the river has been evolved to overcome as much as possible further sickness of a malarial character.

HOTEL DAMAGED.

THE ELM PARK AT WELLESLEY HILLS GETS A BAD SCORCHING.
The Elm Park Hotel, situated at the corner of Washington and Worcester streets, Wellesley Hills, was considerably damaged by fire yesterday afternoon.

The blaze had its origin in a defective fuse. The fire was at first confined to the woodwork in the upper story surrounding the chimney, but spread to the roof, which was soon destroyed.

The story below the roof was also badly gutted. The additional destruction by water will bring the total damage up to about $2500.

The building is a four-story wooden structure, containing 35 rooms, and is valued, with its contents, at about $12,000. The property is well insured and is owned by J. W. Shaw of Wellesley Hills.

Its occupants numbered about fifty persons, who were obliged to make rapid exit, in most cases securing their more valuable personal effects.

The furniture in the first and second stories was removed from the building, and suffered only slight damage.

Incendiary Fires in Boston.

The morning papers announce the arrest of the boy who set the five fires in the Hathaway building in Boston, the past month, which have caused so much alarm among the occupants of the building, among whom are several Newton men. So many fires in Boston have given rise to the suspicion that an incendiary was at work, and lately a detective was put at work on the Hathaway building fires.

Yesterday Lewis A. Wright, a boy of 17, son of Mrs. Wright of 267 Washington street, Newton, was arrested and confessed to setting the fires.

Young Wright entered the employ of W. R. Fleming & Co., Room D of the Hathaway building, about three months ago. He began work as an office boy, but quick to learn he soon ran a typewriter, and of late has attended to the entire correspondence of the firm.

They are engaged in the manufacture of hydraulic engines, such as are used in creating electricity by friction.

Wright denies that he has had any hand in setting any other than the fires in the Hathaway, but suspicion points to the fact that he may be responsible for the terrible conflagration started in the Ames building last Friday afternoon.

There have been many incendiary fires started in the district the past few months, of which no mention has been made in the papers, but which have greatly alarmed the business and insurance men of Boston, and several investigations have been started.

Much sympathy is felt for his mother, who is a worthy woman and has tried to bring up her son in the right way, and she is prostrated by the evidence of the boy's guilt and his arrest. She has an intelligence office in Hyde's block, and is respected by all who know her, but the boy has been a constant trouble and has been in the courts before for other offences.

The orchestra played some pretty selections and gave a fine rendering of "Musical Scenes from Spain," (Lange.) The program comprised: Overture, N. H. S. Orchestra; Rome and Carthage, Edward H. Woodworth; The Hanging of the Crane, Mabel R. Eddy; Solo, "The Shepherdess," Ruth W. Carroll; The Chipmunk, Belle Ballou; Home Rule, Edward H. Hume; The Little Cavalier, Bessie M. N. Brown; Solo, "How Fair art Thou," Isaac S. Dillingham; An Appeal for the Union, (John Adams), Henry S. Bosson; Selection from Sara Crewe, Ella W. Nickerson; "Musical Scenes from Spain," N. H. S. Orchestra.
—Mr. Leonidas H. Redpath, one of the victims of the Boston conflagration, was in his office at 83 Lincoln street when the fire broke out, and his brother, Mr. E. W. Redpath, of this city with him. When the sheet of flame rushed through the building without warning both brothers sprang to the window and made a leap for the ground. Mr. E. W. Redpath escaped with only slight injuries, his fall being broken by coming in contact with the telephone and electric light wires. His hands were lacerated and he was badly bruised and shaken up. He succeeded in reaching home with the assistance of friends and was attended by Dr. Hunt. His brother was very badly hurt and was taken to the City Hospital. He was injured internally and suffered concussion of the brain, and probably was unconscious of pain. He died at 7:30 Saturday evening. Mr. L. H. Redpath was born in Allegheny City, Pa., in 1846, and was educated in the public schools of his native city. In 1870 he came to Boston and went into the shoe business. For 14 years he did business at No. 70 Pearl street and three years ago moved into the building 83 Lincoln street. The firm was Redpath Bros., consisting of Leonidas H. E.

W. and N. H. Redpath. Deceased leaves a widow, one daughter 15 years of age and a son 11 years.
—The "Spanish Afternoon" of the Guild was a decided success and the club is to be congratulated that it can from its own circle draw members who can entertain so large an audience in so literary, artistic, and instructive a fashion as that of Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Chandler Holmes was the organizer and the Guild is also indebted to her for a most successful paper. Mrs. Richardson gave the Preparation for the Journey to Spain in a very bright and humorous style. Mrs. Chapman followed in her happy manner with a longer paper describing an ocean voyage, terminating at Gibraltar, with allusions to the sights connected with that impregnable fortress. Mrs. Prof. Taylor was next on the program with a very interesting article on Andalusia. Miss Kitty Thompson brought us very pleasantly to Seville, which she spoke of in its past and in its present every day aspect. Then came Mrs. Jenkins' paper on Cordova, which was one of fine literary merit, and the interest was enhanced by photographs of the city. Mrs. Holmes finished the journey with Granada, the always interesting Alhambra. The afternoon closed with a written paper on Murillo, read by Mrs. Sands in Mrs. Morse's absence. Mrs. Morse also kindly sent two large boxes of Spanish photographs. The ring vote of thanks was given in an exceedingly cordial manner.

—Mrs. Edw. F. Miller entertained a few of her lady friends at a delightful lunch party at her beautiful residence on Maple street, last Friday. It was the birthday of the hostess. There were roses and pinks in profusion, with a corsage bouquet for each guest. The ladies enjoyed the dainty and toothsome menu all by themselves, not one man being present.

—The most impressive and won the commendation of the officials of the grand lodge.

—At the last meeting of the Educational club, Mrs. Hastings read an interesting paper on Darwin. The mythical "Princes" about whom encyclopedias and other books of reference have been searched in vain, must still remain a myth, until Mrs. Martin, who was unable by illness the last time to attend, can be present. Mrs. Martin hopes to fulfill the expectation next week.

—Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, rector of Trinity church, Newton Centre, will preach at the Church of the Messiah this (Friday) evening, at 7:45 o'clock. Services for next week are: Sunday, Holy Communion at 9:45 a. m., morning prayer and sermon at 10:45, evening prayer and address at 7:30; Monday, evening at 7:45, evening prayer and sermon by Rev. Edward Abbott, D.D., rector of St. James church, Cambridge; Wednesday and Thursday, evening prayer at 5 o'clock.

—The entertainment given last Friday evening, was one of the pleasantest of the season. Lyon, the Brooklyn was a former pupil of the Allen school and kindly consented to give the lecture in the Unitarian church parlors, entitled "Rambles about Stratford-on-Avon," illustrated by stereoscopic views from photos taken by himself. They embraced pictures of the birth place and early surroundings of the great bard, as well as later objects of interest in buildings, pictures, and a fine statue of Shakespeare.

—Boynton lodge 20, Independent Order Odd Fellows, celebrated its 10th anniversary by an entertainment and sale Tuesday evening. —Miss Belle McDonald, who has been the guest of Mrs. H. B. Turner, has returned to the Cottage Hospital, but will not yet resume her professional duties as she is not fully restored to health.

—The morning and evening services at the Methodist church next Sunday will be omitted, the society joining in the union evangelistic services at the Congregational church. There will be a union young people's service at 4 p. m.

—"Our Corner Market" is on Nonantum Square and handy to electric, steam and horse railroad, where you can buy the choicest Beef, Pork, Veal, Poultry, the earliest vegetables and finest canned goods at the lowest living prices.

—Mr. Samuel Roosa had a close call Wednesday afternoon. He made an unsuccessful attempt to board a train at the Anbursdale station, and was thrown to the ground, his legs across the track. The train was stopped in time to save his limbs from summary amputation, having just got under headway.

—Mrs. Edw. F. Miller entertained a few of her lady friends at a delightful lunch party at her beautiful residence on Maple street, last Friday. It was the birthday of the hostess. There were roses and pinks in profusion, with a corsage bouquet for each guest. The ladies enjoyed the dainty and toothsome menu all by themselves, not one man being present.

—Union Gospel meetings under the leadership of Rev. E. E. Davidson, are being conducted in the Congregational and Methodist churches. The meetings on Sundays will be at 10:30 a. m., 4 and 7 p. m. On each week day except Saturday there will be meetings at 4 and 7:30 p. m. Afternoon meetings will be held at the Methodist church; all others at the Congregational church. The topics for the evening services this week were: Monday, March 13, "How do we know the Bible to be True?" Tuesday, March 14, "Eternity;" Wednesday, March 15, "Hell;" Thursday, March 16, "Heaven."

—The Gospel meetings have continued, with increasing attendance, and manifestly deeper interest. The weather this week has been much more favorable, and it has been found necessary to transfer the meetings to the audience room of the Congregational church. The preaching of Mr. Davidson is impressive in force and directness, and much good is confidently anticipated. The united congregations on the Sabbath have been very large and impressive, and with the assistance of Prof. Davis' male quartet next Sunday, a still fuller attendance is quite certain. It has been unanimously decided to continue the meetings through Thursday of next week. Mr. Davidson returns on Friday to Pennsylvania.

—Rev. T. W. Bishop writes to Zion's Herald: "Isn't the millennium a little nearer? Sunday morning, March 5, the Congregational and Methodist churches of Auburndale began a series of union evangelistic services in the former church, followed by the holy communion—a most impressive service—at which two deacons and two stewards assisted the pastors. The sermon was by Rev. E. W. Davidson, the well-known Methodist evangelist, whose wise methods and admirable and eloquent sermons have been so crowned of God for years past. In the afternoon of the same Sunday, at the opening of the new Episcopal church of Auburndale, the pastors of the Congregational and Methodist churches, by invitation of the rector, read the two Scripture lessons. Surely the ecclesiastical world moves."

—The first annual ball of the Newton Boat Club was given in the assembly hall of the Newton Club House, Wednesday evening. It was one of the prettiest parties of the season, and a social event of more than ordinary interest. Those present beside Newtonians were from Brookline, Allston, Boston, and comprised a company of about 120 ladies and gentlemen. The guests were received by Mrs. Charles W. Loring, Mrs. Frederic Grant, Mrs. Herbert E. Burrage and Mrs. Charles W. Knapp. The receiving party stood in front of a tall screen of palms arranged about the platform where the musicians were stationed. Dancing was enjoyed from 9 o'clock until a late hour. Some very handsome gowns were worn by the ladies. The floor was in charge of Mr. W. U. Lawson, and the aids were Capt. William A. Hall, Arthur W. Vose, Herbert S. Potter, Francis J. Burrage, Fred P. Harvey, Charles W. Cole and Louis S. Drake. Among those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Ayer, Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Loring, President William S. Eaton, Jr., Capt. William A. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Anders, Miss Laura S. Coffin, Mr. H. R. Coffin, Mr. William Ryder, Mr. John F. Linden, Miss Linden, Mr. Phillip A. Warner, Miss Agnes G. Chase, Miss Dora Stewart, Miss Edith G. Gould, Mr. Arthur T. Lovett, Miss Josephine Larrabee, Mr. Frank H. Morehouse, Miss Josephine Woodworth, Miss Bessie Brown, Miss Emma Newhall, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Pigott, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hartley, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Saxton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Knapp, Miss Rideout, Miss Blanche Pierce, Miss Laura S. Clark, Miss Josephine Howard, Mr. Porter B. Chase, Mr. and Mrs. John K. Taylor, Miss Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Baker, Jr., Mr. Arthur L. Lasell Notes.

The Symphony concert was attended on Saturday evening last by the usual number of Lasell students.

Delicate, dainty baking powder biscuit, lobster, prunes, plain cake and delicious chocolate were the dainties prepared for the Monday cooking class March 13.

A recent letter from Professor Bragdon bears date Cairo, Feb. 21. On the morrow the party were expected to go to Jerusalem, returning thence to Cairo, before going to Athens, from which place a cablegram was received this week. Brindisi, Rome, and San Remo, are their future objective points. In Egypt the places where excavations are now in progress were visited, as well as certain old temples and other interesting relics of the oldest civilization of the world, not usually visited by travellers in Egypt, though well worth seeing and studying. We hope soon to welcome the wanderers back to Lasell.

The annual Lasell excursion to Washington, under the able conduct of Mr. W. T. Shepherd, will leave Boston for the capital March 27. The party will probably number fifty or more. These trips are too well known to need comment. Every care is taken to insure comfort and to see satisfactorily as many of the sights of the city as possible. It is especially interesting to us, as Americans, as can be visited in the week devoted to it. Any immediate friends of the school desiring to join the party should communicate early with Mr. Shepherd.

FOR THE LAST TIME.

For the last time we stand together here
And look across to where the lines of light
Along the harbor to the city's height
Flash out with radiance clear.
I cannot help but think how many a night
Your eyes have watched those red lights Drawing near.
When they were all by which you had to steer.
Yet ever sped the little craft aright.
Swift as a bird it flew from pier to pier.
And still I know 'twill wing its watery flight.
And still will happy hearts and faces bright Crowd all its length, as in the bygone year.
Only one face will vanish from our sight.
Only the presence that made all so dear.
Forever from our lives will disappear.
I only know that here you stand tonight
For the last time!
—Ida L. Gould in New York Sun.

REVENGED.

It was about half an hour after sunset, but an orange light still burned above the lonely southern valley. The trembling evening star was hanging over the green silences of the fragrant Tennessee woods. Vapor wreathed phantoms from the river course and from the dense thickets that skirted the camp ground came ever, and anon the mournful sound of whippoorwills, sounding faint and low, like the remembered echoes of a dream. Yet Wallace Keene would have given well nigh all he was worth to exchange his luxuriant verdure, one moment only, for the pine clad heights and salt winds of Maine, with russet winged robins chirping their familiar madrigals in the apple orchards below.
"Two years ago I left home," murmured Wallace Keene as he gazed thoughtfully out where the purple sky seemed to touch the waving woods. "Two years since young Harney told me he never would give Marion to a common mechanic, yet the wound rankles sharply still."

"Is that you, Spicer? What now?"
Captain Keene turned his face toward the opening of the tent, where Private Spicer's head was just visible.

"Why, sir, our fellows have just brought in that lot of men that was hurt in that scrimmage across the river this morning, and some on 'em is wounded bad."

"I will be there directly, Spicer."
There was a little crowd of men gathered on the river shore in the warm glow of the spring, but they silently parted right and left for Captain Keene's tall figure to pass through their midst.

Six or seven dusty, bleeding men were sitting and lying around in various postures, their ghastly brows made still paler by the faint, uncertain glimmer of the young moon. Keene glanced quickly around, taking in the whole scene in that one brief survey.

He stopped short as his eye fell on a new face, half shadowed by the green sweep of drooping alders—a pale, blood streaked face with a gaping cut on the forehead.

"This is not one of our men!" he exclaimed sharply. "How came he here?"
"No, sir," explained Spicer, stepping forward. "I think he belonged to the Eighth. I'm sure I don't know how he ever got mixed up with our fellows, but there he was, and I thought we'd better not wait for their ambulance, but bring him straight here."

"Right," briefly pronounced Keene, stooping over the insensible figure. "Let them carry him to my tent, Spicer."
"I beg your pardon, captain—to your tent?"

"Didn't you hear what I said?" sharply interrogated the superior officer. "Bruce, make the others comfortable in Lieutenant Ordway's quarters. There will be plenty of room for them there."

"Well, I'm beat!" ejaculated Spicer five or ten minutes afterward as he came out of the captain's tent scratching his shock of coarse red curls.

Meanwhile the dim light of a lamp swinging from the center of the little tent shone full on the singular group within its circling folds—the wounded private lying like a corpse, still and pale, on the narrow iron bedstead, the young officer leaning over him and supporting his head—and the brisk, gray eyed little surgeon keenly surveying both as he unfolded his case of phials and powders.

"He is not dead, doctor?"
"No; but he would have been in another half hour. Your prompt remedies have saved his life, Captain Keene."

"Thank God! oh, thank God!"
The surgeon looked at Keene in amazement.

"He doesn't belong to your regiment. Why are you so interested in the case?"
"Because, doctor," said Keene, with a strange, bright smile, "when I saw him lying under the alders, dead, as I thought, I rejoiced in my secret heart. At first—only at first. The next moment I remembered that I was a man and a Christian. For years I have carried the spirit of Cain in my breast toward that man; now it is washed out in his blood."

It was high noon of the next day before the wounded man started from a fevered doze into the faint dawn of consciousness.
"Where am I?" he faltered, looking wildly around him, with an ineffectual effort to raise his dizzy head from the pillow.

"Now, be easy," said Private Spicer, who was cleaning his gun by the bedside. "You're all right, my boy. Where are you? Why in the captain's tent, to be sure, and that's pretty good quarters for the rank and file, I should think."

"The captain's tent? How came I here?"
"That's just what I can't tell you—you'll have to ask himself, I guess. You ain't any relation to Captain Keene, be you?"

"Keene—Keene!" repeated the man.
"Because," pursued Spicer, "if you'd been his own brother born, he couldn't have taken better care of you. His cousin, maybe?"

"No! God forgive me, no!" faltered the wounded man with a low, bitter groan.

"Here he is now," said Spicer, the familiar accents of his voice falling to a more respectfully modulated tone as he rose and saluted his officer. "He's all right, captain—as clear headed as a bell!"
"Very well, Spicer; you can go."

The private obeyed with alacrity. When they were alone together in the tent, Wallace Keene came to the low bedside.

"So you're all right, Mr. Harney?" he asked kindly.

"Captain Keene," murmured Harney, shrinking from the soothing tone as if it had been a dagger's point, "I have no right to expect this treatment at your hands."

"Oh, never mind," said the young man lightly. "What can I do to make you more comfortable?"

Harney was silent, but his eyes were full of the tears he fain would drive back—tears of remorseful shame—and he turned his flushed face away lest the man he had once so grossly insulted should see them fall.

The next day he again alluded to the home subject.
"Captain Keene, you asked me yesterday what you could do for me?"

"Yes."

"I want you to obtain leave for May to come and nurse me when I am transferred to hospital."

Captain Keene turned toward the sick man a face white and hard as marble and said in a strangely altered voice:

"Do you mean your sister?"

"My sister—yes."

"Of course, if you wish it, I can obtain permission, Harney. But?"

"Well?"

Keene's cheek colored, and he bit his lip.

"I should not suppose she would be willing to leave her husband for the very uncertain comforts of hospital life."

Harney smiled, looking into his companion's face with keen, searching eyes.

"May is not married, Captain Keene. She has no such appendage as a husband."

"Not married?"

"I know what you thought. She was engaged and almost married. We had nearly induced her to become Lisle Spencer's wife, but she refused on the very eve of the wedding day."

Keene had risen and was pacing up and down the narrow limits of the tent with feverish haste.

"Because," went on Harney, "she loved a certain young volunteer who left S— about two years ago too well ever to become any other man's wife."

"Harney—you do not mean to say?"

"I do, though, old fellow, and, what is more, I mean to say that since I've been lying in this tent my eyes have been pretty thoroughly opened to my own absurd folly and impertinence."

Captain Keene wrung his companion's hand and hurried away, to mistake the bootjack for the inkstand and to commit several other no less inexcusable absurdities.

"I see you'll get nothing written today," sighed Harney as he lay watching Wallace Keene tear up sheet after sheet of condemned note paper.

"I shall, though," smiled Wallace. "Only I can't tell exactly which end of my letter to begin at."

Captain Keene did write—and if he inserted a little foreign matter into the epistle it didn't matter, for Harney, considerate fellow, never asked to see it.

Marion came, and when her brother was promoted into the convalescent ward, and she went home again, it was only to lose herself in bowers of orange blossoms, forests of white satin ribbon and acres of pearly, shimmering silk, shot with frosty gleams of silvery brocade, for the course of true love, after all its turn and intricacies, had at length found its way into the sunshine and was running smoothly over sands of gold.—A. R. in New York News.

Simultaneous Games of Chess.

The perfection to which chess may be carried almost implies its imperfection as an amusement. Chess giants like Mr. Blackburn and the late Henry Zukertort act as warnings rather than ideals to ordinary people in search of amusement. The latter gentleman once undertook to carry on 18 games simultaneously without looking at the boards. The performance did not end very satisfactorily, for after more than two days' play the incautious acrobat surrendered the contest. But the fact of having carried it so far implied a bewildering feat of cerebration, for if the first four moves on either side in a single game admit of 72,000 variations the first four in 18 games make the appalling total of 1,296,000 possible combinations.

Mr. Blackburn is unrivaled as a blindfold player, and he has actually succeeded in winning the majority of 12 simultaneous games without the assistance of sight. The possible variations in the first four moves of these number 864,000. Performances such as these leave on the mind the oppressive and somewhat humiliating impression of infinity. It is too much of a good thing. One can scarcely imagine how a brain called on to steer through such vast and barren complexities can have any faculties in reserve for useful ratiocination.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Wall Street Full of Schemes.

A feature of market reporting should be the daily statement of the number of men in the street with schemes. They are numerous now and are steadily on the increase, as the railroad brokers and money getters will testify. One of the former was heard to remark the other day, "If you were to stand at the corner of Wall and Broad streets and break with a club the head of every man that came along, the air would be so full of schemes that the sun would be darkened."—New York Tribune.

The Wrong Flower.

Little Miss Goldenhair (proudly)—"We descended from zee Mayflower."
Little Miss Freckles (regarding her intently)—"Is you sure it wasn't a chrysanthemum?"—Good News.

FASHION'S MIRROR.

The new swallowtail director coat above the shortened, expanded dress skirt will be smartly worn this spring by slender women.

The skirt portions of all the new spring jackets are much widened at the back and slightly on the sides to admit of their falling easily over the enlarged dress skirts.

The shoulder seam having been so much lengthened, it follows that sloping shoulders will once again assert their claims to recognition, for the second empire bodice is hardly compatible with the square shouldered ideal.

The new dress skirts measure from four to six yards in width around the bottom, and the woman who decides upon the skirt with the latter measurement must also consent to wear its inevitable accompaniment—the hoopskirt.

The most popular chevrons this season have a very rough surface and show wide diagonals. The styles and colors are in great variety, and among them a soft and peculiarly beautiful shade of greenish gray is remarked; also a tan color of great delicacy of tint.

Very pretty sarahs, bengalines and merveilles satins, dotted with silk of a contrasting color, are made up into dressy toilets that have a rather full medium length skirt and low cut corselet, with guimpes and balloon sleeves of plain silk or the color of the dot.

Oriental red is the name given to a new street shade of that color which appears in cloth vogue bourette wools and silk and wool mixtures. It is a handsome dye because of a deep crimson rose and a rich dahlia color. It is remarkably becoming to both fair and dark women.—New York Evening Post.

SOME FAMOUS PHRASES.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever" is from Keats.

Harel said, "Speech was given to man to disguise his thoughts."

"Variety is the very spice of life that gives it all its flavor" is Cowper's.

"The pen is mightier than the sword" is the saying of Bulwer Lytton.

"Rose like a rocket and fell like its stick" was said by Thomas Paine of Burke.

Mme. Cornuel was the original author of the phrase, "No man is a hero to his valet!"

"To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die" was the pretty saying of Campbell, and his also, "Coming events cast their shadow before."

"The heart that has truly loved never forgets" belongs to Tom Moore; so does "The luxury of woe" and "The trail of the serpent is over them all."

Some of Burns' gems: "The best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft a-gley." "But pleasures are like poppies spread; you seize the flower, its bloom is shed." "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn." "The rank is but the guinea stamp; a man's a man for a' that."

Here are a few of Pope's: "Shoot folly as she flies." "Hope springs eternal in the human breast." "An honest man's the noblest work of god." "Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined." "Who shall decide when doctors disagree?" "A little learning is a dangerous thing." "To err is human; to forgive, divine." "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

CROWN AND SCEPTER.

Princess Victoria is the most thoroughly English of all the children of Empress Frederick, both as regard tastes and appearance.

The Prince of Wales, who is rarely ungloved when awake, has all his gloves made by a Brussels house, which keeps models of both his hands.

That black sheep of the royal house of Bourbon, Prince Pascal, count de Bari, was at one time a suitor for the hand of Mrs. Mackay's daughter.

So great is the popularity of Duke Carl Theodore of Bavaria, who practices as a physician, that last year he attended over 5,000 patients and performed 200 operations for diseases of the eye.

A peculiar feature of the madness of the ill fated ex-Empress Carlotta of Mexico is that she requires a fresh pair of pearl gray, 2-button kid gloves on rising every morning throughout the year.

Queen Victoria's pink pearls, Empress Frederick's seven rows of pure white pearls and Grand Duchess Marie of Russia's superb necklace of the same gems rank among the most valuable jewels in Europe.

The Empress Frederick of Germany has succeeded in bringing about a reconciliation between Emperor William and the Duchess of Sparta, the emperor's favorite sister. The estrangement was because of a religious dispute.

FLOWER AND TREE.

The roots of cannabis should be taken up after the tops have been killed by frost.

The largest cork oak tree of California is growing at Campo Seco, Calaveras county, and measures 7 feet 11 inches in circumference.

The Stanford vineyard at Vina, Tehama county, Cal., is the largest in the world, covering six square miles and numbering 3,500,000 vines.

If your pansies are allowed to perfect seed they will be sure to "die out," as the plants exhaust themselves. If you want flowers, you must keep the seed pods cut off.

Vanilla is an orchid, which, in the West Indies, creeps over trees and walls like ivy. A substance called salep, somewhat resembling arrowroot or sago, is obtained from the tubers of a variety that grows in Turkey and Persia, where it is highly esteemed.

To rid your flowerpots of worms, dissolve half an ounce of corrosive sublimate in a quart of water; add a tablespoonful of this to a gallon of water, and water the plants not oftener than once a week, taking care not to pour it on the leaves. If there are any worms, they will scramble to the top.

"About 4 years ago my little girl, Eva, who was then 4 years old, had a scrofula trouble with one of her eyes. For 8 months she had to keep it bandaged from the light. We tried everything the best medical advice would suggest for two years, keeping her out of school all that time, but nothing appeared to do her a particle of good. We feared that she would entirely lose the sight of the eye. One day I read of a little girl suffering similarly who had been cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and decided to let her try it. She seemed better when she had taken the first bottle, so I got another. And when she had finished taking three bottles she was completely cured, and now

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—There is to be a terrible shaking up in the comedy line at the Grand Opera House next week, when "Two Old Cronies" will make their appearance. The company to present this bewilderingly funny comedy is made up of fun producing artists. Among those whose special duty it will be to delight, amuse and create merriment are Mr. Harry A. Emerson and Mr. Edward O'Connor. These artists will impersonate two old cronies, the former as Jacob Blot Zmeyer and the latter as O'Donovan Duff. Others who will contribute to the fun producing are Mr. Frederick Carberry, Mr. Lindsay Morrison, Mr. Will Abern, Mr. L. W. Browning, Miss Affie Warner, Miss Minnie Taylor, Miss Mattie Meyer, Miss Mary Warner, Miss Alvirra Francelli, Miss Alice Frame, Miss Jessie Villars. A feature of the entertainment will be the dancing of the famous Holly wood Sisters and the singing of Mlle. Francelli. Following the above attraction Manager Dexter has secured a brand new play of the melodramatic order, called "The Diamond Breaker." Miss Clara Clark, the stock star at the Opera House, will next be seen in a grand production of that picturesque and thrilling melodrama, "The Soudan," the week of April 13. Seats for this attraction will be placed on sale at the box office one week in advance of the production.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—The third and last week of Miss Marlowe's engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre will be noted for her first assumption of the character of Constance, in Sheridan Knowles' seldom played but celebrated comedy of "The Love Chase." The difficulty of getting a company competent to play this comedy has, in a great measure, kept it from many reproductions on our modern stage with our present constellation of female stars. That the comedy should lack nothing in the way of cast, Miss Marlowe's management have made arrangements with Mrs. John Drew to play the Widow Green, a part in which she gained much fame in years past. The other parts will be taken by Mr. Robert Taber, H. A. Weaver, Jr., Miss Linderman and other members of the company. Miss Marlowe's success has been so phenomenal during the present engagement, especially the matinees, that she has consented to give an extra performance which will take place on Thursday afternoon. The play to be produced on that occasion will be announced in the regular advertisements. For Miss Marlowe's farewell performance on Saturday night, "Ingomar" has been selected. This will be the only presentation of the play during her engagement.

BENEFIT TO HENRY B. HARRIS.—Although Mr. Henry B. Harris, assistant manager of the Columbia Theatre, is a young man in the field of theatrical management, he has won the respect of all with whom he has come in contact by his clearheadedness and sagacity, and has well justified the reasons that caused him to be selected for the important position he now holds. The annual testimonial that is tendered him occurs at the Columbia on Sunday, March 19, and a list of names will be presented on that occasion whose drawing powers will be sufficient in themselves to fill the house were it for Mr. Harris's popularity and the occasion of his benefit. Among newspaper men Mr. Harris has many warm friends. Among the talent that will appear are Maude Barre, Miss Julia Arthur from Palmer's Theatre, New York, Harry Conner, Miss Queenie Vassar, Thomas Browne, by the permission of Hoyt & Thomas, Messrs. Conroy and Fox, and Flora Irwin, Harry Woodruff, Harry Brown, Thomas W. Ryley by Chas. Frohman's permission, P. B. Senia of the Boston Symphony orchestra, Max Bachman, Mr. Eugene Sweetland, and Miss Lottie Dean Bradford, Mr. James T. Powers, Peter Dailey, Richard Carle of Rich & Harris' "A Mad Bargain" company, Miss May Stevens Boyeson, Miss Helena B. Simmons, Miss Alice Bingham, Columbia Theatre orchestra, augmented and under the direction of Harry G. Mullaly, with Mr. Leon Keach, accompanist. This will include the unparalleled attraction that Mr. Harris will present and can be easily seen will combine the brightest lights of mimes and arts. The testimonial will occur at the Columbia next Sunday night, March 19.

15TH WEEK OF HOYT'S "A TEMPERANCE TOWN".—The 15th performance of Hoyt's "A Temperance Town" occurred at the Park Theatre and was very fittingly celebrated Monday evening. This extraordinary event of the 100th performance of an attraction in Boston was appropriately recognized with souvenirs and the patrons that evening were especially favored. The set of bronze in the form of a miniature barrel, making a combination of ink-stand and paper weight. The statuette of Gambirius surmounted the barrel. Author Hoyt is constantly adding new features to his latest work and by so doing furnishes good entertainment for those who may want to see the performance more than once. It now looks as if it would be many weeks before this play could be withdrawn and it will not be long ere the 150th performance of "A Temperance Town" will be celebrated. Author Hoyt himself was in attendance Monday evening and responded to the loud calls for him at the end of the 3rd act.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.—The principals of the Manola-Mason company which will be at the Columbia Theatre next week, have received such encouragement and such unusual commendation for their work as artists, that their new production is of more than passing interest. A new and free translation and adaptation has been made for the company of Erckmann Chartrain's remarkable three act play, "L'Ami Fritz," which within a few years has been one of the greatest successes of the Theatre Francaise in Paris, having had a run of something like 300 nights. As the public shows a keen appreciation of Miss Manola's musical gifts, fifteen pieces of music have been written for "Friend Fritz" by Julian Edwards, who has made a careful study of the voices of Mr. Mason and Miss Manola. A strong male and female quartet has been added to the company, the orchestra will be increased to almost operatic proportions, and a phase of musical life peculiar to the Alsations with whom the play deals, will be brought out. Picturesque Alsatian costumes and handsome scenery have been provided for the tour.

GLOBE THEATRE.—Next Monday night the eminent actor-actor, William Gillette, will appear in his original creation of his own phenomenally successful, and universally conceded, most humorous of all present day comedies, "The Private Secretary," at the Globe Theatre, commencing an engagement of two weeks, with matinees Wednesday and Saturdays. Of all plays of its class known to the annals of the modern stage, it is questionable if any have ever equalled in prosperity and lasting success the record of "The Private Secretary," which has a record of two years continuous run at the Globe Theatre, London, 300 performances in New York, at least 175 in Boston, and nearly 2500 performances throughout the principal American cities, so that it may be truly termed the pre-eminent laughing success in Europe and America. "The Private Secretary" is one of the very few plays that produces a line of incessant and irresistible laughter by legitimate methods, without being tainted by suggestiveness or the fagged-out specialty features. The cast is of unequalled excellence, and judging by the numerous requests for seats, from the first announcement of the engagement, the forthcoming engagement will be a duplicate of Mr. Gillette's many previous successes.

TREMONT THEATRE.—Sol. Smith Russell will come to the Tremont Theatre next week for his annual engagement. It would be difficult to make an announcement that would be received with more satisfaction by the patrons of this theatre, for Mr. Russell has won the highest regard and admiration of Boston—practically his home—and especially is he held in warm esteem by the better class of theatre-goers. Mr. Russell has given our people good grounds in the past for regarding him with favor, and that he will continue to do so does not admit of the slightest doubt. He is simple and natural, and his humor is of the most genuine and of the most closely allied to pathos. He is different from any one else, his individuality being very marked, and in this, almost as much as in his cleverness, lies the secret of his success. Mr. Russell will appear in his greatest play, opening Monday evening with "A Poor Relation," which will hold the boards for the week. He is supported by one of the best companies he has ever had. What a wizard this man Russell is? With equal ease he awakens our mirth and starts our tears. There is none like him on our stage; he is original, versatile, hearty and clear; he is the embodiment of every variety of pleasing sentiment and an evening spent in the presence of his genial personality gives one a broad and clear survey of that which is best in humanity.

"SHORE-ACRES" AT THE BOSTON MUSEUM.—Indeed, what a success! Crowded to overflowing houses, everybody delighted, and the management compelled to announce the sale of tickets two weeks in advance, the Boston Museum—a house famous half a century or more for uniform uninterrupted success—has really achieved in "Shore-Acres" a triumph rarely the privilege of the chronicler to record. Mr. W. D. Howells' cordial, yes, even enthusiastic, endorsement of Mr. Herne's play and performance (can we ever forget his dear, delightful "Nath'l Berry"?), was published some days ago, and now that gifted author of "The New England Nun," "Jane Field," etc., Miss Wilkins, sends the following wholly unsolicited tribute:

RANDOLPH, Mass.,
March 1, 1893.

My dear Mr. Field,
I must really tell you how delighted I am with "Shore-Acres." Of course it appeals to me very strongly since it deals with my own New England characters and scenes, but it is not that feature alone which pleases me (it seems to me that Nath'l Berry is a great dramatic creation, and the last scene is simply extraordinary in its originality and simplicity). Let me congratulate you very warmly on the presentation of such a play as "Shore-Acres."

Very sincerely,
MARY E. WILKINS.

"Valuable" Receipts.

Among some items that came under this heading last week was one for killing the nerve in a hollow tooth, and which said take half a dram of arsenic and half a dram of morphia and apply with a little creosote. A prominent dentist writes the GRAPHIC that as the dose would certainly kill the man it would probably kill the nerve, as it is large enough to kill twenty men. One twentieth of a grain of arsenic is all that dentists use to kill the nerve of a tooth.

The Story of a Novel.

Mr. Howells' latest novel, "The Coast of Bohemia," now running through the pages of The Ladies' Home Journal, was written in four different States. Mr. Howells began the novel at his father's home in Ohio last May; continued it in Boston in June; took it to the mountains of New Hampshire during the summer and worked at it; brought it to New York and wrote a number of chapters there in October; took it back again to Ohio in November, and finally finished it in New York last December. And yet, despite all these changes of places of writing, the novel turns out really to be the brightest piece of work that Howells has done for a long time.

He Knew Blaine.

The man who knew Blaine is out in force these days. He is as proud as the father of a pair of twins, says the New York Herald.

He is seen in all public places. He will take you in a corner, after he has shaken hands, and in a sorrowful tone of voice will say: "So Blaine is gone? Too bad! too bad! It is the greatest calamity that has befallen our diplomatic service since the death of Mr. Clay."

"Yes, yes," you say, by way of assent. "Let me see," says the man who knew Blaine, quizzically closing an eye, as though it was a task to remember. "Let me see: I was at the hotel at dinner one day and who should sit next to me but Mr. Blaine."

"Is that so?"
"Well, I guess. Mr. Blaine held quite a conversation with me. He said to me—'I shall never forget his words—he said to me—he said'—"

"What did he say?"

"He asked me to pass the butter."

Epidemic.
Whether the prevailing epidemic is La Grippe, a Catarrhal cold, or a type of acute Bronchitis, there is one thing certain, Ayer's Cherry Castoria is the most reliable and universally popular remedy for it. It loosens the cough, starts the phlegm, and promotes expectoration. It is prompt to act, sure to cure.

I have been a great sufferer from dry catarrh for many years, and I tried many remedies, but none did me so much benefit as Ely's Cream Balm. It completely cured me. M. J. Lally, 39 Woodward Ave., Boston Highlands, Mass.

"March to search" is the old adage. It searches out any weakness of the system, resulting from impure blood. Those who use Ayer's Sarsaparilla find March no more searching or even disagreeable than any other month. This medicine is a wonderful invigorator.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a number of years, and it has always given me satisfaction. It is an excellent dressing, prevents the hair from turning gray, insures its vigorous growth, and keeps the scalp white and clean."—Mary A. Jackson, Salem, Mass.

There is comfort for the man with a prematurely gray beard in Buckingham's Dye, because it never fails to color an even brown or black as may be desired.

That cure of Geo. W. Turner of Galway, N. Y., of scrofula, by Hood's Sarsaparilla, was one of the most remarkable on record.

Rich, Red Head
As naturally results from taking Hood's Sarsaparilla as personal cleanliness results from free use of soap and water. This great purifier thoroughly expels scrofula, salt humor and all other impurities and builds up every organ of the body. Now is the time to take it.

The highest praise has been won by Hood's Pills for their easy, yet efficient action. Sold by all druggists. Price 25 cents.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a work of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach." CARLOS MARTIN, D. D.,
New York City.
Late Pastor Bloomingdale Reformed Church.

Castoria cures Colic, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Eructation, Kills Worms, gives sleep, and promotes digestion. Without injurious medication.

NEWTON CENTRE.

—Ivers & Pond piano, Farley, Newton.
—Mr. Eames, the expressman, is better.
—Mr. John Ward is confined to the house with an attack of erysipelas.
—Mr. F. T. Stuart and family of Knowles street left for Florida, on Monday.
—Bishop Jaggar had a large congregation at Trinity church, last Sunday afternoon.
—Mr. Henry T. Hesse now leads in the voting contest for the watch at Vachon's pool room.
—Miss Annie Mayo of Wilmington has been visiting Mrs. E. J. Thorpe, of Palham street.
—On account of illness Peter Vachon did not stay as long in Woonsocket as he intended.
—Mr. D. S. Farnham has been elected vice-president of the Middlesex Schoolmaster's Club.
—The Rev. Mr. Bowser was in this village yesterday, looking better for his rest and the Wellesley air.
—Mrs. S. V. A. Hunter has returned from New York. Her daughter is in much improved health.
—Rev. Dr. Young of Waltham interested a large congregation at the Unitarian church last Sunday.

—Highland Lodge, 82, D. of R. will hold a Calico ball at Associates hall, on Wednesday evening, April 5th.
—There are letters in the post office for Lizzie Crowley, Eva Crowe, Thomas Goeghan, Susan Glover, Alf Hill.
—Miss Lucy Hartwell of Providence is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Joseph C. Hartshorn, of Institute avenue.
—Mrs. Martin, an old resident of this ward, died at her home on Ward street, Wednesday, after a short illness.

—Congratulations are being offered to Mr. and Mrs. Willard Monroe of Parker street, on the birth of a daughter.
—Mr. Charles Stearns is driving a handsome pair of young Western horses, which he purchased last Saturday in Boston.

—Mr. O. H. Fitz was one of the unfortunate in last Friday's terrible fire in Boston, his office in the Lincoln building being destroyed.

—Misses Lizzie Friend and Ellen Cook, former teachers of the private school here, now of Woonsocket, R. I., are here for a few days.

—Mr. Geo. F. Richardson met with an accident while driving to Boston on Monday, his wagon breaking down, but fortunately no one was injured.

—In another column will be found full particulars of the children's exhibit in Newton, under the management of the lady commissioners of the world's fair, for Massachusetts.

—Rev. Dr. Townsend of Jamestown, N. Y., will conduct the service of the Unitarian society next Sunday. All the regular members of the choir will resume their work next Sunday.

—At the sociable given by ladies of the Congregational Society, Wednesday evening, there was a very pleasant musicale, with violin solos by Sidney F. Emery, and vocal selections by Miss Montgomery of Portsmouth, N. H. Supper was served from 6:30 to 8 o'clock.

—Mrs. Chas. B. Moore of Sumner street died on Monday after a long illness of consumption. The funeral services on Thursday were held at the house and were conducted by Rev. T. F. Holmes, of whose church the deceased was a member. The interment is at Warren, the home of Mrs. Moore's parents, to-day.

—Mrs. Ida H. Blaisdell of Bowen street is prepared to fill orders for the preparation of refreshments of all kinds and will personally superintend the decorations and serving when desired. She will also fill orders for dinners, club suppers, and will supply families with creams, salads, rolls, bread, etc. To ensure the best results two days notice should be given.

—The social given under the auspices of the hall committee, 8, of T. Wednesday evening, was very successful. About forty couples were present and enjoyed dancing until 12 o'clock. A collation was served during the evening. The management wishes to announce that the Hall Committee will hold another on the 20th of this month.

—On Monday from 2:45 to 5:30 the Reading Club held a Spanish tea for the former and honorable members of the club, at the home of Mrs. E. W. Noyes on Sumner street. Miss Mary Elizabeth Blaisdell gave reading entitled, "Alonso el Sabio" and Mrs. Abba Gould Woolson gave a supplementary talk on Spain, from which country she has just returned. The rooms were beautifully decorated in red and yellow, the Spanish colors, and in the refreshments served the same colors were carried out, as far as possible. It was one of the most interesting meetings the club has held.

—There is strong opposition in this ward to any street railway Centre street and the petition circulated here in favor of such a scheme is remarkable for the absence of the names of prominent citizens and taxpayers. Why should Newton centre people want the means of going to Newton anyway, when they have more advantages than Newton can offer right at home. Perhaps the railroad might be a convenience for Newton people who want to visit us, but they could come by the circuit or by the other street railway soon to be built through Homer street. The Centre street scheme will arouse just as strong opposition as the plan for a railway on Beacon street, which was defeated several years ago, and none of the objectors have as yet seen cause to feel any regrets.

—Don't forget the Home Entertainment next Thursday, March 23rd. The association needs a full house to compensate for bad luck on the preceding dates. The music will be rendered by the local orchestra of our young people, which Mr. L. O'Keefe has been training. Mr. W. M. Noble will receive a selection and "Done on Both Sides" will be given with the following cast: Mr. Whiffles, Mr. W. H. Sables; Mr. John Brownjohn, Mr. H. A. Tomlinson; Mr. Phibbs, Mr. A. C. Ferry; Mrs. Whiffles, Miss Alice T. Reed; Lydia, Miss Lena M. Tomblow. The secret society initiation which opens the entertainment is of course not described, in fact it is said to be indescribable and, judging from the caste, its performance will paralyze the critics as well as the candidate.

—Mr. Roland W. Macurdy, the proprietor of the leading millinery establishment, 29 Moody street, Parmenter block at Waltham, returned this week from a week's stay in New York, where he has been in attendance upon the latest spring openings accompanied by his head ladies, Mrs. Jose and Miss Reed. The entire week was given up to a careful inspection of the imported patterns and the selection of the new goods which are now in stock ready for the Easter trade. Our ladies of this city are finding Mr. Macurdy's millinery as desirable and the style of work in every way as correct and in keeping with good taste as the leading millinery parlors of Boston and the prices much lower. Opening days are announced for Wednesday and Thursday, March 29 and 30.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

—Pianos, rented and tuned, Farley, Newton.
—Mrs. Dr. Eaton has gone to New Jersey for a short stay.
—Charley Logan has been ill for several days but is now better.

—Mrs. Hiram Ross has been ill with pneumonia for several days.
—The Chautauqua Circle will meet next Monday with Mrs. Francis Bellamy.

—Rev. Mr. Priest will have charge of the Unitarian services next Sunday at 4 o'clock.

—Week day services are held at St. Paul's during Lent on Wednesdays at 4 and on Fridays at 8.

—Mr. S. W. Jones has gone to Barre, Vt. where the carries of Messrs. Jones Bros. are located.

—Services next Sunday at St. Paul's at 10:45 and 7. The rector will officiate and preach at both services.

—M. E. services next Sunday at 3 o'clock. Preaching by the pastor, Rev. C. A. Shatto. Sunday school at 4 o'clock.

—The Boy's Club will meet at 7 o'clock next Wednesday, March 22nd, in the vestry room of St. Paul's church.

—The next meeting of the Monday Club will be with Mrs. Hodges on Boylston street, instead of with Mrs. Eaton.

—We hear from the Cottage Hospital that Mr. John R. Henderson is much better and will soon return to the Highlands.

—Mr. C. E. Beckman has been obliged to be absent from his business for a few days past on account of a felon on his hand.

—The fruit of the Japan Barberry, on the grounds of the B. & A. R. Co. at the Highlands, we notice is being gathered this week.

—Mrs. O. J. Kimball accompanies her husband this week on a business trip, hoping that a change of scene may be of benefit to her.

—Rev. Mr. Dunning will have charge of the services at the Congregational church next Sunday morning and evening. Seats free. All welcome.

—The burned out tenants of Stevens block would be a happier lot of men if the work of rebuilding was being pushed forward more vigorously.

—Mrs. Wheeler is on the mend and has taken the tenement in Mr. George P. Stevens house on Lincoln street, lately vacated by Mr. Houghton.

—Mr. Otis Bowen, the father of Mr. Otis E. Bowen, Jr., died on Tuesday, March 14th, at his home at Highlandville at the age of seventy-five years.

—The C. E. Society invite the public to a temperance address by Mr. Alfred Noon, Secretary of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence Society, Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the chapel of the Congregational church.

—Spring house building has commenced and we notice one by the Edmunds estate on Erie avenue, one by M. C. Bragdon on Lake avenue and one by E. H. Tarbell on Bowdoin street, and we hear of some to be built at Elliot in the near future.

—Sunday music at the Congregational church will include the following:
"Remember now thy Creator," Rhodes
"Father in thy mysterious presence," Gerrish
"Not a sparrow falleth," Gilbert (Song for tenor)
"O come Thou holy spirit," Abt

—There will be a children's entertainment at the Highlands Clubhouse on Friday afternoon and evening, March 24th, from 5 to 8 o'clock. Games great in variety and unique in character will contribute to the enjoyment of the little folks. Ice cream, candies and other refreshments will be served. Admission, children ten cents, adults twenty cents.

—The electric car leaving Newton Highlands at 10:35 Wednesday evening for Upper Falls, while turning the corner of Lincoln and Woodward streets, jumped the track and ran some 150 feet down the street leading to Elliot station. The cause is not known, but it is believed that the track must have been pried up with a stone just at the bend which caused the forward wheels to jump and of course the rear wheels had to follow. Motorman Eades did all in his power to stop the car, but as there is a steep grade at this point the car was not stopped until it had gone fully 150 feet. No damage was done and but three passengers were in the car. Word was sent to the car station and with the assistance of another car and ropes the runaway was pulled back to the rails.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Mrs. Chapple is reported to be quite ill.
—Mr. L. P. Everett is quite ill at his home.

—Officer Duggan made a number of arrests this week.

—Mr. W. Hill has accepted a position with the paper mill.

—Mrs. Shonfield, who has been very ill is recovering rapidly.

—Mr. Daniel Hurley is confined to the house with rheumatism.

—Mrs. Parents of this village has moved with her family to Lynn.

—Mrs. Eades is visiting friends at Maynard, Mass., for a few weeks.

—Miss L. A. Greene of this village is visiting friends at Providence.

—Congratulations are in order to Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Brindireth. It is a boy.

—Mr. James Coburn has moved into Mrs. Hurley's house on Sumner street.

—Mr. Warren Campbell, who has been confined to the house with a bad cold, is about again.

—Harry Shonfield has accepted the position as driver of the butcher wagon for U. W. Sherman.

—Mr. P. Coleman has severed his connection with the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Co.

—Mr. L. P. Everett holds the highest score for three strings at the bowling alley, the score being 575.

—Messrs. H. M. Coffin and Joseph Temperly are enjoying a week's vacation, fishing in Maine rivers.

—Mr. Jennings of Middleton, Mass., has been secured as bookkeeper for Mr. E. J. Hickey's paper company.

—Mr. Neil Derlin, employed by the Pottee Machine Co., has returned from the South, where he has been employed setting up machines.

—Mr. John W. White of Newton Highlands has purchased the Boot & Shoe & Furnishings store formerly owned by Mr. E. M. Estelle.

—The trolley wire in front of Mr. Bernard Billings house on High street has broken from one of the poles arms and it is hoped it will soon be fixed.

—The Ladies Sewing Circle held a social and supper at the Methodist church parlors, Wednesday evening, and a large number were present.

—The children of Mr. Charles Eades of Maynard, formerly of this village, have been suffering with scarlet fever, but at last reports all are getting along nicely.

—The boys commenced fooling with the Chinaman one evening last week and had it not been for the interference of a few men, the boys might have been punished severely.

—List of unclaimed letters: Maggie Cahill, Julia Daley, Amenda Lavendaut Francis Smith, Sam Dugan, Wm Larkin, Andrew Loon, Henry Menard, Archie Potter, B. Sane, Ebridge Davine.

—Mr. M. Crowley of the Pottee Machine Co. met with a very painful accident Wednesday, while at work, by having a drop of melted iron spatter in one of his eyes. The accident will not, it is reported, result seriously.

—The great rocks which are situated in the centre of Charles River opposite the pumping station are entirely under water; this has not been known before for a great many years. There is fear that if the river grows much higher much damage will be done.

—Never before has the Charles river been so high, and extra precautions are being taken to avoid any destruction. It is expected that as the snow melts from the hills, that it will cause the river to rise still higher, but there is hardly any fear of much damage.

—It is understood that grounds will be secured and an association is to be formed for the purpose of supporting a first class base ball team. It is something Newton Upper Falls has not had for a few years and as the place is growing there is a demand for the national game. Steps have already been taken to form an association and it is hoped that the enterprising citizens will contribute their aid. What a team wants is a good manager, one who will look out for the association's interest as well as the players. There is no doubt that a good team can be secured at a very small expense, and if the management is good the team will prosper. Already a few first class players have volunteered their services and the small cost will be simply their travelling expenses. In the near future the GRAPHIC will give to its readers full accounts as to what steps are taken.

—The C. E. Society invite the public to a temperance address by Mr. Alfred Noon, Secretary of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence Society, Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the chapel of the Congregational church.

—Spring house building has commenced and we notice one by the Edmunds estate on Erie avenue, one by M. C. Bragdon on Lake avenue and one by E. H. Tarbell on Bowdoin street, and we hear of some to be built at Elliot in the near future.

—The fire in Boston, Friday evening last, attracted a large number from here after it was learned that a call for aid from Newton passed over the wires.

—Services at St. Mary's last Sunday were celebrated in the main edifice, after a series of alterations and repairs to the interior. The congregation show a handsome improvement in all parts.

—The appropriations for the town of Wellesley, made at the recent town election far exceed those of any former year. Many and much needed improvements have been mapped out during the year.

—The petition of the citizens from this place for the appointment of a master at the Hamilton school, to the city council, will be presented to that body at meeting Monday evening, and it is expected that the matter will receive prompt attention, and a master assigned here at once.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

SOUTH STREET BOULEVARD—LOWER FALLS SCHOOL THROUBLE—WELLESLEY STREET RAILWAY AND OTHER MATTERS.

The board of aldermen met Monday night and in the absence of Mayor Fenno, President Bothfield occupied the chair. City Clerk Kingsbury was also absent and Assistant Clerk Brimblecom was empowered to act in his place, the reading of the records being dispensed with. The following appointments by the mayor were confirmed: Arthur F. Luke, trustee of Read Fund in place of the late Geo. C. Lord; Geo. H. Bourne, registrar of votes; Henry L. Bixby, special policeman, without pay.

SOUTH STREET BOULEVARD.

The rules were suspended to allow of the introduction of the petition for the South street boulevard, described in another column. The petition of the property holders was first presented, offering to give the land for a 120 foot street, to be built with two sidewalks, two roadways and a space in the center for two tracks of an electric street railway, from the Boston line to Centre street, and in consideration of the building of the road, the land owners will give the land necessary, and make no claim for grade or other damages.

Alderman Roffe also read a petition signed by about a hundred prominent residents of Newton Centre, asking for the laying out of the boulevard, as it would be a great benefit to the city, and would more than pay for the expense in a few years. Among the names were those of Alvah Hovey, D. B. Claffin, John H. Sanborn, E. H. Mason, A. D. Claffin, A. C. Walworth, W. F. Harbach, John Ward, J. H. Lesh and over a hundred others.

Alderman Roffe said the proposed boulevard would pass through a territory well calculated for building purposes, and which was now buried out of sight by the lack of any opening to it. Such a broad avenue would develop the land, and bring in a liberal return to the city, and prove a paying operation. It would attract a desirable class of residents, and the Kenyon street boulevard in Brookline, of which this was a continuation, showed what the result would be. It was especially desirable that an early understanding should be had of what the city would do, as the land to be conveyed to the city was much of it only held temporarily, and any considerable delay would make it impossible to carry out the offer made. He moved that it be referred to the highway committee, to determine whether the public convenience required and public necessity demanded such an improvement, and whether the damages would exceed the betterments. The petitioners would contribute liberally to the project, and would give an amount that would be equal to the cost of a 40 foot street, and probably more, and he thought the highway committee should confer with the boulevard commission and be instructed to report forthwith. A motion to that effect was passed.

LOWER FALLS SCHOOL.

The hearing on the petition of the Lower Falls to have a master again placed in charge of the Hamilton school was opened. A petition to that effect was read, which included most of the parents of Lower Falls.

Mr. W. B. Atherton was present with a score or so of remonstrants, who protested against the action of the school committee.

Mr. Sears said he had three sisters, one of whom attended the High and two the Hamilton school; next year, one of them would be 12 years old, and would have to go to Auburndale, and be absent from 8 o'clock till five, while the one in the High school reached home soon after one o'clock. It was an injury to the people of Lower Falls, to the property owners, and an injury to the place.

Mr. Hewitt said he would have a daughter fitted to enter the 8th grade this fall, and he was not willing to have her go to Auburndale. It was bad for the morals of the children, and dangerous, as the children had no one to look after them on the train. Besides his daughter took music lessons, and if she was absent all day she would have to give them up. He had bought a piano for his daughter because there was a good school there, and should be sorry to have to make a change.

Mr. Levi Wales said he would have a child this fall, ready to enter this grade and he was not willing to have her go to Auburndale, and run the risk that the children had to run who went by train.

Mr. Bernard Early said his children would be prepared soon for the grade, and he protested against having to send them to Auburndale. Changing cars at Riverside made the trip especially dangerous, as there was no supervision. It was also bad for the children, and bad for their health, to compel them to eat a cold dinner. Many of the children were a great help to their parents at home, and this arrangement deprived the parents of their services. One lady told him she could give her daughter an education, and as she was an invalid and her daughter helped about the house it was a great hardship to be deprived of her all day. Many of the parents in Lower Falls could give their children nothing but an education, and if this practice was kept up, it would simply deprive these children of an education. The effect on property was shown by the vacant houses now at the Falls. An engineer on the railroad went to rent a house, this year, a man getting $130 a month and who would have been an excellent citizen, but finding the condition of the school, he hired a house in another place. The scheme might work in some country place like Dover or Sherborn, but the condition of things in Lower Falls was different. It had a mixed population, and the class of children attending the Hamilton school needed a master to control them, as many of the children got no home training.

Mr. P. C. Baker said the Lower Falls people were merely standing up for their rights, they did not ask anything as a favor or as charity.

Real estate would suffer as Lower Falls was peculiarly situated. On one side of the river was Wellesley with its tax rate and cheaper rents, and the Newton side had only held its own by the excellence of the school system.

Mr. W. R. Diamond said there was a great contrast between the present and past condition of the Hamilton school, when it had a master there were no complaints but now the school was floundering out, like the ship of a rope, and its influence was going. It needed a master to keep up the standard.

Dr. F. W. Freeman said all he had was invested in real estate in Lower Falls, and if this thing continues he should have to relocate. His child would have to go to Auburndale before she was eleven, although this year the children who go happen to be older. It was unfair to single out Lower Falls for such treatment and make it the only village in Newton without a grammar school, and would be a great detriment to the place.

Conductor John Bean spoke of the danger to the children, which he saw every day. The children would run and jump on trains after they had started and it was a wonder that none had yet been injured. It was also a great detriment to property and would damage Lower Falls and help Wellesley.

Mr. Atherton told of some narrow escapes of the school children, which he had witnessed, and the change for the worse in the conduct of the school children, which had come since the master was removed. He owned several houses and heretofore he had been able to let them when houses on the Wellesley side were vacant, solely on account of the excellence of the schools in Newton. But Wellesley was making great inducements now, which would work against Lower Falls, unless the school was restored to its former excellence.

Superintendent Aldrich replied to the criticism that had been made, by quoting the practice of other towns and cities such as Concord, and in 45 per cent of the towns and cities of the state, and 26 of the towns and cities in Middlesex county. The school committee was responsible, and the City Council had no power in the matter and no right to interfere. In September of the 8th grade, there were only 7 pupils in the 8th grade, and none in the ninth, and the total in the school was 108. The question was whether the board should spend $1,900 for a master, or $150 to send the pupils to Auburndale.

Mr. Atherton said the people did not ask for an additional teacher, the master could replace one of the three lady teachers.

Mr. Aldrich continued by saying that the question was of making the schools the best possible for the money. There were many things Newton needed, one of which was a kindergarten system, and the board was thinking of starting one in Lower Falls. It was merely a question of economy and efficiency.

Of the 7 pupils from Lower Falls, one was a non-resident, and the ages ranged from 16 years and 6 months to 13 years and 10 months, the average being 14 years and 9 months, and there are pupils at the High School younger than that, whose parents found no fault with their being sent there. Every provision was made for the comfort of these pupils. The master gets there early to receive them, he stays there during the noon hour to look after them, and during the winter they were released at an earlier hour. He thought it would not be wise to interfere now, but let the year be finished, as the arrangement was only a temporary one, and only 14 weeks were left. The board had made no plans about next year. The same plan was followed in Waban and no complaints came from them. The teachers at Lower Falls said there had been no deterioration in the conduct of the pupils.

Mr. Atherton asked if the teachers might not be prejudiced.

Mr. Aldrich wanted to know if Mr. Atherton charged them with being untruthful.

Mr. Atherton said he did not, but they were certainly interested parties, and he said the case of Waban was not a parallel one. The school there was started ten years ahead of time, and part of the pupils now there used to attend at Lower Falls. The school was small, had never had a master, and so did not miss him.

This closed the hearing and the board after objections from Alderman Roffe passed the order appropriating $172 for conveying pupils the balance of the year.

STREET RAILWAYS.

The hearing on the petition of the Wellesley and Boston Street Railway for a location on Margin, Lander and Washington streets to Lower Falls was opened and the petition was amended by striking out Lander street, and asking for location on Margin and Washington streets only. There were no remonstrants, the change in location having removed the cause for complaint, and a hearing was appointed on the amended petition for Monday, April 3rd, at 8 p. m.

A large number of petitions for sewerage apportionments of assessments were received.

E. W. Lyon was granted an honorable discharge as foreman of No. 1 engine, and John F. Horrigan was promoted from assistant foreman to fill the vacancy. B. F. Tripp was made assistant foreman, and F. A. Barrows was appointed hoseman. A. E. Astbrook was appointed driver of No. 5 hose, and Curtis was transferred to No. 8.

MORE TIME.

The special commission investigating the subject of the abolition of the street crossings asked to have the time limit extended from April 1st to May 1st, and the request was granted.

A remonstrance against the proposed railway from Oak Square to Newton and on Centre street was presented, signed by 69 taxpayers.

A petition to have all the petitions for street railway locations now before the board referred to the Boulevard commission, except the Needham railway, was received.

The Newton & Boston Street Railway company petitioned for a location on the proposed South street boulevard, and Alderman Plummer presented the petition of the Auburndale Village Improvement Association, asking that the estate of Don Cameron, comprising some 7 acres, be taken under the Park act and added to the Auburndale Park, as the same cannot be purchased, the society agreeing to pay one half the cost. Referred to the Park committee.

COULD HIDE ON IT.

Alderman Plummer read a letter from Wm. E. Scribner, calling attention to the piggy, swill yard, and dump for night soil on Lexington street, the highway to Waltham, the smell from which was strong enough to ride a bicycle on. The night soil was dumped thirty feet from his house. On the 23rd of February, Alderman Plummer said a four horse team was stuck in the snow on the street and the driver opened the tank and let all the night soil into the street and it remained there yet. The Auburndale Improvement Association asked to have the place attended to last September, and the petitioners were slapped in the face by the board of health. A man lay sick of malaria all summer near the place, and 40 residents signed a petition to the board of health, but their petition was simply laid on the table. It was an outrage on the people to empty the swill of the whole city on Auburndale, and a menace to public health. Talk about quarantining Boston against the cholera, we have the seeds of pestilence right here at home. If the board of health won't attend to this matter let them be dumped out and get men that will.

He moved that the question be referred to the board of health, with instructions to take immediate action, and the motion passed.

The Telephone Co. were granted license to attach cross arms to the fire alarm poles on Lexington street.

H. E. Johnson was granted a license to run a wire across Washington and Jewett streets.

The owners of two houses on Gay place, Newtonville, asked to have the sewer extended so that the houses could be connected; referred.

H. H. Hunt was granted license to erect a house 30 by 80 feet on Washington street.

The Nonantum Worsted company were granted license to erect a brick building 72 by 100 feet on Chapel street.

Chas. H. Sprague, attorney, gave notice of a claim for damages preferred by Mrs. Dill for injuries received Feb. 10th.

Alex. Maguire was granted license to move building 100 feet on Crafts street.

Residents of Prince street petitioned for main drain and sewer.

Edward Croy was granted license to erect private stable 25 by 30 feet on corner Watertown and Adams street.

Abner L. Gordon was granted license to move building from Walnut to Turner street.

WEST NEWTON ENGINE.

A petition was received from Henry L. Bixby, chief of Fire Department, asking that No. 2 engine be placed in active service; referred to fire committee.

Geo. E. Allen withdrew his name from the petition for a railway on Centre street.

Pine & Co. gave notice of intention to build house 26 by 33 on Bourne street.

An order was passed appropriating $89,359.88 for city expenses during April.

Mrs. W. A. Merritt asked for license to build addition 16 by 23 to house, No. 188 Nonantum street.

J. A. McLeellan gave notice of intention to build house on Centre street, Ward 6, for Rev. Mr. Bullen.

The Newton & Boston street railway was granted license to build power house on Homer street, and locate a 375 horse power engine therein.

John Monaghan was again denied a license for carriage stand on Margin street.

The Telephone Co. were granted license for poles on Nahanton and Dedham streets.

$7,430 was appropriated for the laying of water pipes on Woodward street, Pennsylvania avenue and other streets.

The board then went into executive session.

MUSIC AT THE LIBRARY.

A CATALOGUE OF THE LOAN MUSIC NOW TO BE HAD.

To the Editor of the Graphic:

Through the provisions of the Jewett Art Fund of the Newton Free Library, there has been added to the catalogue of that institution a department of printed, or what is commonly termed "sheet" music. This feature has already been adopted by many great public and private libraries in this country, among the former being those of Boston and Brooklyn, and among the latter that of Harvard College; and its value to the public is well attested by the large circulation it has attained in these places.

Boston is probably favored with the best, if not the greatest number of performances of the highest class of music in all its forms, with the single exception of operatic representations, of any of our cities; and the residents of Newton have always shown their appreciation of these advantages by their frequent and liberal patronage of these concerts. Moreover, the number of residents of Newton pursuing the study of music is very large. Probably this number would be still larger were it not for the heavy expense often entailed by the purchase of necessary music; the cost of the separate works required is not so great, but the number of them required often makes the total cost a considerable sum.

Again, to a student, or even to the average listener, who enjoys what he hears and cares to know something about it, who attends the various recitals and symphony and chamber concerts given in Boston, an inestimable advantage is to be gained if even a slight knowledge of the works to be heard may be acquired previous to their performance. The programs of all these concerts are almost invariably published in advance; and yet up to this time even works very frequently heard are quite unavailable for study or reference.

With the object in view of providing for these wants, as well as to increase the local interest in the highest class of music, the catalogue has been compiled. It was a course impossible to include everything the first year that would be eventually desirable; but the catalogue has been chosen with the greatest care; the works are in every case representative of their composers, and it is believed are those best fitted to carry out the objects of their selection.

The catalogue may be divided at present into three sections: pianoforte works, vocal works, and vocal scores. The first section includes (a) the complete pianoforte works of J. S. Bach, Chopin, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Schumann and Weber; the principal works of Beethoven, Grieg, and Mozart, and of the other prominent composers of both schools; (b) studies for the pianoforte, notably the most useful ones of Kullak, Moscheles, Czerny, Clementi and Heller; (c) works and arrangements for four hands on one pianoforte.

The vocal music includes the complete songs of Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Mozart, Schubert, Jensen, Grieg, and Schumann, with liberal excerpts from those of the other great song-writers of the German, French, Italian, and Old English schools. These songs are invariably printed with English words, beside the original text, and with pianoforte accompaniment. The term "vocal score" signifies what is, in most cases an abridgment of the original, or orchestral score; in the vocal score the voice parts are given in full, as in the original, but with the accompaniment for the pianoforte, arranged or condensed from the orchestral score. In this form will be found nearly sixty of the best known oratorios and cantatas. In the pianoforte works, excepting those for four hands, "arrangements" have been entirely excluded. (I do not intend the term "arrangements" to include fantasies or transcriptions such as those of Liszt upon themes from Don Juan, Rigoletto; but it refers to works originally written for orchestra or other large body, which are condensed into a score for pianoforte. Such arrangements are rarely either competent or effective for two hands, and are therefore of doubtful value.) But attention is called to the arrangements for four hands of orchestral works, and to the vocal scores; to the first, on account of the excellent opportunity afforded to patrons of our orchestral concerts of familiarizing themselves with the works to be heard; and to the second, on account of the constantly increasing interest in church music and its elevation.

In the matter of editions also, much care has been exercised; in the pianoforte works the Peters and the Breitkopf and Hartel editions have been preferred, although in some instances single works of other editions were found to be superior and were chosen. The songs and vocal scores are chiefly from the editions of Schirmer, New York, and Novello, London, respectively. These volumes have all been well bound and are now ready for circulation upon the same conditions as the other works of the library. It is understood that additions will be made from time to time and should the circulation of the present catalogue warrant it, not only will they be made to the works already included in it, but its scope will be enlarged by the addition of chamber music, (sonatas, trios, quartets, etc. for various instruments), operatic works in vocal score, and full or orchestral scores.

Very truly yours,
J. WALLACE GOODRICH.

It will cost you less money to paint your house with Chilton Paint than any other kind. You will use fewer gallons of it than any paint ever made, for every shade is mixed and ground in pure linseed oil seven times, and therefore will cover more surface than a paint made in an ordinary way. Not only will it cover more, but it will last for years if it is applied to a dry surface. Never allow your painter to work over wet wood. You are sure to be disappointed. If the pores of the wood are filled with water, the oil cannot enter. Better not have your house painted at all than to have it done badly. "Chilton Paint Co." New York and Boston.

BOULEVARDS AND PARKWAYS.

City and Suburban Interest in the Subject.

BOSTON LIKELY TO FOLLOW THE LEAD OF OTHER CITIES—WHAT THE NEWTON BOULEVARD COMMISSION IS DOING—CO-OPERATION BY PUBLIC-SPIRITED LAND OWNERS—WORK OUTLINED.

The subject of boulevards and parkways as means of suburban development is one which is agitating the minds of a large proportion of the population of our great cities and their surrounding population, and is the subject of several special acts as applicable to the town of Brookline in the development of the system as shown in the Beacon street boulevard and other projects.

The people and authorities of Boston are being stirred up on this subject, and the Blue Hill avenue extension and Marine Parkway are two of the results. The extension of the Charles river embankment and Commonwealth avenue are unquestionably to become very important factors in the development of that portion of Boston lying north of the Beacon street boulevard. The extraor-tribute a large sum of money toward making this great improvement. Other who, though not immediately abutors, but whose land is near enough to be very largely increased in value by this great improvement, are hesitating between the alternatives of having assessments for betterment on the part of the city, or making contributions toward the construction of the parkway.

This enterprise is the outcome of a plan suggested to the Newton boulevard commission by several citizens of Newton, and follows largely the lines of a road originally surveyed and laid out by the late Marshall S. Rice, who laid out a large number of the roads in Newton, and as in all such cases, the improvement is the result of a combination of public and private interests.

The latter feature of the plan is represented by a land trust called the Newton Boulevard Syndicate, in which Dana Estes and Albert D. S. Bell are promoters and trustees and large subscribers to the capital stock. The syndicate is to be organized on the same plan as that of the Aberdeen Land Company, of which Mr. Bell was one of the original trustees. Among those who have contributed capital to this enterprise may be mentioned the following:

accepted without delay by the city government of Newton, and the boulevard promptly laid out and constructed within the present municipal year. The promoters confidently expect that within the year the boulevard will be constructed and the cars running over it and coming directly from Boston over this line to Newton Centre and the other parts of Newton westward from this.

Some 10 days ago it was exclusively published in the Herald that a boulevard was to be built between Chestnut Hill reservoir and Newton Centre, on the north side of the reservoir. Since that time the promoters have been hard at work, and their plans are now complete.

The route of the proposed boulevard, which will first be brought to the attention of the city government by its promoters and by petitions of others, is the extension of the system of Boston and Brookline, which was recommended by Mayor Matthews and the board of survey through South and Ward streets and across Hammond street and Grant avenue to Centre street in Newton Centre, and it is afterward proposed to extend the same system to Newton Highlands and Auburndale, Newton Lower Falls and Wellesley. Another connection with this system is proposed to diverge to the right at the Boston line and connect with Newton and Newtonville.

The plan herewith presented and illustrated in our design is one laid out by George S. Rice and George E. Evans, en-

the watercourse is placed in an open strip of grassy or bushy ground, upon each side of which is constructed a roadway affording access to houses built facing the stream. In this way three results are brought about at once. The pollution of the stream is effectually prevented, a handsome thoroughfare is created, and the value of adjacent real estate is so enhanced that it much more than makes good the subtraction of the brook banks which have been given to the public. The treasury of the city of Newton will soon be more than reimbursed by the increase of the taxable values along the stream.

Below the dam at Watertown, Charles River is salt, and bordered by salt marshes backed by more or less distant uplands. Out of a total length of sixteen miles of bank, from Watertown bridge to Craigie bridge and back again, almost four miles are already controlled by public or semi-public agencies. Among the rest the United States Arsenal, the Cambridge Cemetery, the Corporation of Harvard College and the city of Boston all own long frontages,—a part of Boston's river front has already become a popular promenade and playground, known as the Charlesbank. Moreover, the percentage of the remaining frontage occupied by costly structures is very small. Most of the marginal proprietors are still at liberty to do what they choose with their own. It must be evident to them that the use of the river for shipping purposes is almost at an end. Navigation by masted vessels cannot be continued much longer, because of the intolerable interruption to traffic caused by the opening of the draws of the crowded bridges. This being admitted, the question arises whether the most profit will in the end be reaped by offering the river lands to the builders of factories and slums, or by drawing to them the builders of good private and apartment houses. One numerous body of marsh and flat owners has already staked its money on the belief that the most profit is to be derived from the last-named method of procedure. Acting on this conviction the Charles River Embankment Company has given the city of Cambridge a riverside esplanade two hundred feet wide and five thousand feet long, in the rear of which it is building a series of fine streets which converge upon Harvard bridge. In Watertown another company of landowners is about to lay out a large tract of riverside upland upon a similar, though a more rural, plan. In Boston around the so-called Fens, and in Brookline and Boston along the improved Muddy River, real estate is already reaping the advantage arising from the successful conversion of a damaging nuisance into a profit-making attraction. What has been done in these last-named places can gradually be done in less expensive ways along Charles River whenever a metropolitan commission, free to act in several cities and towns, shall be empowered to co-operate with the local landowners in pushing forward a work which cannot fail to profit both the landowners and the public.

There remains one other kind of inland open space of more than local yet of not such general value as the rivers,—the ponds of the district, about which, as in the case of the rivers, there ought generally to be protecting public way, even if it be no more than a footpath. Here again the intelligent interest of speculative landowners will in time effect something,—the more quickly if such private interest can be encouraged by a board officially representing the public interest in such works. What can be done is well illustrated at Lake Quannapowitt, where a public road follows a tree-fringed shore for more than a mile, and gives access to the boating which the lake affords. Most of the ponds are, however, too small for boating; so that those who take pleasure in that sport make use of the Charles River between Waltham and Dedham,—a part of the river thus far omitted because for the purposes of this report, it is to be regarded as one long pond. From Waltham to Newton Lower Falls the stream is still idyllic in its beauty, though threatened here and there by monstrous ugliness. Hundreds of persons from Boston and many other parts of the district are to be found here every pleasant afternoon in summer. In all this district there is no other place where quiet boating in such surroundings can be had.

Must all this beauty of the upper river, with all its valuable opportunities for recreation, be destroyed? The town of Brookline and the cities of Newton and Waltham draw their water supplies from this valley; and for the protection of those supplies they already own between Waltham and Dedham some six out of a total of twenty miles of river bank. They ought to own much more; and as in the Fens a metropolitan commission might do the public good service by joining the domains of the various water boards, so here upon the Charles River the same body might likewise do much for the public by encouraging further purchases, by accepting the charge of gifts of lands, and by showing the landowners the ways to the many dangers both to health and to property which the continued private ownership of the banks will entail.

Probably every one has been greatly troubled at one time or another, by the difficulty of finding the location of some pond, hill or stream, or even some town. Hereafter, all that will be required is a copy of "Massachusetts Map and Index." The Map shows all the towns, railroads, post offices, post routes, etc. The Index contains over five thousand names, carefully arranged, and after each it is stated whether it is a river, brook, pond, lake, village, post office, railroad station, town, or city, and the county or town in which each is located. It is full and accurate, and is worth many times the price charged for both Map and Index. For sale by the dealers, or sent by mail on receipt of 25 cents, by the publishers, Geo. H. Walker & Co., 160 Tremont street, opposite Boston Common, Boston, Mass.

Needham & Newton Electric. The selectmen of Needham have granted a franchise to the Needham & Newton Electric Street Railroad Company to lay tracks from Chestnut street to Highland avenue, and from Highland avenue to the Newton line. The company has also a franchise to build from the Needham line on Needham street to Winchester street, to Centre street, to Walnut street, to the track of the Boston & Albany railroad.

The road will be about 4.12 miles in length, and it is expected to be in operation by the 30th of May.

Proceeding now to Waltham, Charles River should be followed in its course through the very middle of the metropolitan district. As far as Watertown the stream is of fresh water, flowing tranquilly through lowlands. A few large mills are seated on its banks, but outside of the closely built parts of Waltham and Watertown the shores are generally quite free from buildings. Half-way between the towns is the mouth of Cheese-Cake Brook, where the city of Newton is practically illustrating the treatment which, with local modifications, should be applied to all the larger waterways of the district as soon as the lands about them are surrendered for building purposes. Instead of covering the stream with back yards or a street, recreation ground, and it is most fortunate that nature has here provided all the elements and places that are ready to our hands. If to the charming water park of Charles River and Stony Brook there be added not only Prospect Hill to the north of the reservoir but also Doublet Hill on the south, a very satisfactory reservation will be obtained. The latter hill, while not so high as Prospect, commands more pleasing views of the river valley, while from the surface of the stream it is itself an attractive, and sometimes an imposing, object.

Passing now up the Charles River valley toward the southern highlands, it is well to stop for a moment at the wonderful little gorge of Newton Upper Falls, where the river cuts its way through ledges clothed with hemlocks. The narrow stream flows swift and dark between quaintly broken rocks, and the great stone arch which bears the Sudbury River aqueduct leaps boldly across from bank to bank. Like the brook and the oak at Waverley this is a spot of uncommon interest and beauty, which, because it lies within the bounds of three municipalities, can be preserved for the delight of the public only by some co-operative or metropolitan agency.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

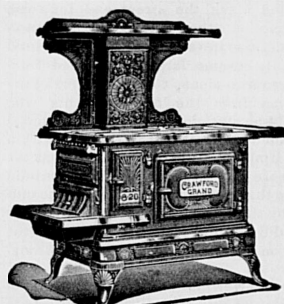

H. A. Archer, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

inary development of the territory adjacent to the Brookline Beacon street boulevard, resulting from its construction, and the introduction of the electric railroad tracks in a reserved space, is something almost unprecedented in the history of suburban development.

In six years the increase in value of the land within 500 feet of each side of Beacon boulevard in Brookline is estimated at $4,333,400, of which $1,200,200 was on the buildings and $3,133,200 on the land. At the tax rate of $11.80 this means an increased revenue to the town of more than $51,000 per year. The boulevard has been a profitable investment for Brookline.

A further extension of the Beacon street boulevard and Commonwealth avenue to the line of Newton is the inevitable result of this great growth, and the board of survey and the street commissioners of Boston have wisely determined to recommend, in connection with Mayor Matthews, the widening of Chestnut Hill avenue from the present termination of the Beacon street boulevard and Commonwealth avenue and South street on the north side of the Chestnut Hill reservoir to the Newton line.

The city government of Newton has taken the initiative in a movement to extend this system of boulevards, and perhaps others tributary to it, through that city. Ex-Mayor H. E. Hibbard, before retiring from office, appointed a special commission to investigate this subject and report to the city government. This commission consists of Mr. E. B. Haskell, Hon. J. R. Leeson and Mr. G. W. Converse. This commission is making a very thorough and systematic study of the subject, not only of boulevards, but of parkways and playgrounds throughout the entire city of Newton.

North of this lies the large farm formerly the property of the heirs of Stephen H. Bennett, and now belonging to Dana Estes; also the farm lying on the southern slope of Waban hill, belonging to Jerome A. Bacon. Westward from this point the boulevard passed along the estate of Herbert Dumaresq, a member of the firm of Jordan, Marsh & Co., the estates of A. D. S. Bell, T. Albert Ward, John Ward, George K. Ward, Hon. Robert R. Bishop, George S. Rice, Alden Speare, Rev. Alvah A. Hovey, and terminates at Centre street between the residences of Henry D. Degen and George E. Gilbert.

All of these owners and others owning smaller tracts of land intervening have promised co-operation in a public spirited manner and will contribute their land, and some of them will also contribute a large sum of money toward making this great improvement. Other who, though not immediately abutors, but whose land is near enough to be very largely increased in value by this great improvement, are hesitating between the alternatives of having assessments for betterment on the part of the city, or making contributions toward the construction of the parkway.

This enterprise is the outcome of a plan suggested to the Newton boulevard commission by several citizens of Newton, and follows largely the lines of a road originally surveyed and laid out by the late Marshall S. Bell are promoters and trustees and large subscribers to the capital stock. Among those who have contributed capital to this enterprise may be mentioned the following:

accepted without delay by the city government of Newton, and the boulevard promptly laid out and constructed within the present municipal year. Another connection with this system is proposed to diverge to the right at the Boston line and connect with Newton and Newtonville.

The plan herewith presented and illustrated in our design is one laid out by George S. Rice and George E. Evans, engineers of the rapid transit commission, with Frederick Law Olmstead & Co. as consulting engineers.

The varied experience of these engineers is guarantee of the very best results, and the plan as presented comprises two broad sidewalks with tree planting space outside of them; two macadamized roadways of good width, and a reserved space or parkway in the centre of considerably greater width than the one on the Beacon street boulevard. It is intended that this shall be grassed over and have two rows of trees on the outside of it, but ample space will be provided for two tracks for the electric cars and for the growth and expansion of the trees on the outside lines of the parkway, and for the economical clearing of a heavy fall of snow, experience having shown that the reserved space upon the Beacon street boulevard is not of sufficient width to serve these purposes to the best possible advantage. And it is also a self-evident fact that an extra width of grassed space, instead of macadamized road, will materially reduce the cost of maintenance of the whole boulevard. The entire width is to be 125 feet.

The advantages of the location of this great improvement lie in the fact that it borders upon the splendid natural park now surrounding the two great basins of the Chestnut Hill reservoir; that it skirts along the side of Waban hill, which has been acquired by the city of Newton for its high-service reservoir and surrounding park, the views from which are not surpassed by those from any hill top in the vicinity of Boston.

The view from this point stretches eastward to the outer harbor of Boston, southward to the Blue Hills of Milton, and westward to the city of Newton, to Wachusett and Mt. Monadnock, and the panorama stretching from Newton, Brighton, Cambridge, Somerville, Charlestown and Boston, is one of surpassing interest and beauty.

The new boulevard will have a length of one mile in the city of Boston, and one and four-tenths miles in Newton, a total of about 2.12 miles. The distance from West Chester park over Beacon street to Chestnut Hill reservoir is about three and one-half miles, which would make the distance via the same route and the Newton boulevard from Centre street, Newton Centre, to West Chester park, Boston, in the vicinity of six miles.

On the south of the new boulevard, lying on the slope to the western basin of the Chestnut Hill reservoir and between it and the boulevard, is the fine property owned by Mr. S. B. Hinkley and family. It formerly belonged to the late Amos Lawrence. On this property is a comfortable lodge built from the materials of the historic John Hancock mansion from Beacon Hill in Boston.

METROPOLITAN PARK COMMISSION.

PORTIONS OF THE REPORT OF INTEREST TO NEWTON.

We have received from Sylvester Baxter, secretary of the Metropolitan Park Commission, a copy of the report which has just been published, and which treats in several places of matters now of special interest to Newton, on account of the new parks about to be established along the Charles River.

The following extracts will be of interest to Newton people:

Westward once more, beyond the Mystic River valley, the swelling highlands of Winchester, Arlington and Belmont are far less rugged than those of Lynn, Saugus, Melrose and the Fells. They are cultivable in most parts, while in Arlington the so-called Heights have become a suburban colony, the inhabitants of which can see the New Hampshire mountains in one direction and the ocean in the other. Two-thirds of the way over to the Charles River valley, Beaver Brook issues from the highlands through a miniature gorge and then flows among some glacial ridges upon which stand the largest surviving oak trees of our district. The waterfall in the little gorge and this famous grove of oaks should certainly be preserved; but this cannot be accomplished under any statutes now in force, because the brook is the dividing line between Belmont and Waltham. Again, as in the case of the Fells, an instrumentality new to our community is needed.

Still following along the front of the highlands, past Owl Hill and Cedar Hill, it is not until the heart of Waltham is reached that any present need of a large open space appears. Here is a rapidly increasing community which is fortunate in finding at its very doors both a pretty river and a great and rugged hill. The river's surface is perhaps twenty feet

THE SEWER ORDINANCE.

Certain members of the City Government of 1892 have sent us a letter, which appears in another column, which is as remarkable for what it does say as for what it omits to say, and perhaps the most significant thing about it are the reservations made and implied in the supplementary statement signed by Alderman Both-field which is worth careful reading.

The signers of the letter appear to be resistive under the charge made at a recent legislative hearing that they were controlled by one man in the City Council of 1892. We confess it was not wise to make the statement at the legislative hearing, as it brought personalities into the discussion, and a city, like a family, should not air their private quarrels before outsiders.

The letter itself needs a few words of explanation, as the statements might be taken to mean much more than the signers intended. The assertion that it "was in reality the ordinance recommended and advocated by Mayor Fenno when he was a member of the sewer committee in 1890" is true as far as it goes, but might convey a wrong impression. Every one knows that Mr. Harbach favored placing all the cost of the sewers on the abutters, and that was the original ordinance. Mr. Fenno opposed this, as he thought it would be a hardship on the property owners, and tried to have it amended, by putting part of the cost on the city. He first endeavored to have the city pay for the main sewers, but Mr. Harbach refused to accept any such amendment. Mr. Fenno then endeavored to have part of the cost assumed by the city, and placed that proportion as low as 25 per cent, not because he favored such a low percentage, but because, like a wise legislator, he thought better to ask for what there was some probability of his getting,
but this was also defeated.

Then came a session of the legislature, and a law was passed that not less than one-fourth nor more than three-fourths of the cost of building sewers, we forget the exact figures, was to be paid by the city or town, and those in the City Government at that time will remember that this change in legislation was due to Alderman Sheppard and others, and was opposed by Alderman Harbach. When the time came for drawing up the ordinance, it had to be changed from the original ordinance, to conform to the law. The signers say truly that the new ordinance was not the one Mr. Harbach favored, but they omit to state that it was made as nearly like the old ordinance as the law would permit, the percentage to be paid by the city reduced to the smallest point that would be legal, and of course they do not pretend to say that Mr. Harbach had no hand in this.

It takes several weeks to get an ordinance through all the stages, and when the final vote was taken Mr. Harbach was not present, as the letter says, but the matter had been considered in many executive sessions, and there was no doubt of his position in the matter. It was not necessary for him to lobby with the members, as the City Council of 1892 was a very harmonious body, and the majority in both branches never thought of taking any independent action, which is one reason why there was such a sweeping change at the last city election. It is not too much to say that it was the most harmonious City Council in the history of the city, and there were none of the usual lively contests between the two branches.

The charge that legislation was controlled by one man was often made by outsiders, who saw that whatever a certain alderman favored was carried through, the majority seeming to have such perfect confidence in him, that they never stopped to question but what anything he was known to favor was "for the interests of the city."

It is a great compliment to any one man to have his associates place such implicit confidence in his wisdom, but unfortunately the voters did not take the same view of the matter, and their verdict was so emphatic that there was no mistaking
it. The city is of much more importance than the fortunes of any one man, and in this connection it might be stated that any members of the City Council who think they were elected to defend any official of last year are making a grave mistake, and one that will prove disastrous to their chances of future preferment. The present Mayor and City Council were elected to change an unpopular ordinance, and the voters do not care what their motives were in voting for that ordinance last year.
They are willing to take for granted that the votes were cast from disinterested motives. But what the voters want is to have that ordinance changed; they said so emphatically at the last election, and the action of the members now is of much more importance than the reasons for their actions last year. The voters are watchful and also rather impatient, and if they see that any members refuse to aid in what they were elected to accomplish, such members might as well announce at once that they are not candidates for a re-election.

THE NEWTON BOULEVARD.

The plans and petitions for the new boulevard, presented at the board of aldermen Monday night, give evidence of the enterprise of the men who have taken hold of this project and they are evidently disposed to be very liberal in their dealings with the city. They offer not only to give the land for a street 120 feet wide, but also to contribute an amount towards building the street, sufficient to pay for the ordinary 40 foot street.

The question now comes, whether it will pay the city to accept this liberal offer, and what the result will be of laying out such a street. In the first place Newton has not a single street of generous width within its borders, yet in spite of this drawback, handsome residences have been erected all over the city and the process of development has gone slowly on. The Skinner Hill section shows what is being done on locations quite removed from the railroad stations, and the land along the new boulevard will be near the Newton Centre and Chestnut Hill stations than Skinner Hill is to the Newton station. Again, this land is elevated, most of it commands handsome and extended views, and from plans already announced we know that as soon as it is laid out a number of fine residences will be built. This proves that there will be a demand for the building lots, which are now inaccessible.

As the street would be a continuation of Beacon boulevard in Brookline, it would be a favorite place for driving, so the land could not fail to be well advertised, which is the primary consideration. The travel over the street would be large, as many Newton people drive frequently to Boston, and now have to go by narrow and roundabout roads, while this street not only be a pleasant but the most direct way of reaching the Beacon street boulevard. The electric cars would connect the whole street with the outside world, so that residents upon it would have easy access to any point, independently of their own conveyances, and the street would be so wide that the cars would not interfere with driving.

Land along the street and for some distance on either side could not fail to rapidly rise in value, and the city would find its income largely increased from this source alone, to say nothing of the income from the new residents who would be attracted to build their houses on such a street. It is entirely within the limits of probability to say that the increase in revenue so gained would more than pay a fair interest on the outlay by the city, after the first year, even if it did not prove such a bonanza as the Beacon street boulevard has to Brookline.

So far Newton has grown in spite of the lack of any well organized efforts to induce growth. Our natural advantages, and the fact that we were in the direct line of suburban development has been the main cause of growth, but it is now time for a more enterprising policy to be adopted, and encouragement given towards developing the unoccupied portions of the city.

The section opened up by this boulevard will never be developed unless by some such method, and the advantages to the city of accepting this liberal offer, and making the section one of the most attractive in the city are so many, that it would be foolish not to accept at once, as the offer must be taken advantage of now it is at all. It might be stated here, that if the offer is not accepted, the gentlemen interested will immediately proceed to build a 40 or 50 foot street, and the chance of beginning the boulevard policy so cheaply and auspiciously will be lost.

What Newton needs is some central avenue through the city, from Chestnut Hill to Lower Falls, and if this boulevard is laid out it may prove to be only the starting point of such an avenue. It is not known just what the Boulevard Commission will recommend, but it is believed that they will favor some such project, of an avenue about half way between the steam railroads on the north and south sides of the city, which will serve as the great artery for business and pleasure driving through Newton, and which would become the fashionable avenue for residences. Full plans of the new boulevard are given on the third page.

AUBURNDALE is certainly ambitious in the way of parks, as on Monday evening the Village Improvement Society of that place petitioned to have the Don Cameron estate, formerly the property of ex-Mayor Fowler, taken under the park act, and added to the land already secured, and pledging one half the sum that the estate will cost.
This is an excellent move for that village,
as it gives more river front to the Auburndale park, and also adds to the attractions of that section, for which nature has done so much that it ought to be the most desirable location for residences in Auburndale.
The south side of the track can offer no such advantages as will be given by this park, and by the long river front now to be made attractive and opened to the public.

The grade crossing question will have to remain unsettled another month as the commission considering the matter has asked for and received an extension of time to May 1st, in which to make their report. The delay is rather disappointing to owners of property along Washington street, as the grade crossing question must be settled before any decision can be made about the widening of that street, and it is also disappointing to the public generally, as it was hoped that this long vexed question would soon be settled. The commission should now spare no efforts to be ready by May 1st.

The Lower Falls people made a very strong presentation of their side of the case, before the board of aldermen, Monday night, and showed that the lack of a master at the Hamilton school is a disadvantage to that village, besides the danger to the children. The city saves the difference between the salary of a man and that of a woman teacher by the present method, and the Lower Falls people have as a result of their protest the satisfaction of knowing that the school board do not regard the present arrangement as permanent, whatever they may do another year.

ONE attempt to defeat the purposes of the Australian ballot law was defeated in the house, yesterday, on the bill presented by Representative Parkhurst, editor of the Clinton Courant, who wanted the names of the candidates placed together, so that one mark would do for the whole. Mr. Parkhurst wants it made difficult to vote anything but a straight party ticket, he says, and gave a curious exhibition of benighted bigotry, for an editor. The house very properly rejected Mr. Parkhurst's bill by a strong majority, and all other efforts to change our model ballot law should meet the same fate.

REFERRING the petition for a street railway on Centre, Elmwood and Tremont streets to the boulevard commission is an excellent method of disposing of it, as that commission can be dependent on to do nothing to injure the interests of Newton, or to damage the only handsome street of any length we have in the city.

The Newton & Boston Street Railway managers believe in being on time, as they petitioned on Monday evening for a location on the proposed South street boulevard. They evidently believe that the early bird gets the license.

The report of the Metropolitan Park Commission makes a very handsomely arranged book, and the portions of the report relating to Newton will be found on another page.

That Sewerage Ordinance.

On February 10th last, a hearing was given by the House Judiciary Committee of the Legislature on the petition of the Mayor of Newton for power to rescind our present sewer ordinance. At that hearing two citizens of Newton, Messrs. Geo. W.
Morse and Samuel L. Powers, appeared and spoke in favor of the petition, and stated among other things that the members of the city council of 1892 in passing the sewer ordinance acted under the control of one man, Mr. Harbach, whose name however they omitted to mention.

This statement we, who were members of that city council, declare to be false; and we make this public denial because the mis-statement was made at a public hearing with intent to influence legislation, and because we could not make the denial themselves, most of us being absent.

The facts relating to the passage of the ordinance were as follows: In the fall of 1892, the City of Newton had reached the limit of its borrowing capacity, carrying at that time $500,000 indebtedness for sewer construction. The interest and installment towards a sinking fund had already cost the city about $50,000, and not one cent had been received from a betterment tax.
Under these conditions it seemed wise to pass an ordinance at that time, under which a betterment assessment could be laid, and the present ordinance was agreed upon.
The ordinance was passed and enrolled while Mr. Harbach was in Chicago. It was not, so far as it provided a method of assessment, the ordinance which he recommended, and in rescinding the ordinance recommended and advocated by Mayor Fenno when he was a member of the committee on sewers in 1890.

And we individually assert that we never were approached by Mr. Harbach either in favor or against the present ordinance, but cast our votes according to our best judgment for the interests of the city at that time.

GEN. CORSE AT ALTOONA.

GEN. CORSE DESCRIBED IT IN HIS ADDRESS
BEFORE THE NATIONAL SIGNAL CORPS
ASSOCIATION REUNION.

Fifty battle-scarred veterans of the New England Division of the National Signal Corps Association held a reunion at the Thorndike last evening. Col. Edw. H.
Haskell presided. After a discussion of the variety of viands offered by the attractive menu, the peaceful warriors settled down with their cigars and listened to the chief guest of the evening, Gen. John M.
Corse, who said, in part:

"It is with no small satisfaction that I find myself among a body of men like the Signal Corps Association. There is a bond of sympathy between us, created by the privilege I enjoyed on one occasion of being associated with one of the greatest historical figures of your career as a branch of the service during the war."
Gen. Corse then described eloquently and in detail the magnificent service done by the Signal Corps, a service, he said, which,
in his opinion, was the climax of the whole struggle. He referred to the time when Sherman was pushing on from Atlanta to Altoona, where he (General Corse) was holding Altoona Pass and protecting Sherman's supplies against the main body of Hood's troops.

Then it was, he said, that Sherman's only hope was to reach his supplies at Altoona. Retreat meant the loss of the greatest advantage of the whole war and the inevitable destruction of Corse and his band at Altoona. Neither General Corse nor Sherman knew what the other's situation was. No messenger could be sent through Hood's lines and the railroads and telegraph were destroyed.
It was then, he said, that General Corse
by the little fluttering flag of the Signal Corps. The Signal corps did its work nobly and flashed from Gen. Sherman to Gen. Corse, the historic message, so famously, although not accurately quoted,
"Hold the fort for I am coming," and the also famous reply of Gen. Corse, and through this communication, reinforcements were hurried to Gen. Corse, and the strategic point of Altoona nobly held.

This act, Gen. Corse said, contributed more to the final termination of the struggle between the North and the South than any other thing. Even at this time, he said, the Confederates were endeavoring to make treaties of recognition and aid with France and England. They had both agreed to sign if the South would waive the slavery clause and inaugurate emancipation. This was agreed to, but when the final meeting between Lord Palmerston and Kenna, the Confederate Ambassador, was held, Pal-merston's answer was: "It is too late. Sherman has reached Savannah." The signals of the Signal Corps had sent the message all over the world, and Sherman had broken the shell of the Confederacy by his magnificent march to the sea.

THE NEWTON BOULEVARD.

THE LOCATION THE BEST POSSIBLE ONE.
(The Boston Transcript.)

The route chosen by the Newton Boulevard Syndicate has been criticised because, in passing to the north of the Chestnut Hill Reservoir, instead of to the south, it makes a slightly wider detour than is necessary from a direct line between Newton Centre and Boston. But as the Reservoir lies nearly in that very line, and makes almost as great a detour necessary on one side as the other, the point is of very little consequence, especially as the proposed extended boulevard via Chestnut Hill avenue, South street, Ward street and Grant avenue will accommodate with its electric cars the residents of a large part of Newton having no present railroad conveniences and living much farther from the Circuit branch of the Boston & Albany Railroad than those people living along the line of Beacon street. Although the syndicate is not a philanthropic body, its enterprise will undoubtedly result in an immense benefit to Newton, and will open up a superb section of rolling country. Other parts of Newton besides Newton Centre are interested in this scheme, and the running time between Newton Centre and Boston, of the electric on the proposed route, would probably not be two minutes longer than if the tracks followed the line of Beacon street. Mayor Matthews and the Board of Survey are in favor of the proposed route, on the north side of the Reservoir, as planned by the engineers of the Rapid Transit Commission, with Frederick Law Olmstead & Co., as consulting engineers. Possibly it may be found expedient eventually to widen Beacon street, west of Aberdeen, but it cannot be done without cutting into the north side of Chestnut Hill or filling in a part of the Reservoir just beyond the pumping station, and it is doubtful if the advantages of this route for electric cars, taking one consideration with another, equal to those of the South street line, the scenic beauties of which are hardly appreciated by those who have not seen the unsurpassed panorama from Waban hill.

The Suburban Railroad.

The legislative committee on railroads gave a hearing yesterday morning on the petition of the Suburban Railroad Company for an extension of time of location for one year and of construction for two years. It also asks to extend its road with one of two tracks, commencing at a point near Cook street in Newton near the terminus of the Woonsocket division of the New York & New England railroad, through Newton, Waltham, Watertown and Delaware to some suitable point upon the Massachusetts Central railroad. To make this extension $500,000 is asked.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—The height of realism will be reached in the production of a new play of the modern realistic school at the Grand Opera House next week. The piece is called "The Diamond Breaker." It was brought out in New York several weeks ago, receiving since then successful runs in two popular metropolitan play houses. Its author is Mr. Scott Marble, a playwright who has in several plays shown originality and marked cleverness. In the construction of "The Diamond Breaker" he has aimed to present pictures true to nature and to arrive at climaxes which, while they are intended to arouse interest and win deserving applause, will not appear unreal and unnatural. Miss Estelka Wardell, the well known emotional actress, will be seen as the heroine and her support has been selected from the front ranks of the profession. Miss Annie Clarke will play the role of Mrs. Temple in "The Soudan," which will follow "The Diamond Breaker" at this theatre. Tickets will be placed on sale at the box office next Monday. As Fast Day occurs on Thursday of that week it will be wise for suburban theatre patrons to send early for their seats for Fast Day matinee by the local express messenger.

PARK THEATRE.—The 16th week of Hoyt's, "A Temperance Town," began last Monday at the Park Theatre with the usual big attendance, which very fully followed after the remarkable audiences of last week. This popular attraction has played nightly to the capacity of the house making altogether a most remarkable week, when it is taken into consideration that the attraction was in the fourth month of its existence at the Park and the fifth will begin soon. A feature of the performances now and one which was noticeable last week was the number of theatre parties, from various parts of New England. This attraction is not only drawing very heavily from the suburbs but from various cities all over the state and in fact from cities all over New England. A remarkable feat was accomplished by this attraction Tuesday inasmuch as it had two performances within 12 hours time, and they were separated by a distance that could not be traversed in less than five hours time. One performance was given in Concord in the afternoon for the members of the New Hampshire legislature and the other as usual, at the Park Theatre that night, and the curtain rung up sharply at 8 p. m.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.—A happy commingling of music and comedy is the subject matter of the stage entertainment which John Mason and Marion Manola are presenting at the Columbia. The clever and capable young people are credited with presenting a novel and most interesting dramatic performance, interspersed with delightful and original music written for them and the singing company, by which they are supported. The production of Erckmann-Chatrian's great play, "L'Ami Fritz," is a venture of most ambitious proportions; for many years it has been a classic of the French stage. The difficulty of presentation has undoubtedly been the impossibility of finding an actor and an actress capable of presenting the work while young in years. Of Mr. Mason's ability there was no doubt, but great curiosity was evinced in the impersonation of Miss Manola whose lyric accomplishments were alone known. Her Suzzell in "L'Ami Fritz" possibly cannot be equalled. The stars have surrounded themselves by an unusually capable company. "Friend Fritz" will be followed by the "Isle of Champagne."

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—Arrangements have been made by Mr. Isaac B. Rich of the Hollis Street Theatre and Mr. Henry B. McDowell, president of the Theatre Arts and Letters, for a special season of seven performances, under the auspices of the latter, at the Hollis Street Theatre, beginning Monday, March 27. Six of these will be open to the public and the sale of seats will open at the Hollis Street Theatre Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The seventh performance that will occur Saturday night, April 1, will be open only to members of the Theatre Arts and Letters and a new play will be produced for the first time. Two full companies will be brought here, embracing the entire strength of the organization. Among the members are Agnes Booth, May Shaw, Grace Kimball, May Tyrrell, Sarah McVicker, Notta Guion, Paul Arthur, F. F. Mackey, Nelson Wheatcroft, Eugene Ormonde, D. H. Harkins and Alexander Fisher. The dates of the plays are announced as follows: Monday, March 27, "The Decision of the Court," "The Other Woman" and "Hal o' the Hall;" Tuesday, March 28, "The Decision of the Court" and "The Squirrel Inn;" Thursday, March 30, "The Harvest" and "The Squirrel Inn;" Friday, March 31, "The Decision of the Court," "The Other Woman" and "Hal o' the Hall;" Saturday, March 31, "The Harvest" and "The Squirrel Inn." The authors of these plays include Mr. Richard Harding Davis, Mr. Brander Matthews, Mr. Frank R. Stockton, Mr. Clyde Fitch, and a Bostonian, whose name is not given. "Blue Jeans" will follow the Arts and Letters at the Hollis.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE.—The long series of successes in melodramatic productions at the Bowdoin Square Theatre this season will be continued next week with a revival of the ever popular, "After Dark," a play that has stood the criticism of generations of amusement patrons, and is today, as at first, recognized as among the strongest and best of its class. It offers special opportunities for stirring sensational scenes and realistic stage settings, all of which will be improved in an elaborate manner. The play will have a performance for such a production as this, will make "After Dark" a thrilling performance for all lovers of the best class of melodramatic performance. "After Dark" has had many successful productions in this city, but it is confidently stated that the play will have a more elaborate and complete presentation next week at the Bowdoin Square Theatre than it has ever before had in Boston. This popular old melodrama is announced for only a single week and will be followed on Monday, April 3, by "Yon Yonson."

GLOBE THEATRE.—"The Private Secretary," after a long absence from Boston, returned Monday to the Globe Theatre and was given a very successful performance of friends who occupied every seat in the orchestra and in the balcony. So often has the play been seen in Boston that its plot is as well known as any farce comedy plot now before the public. The piece has never been better cast than on the present occasion, and the play has never been presented to better advantage, or has Mr. Gillette in the character of the Private Secretary ever been more humorously effective than last evening. Instead of becoming prosy in a part he has played so often, Mr. Gillette seems to imbue as much fun into this remarkable, yet laughable, character as when, years ago, he was first seen in this city. The cast is an unusually fine one, and to see "The Private Secretary" during the present engagement is to renew an old friendship which will prove pleasanter than ever before.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

The Arena (Boston) for March: "A Religion for All Time;" "The Social Quagmire and the Way Out;" "The Farmer;" Alfred Russell Wallace; "Life After Death;" "A Pilgrimage and a Vision;" Helen Campbell; "A Defense of Shakespeare;" Dr. F. J. Furnivall; "Does Bi-Chloride of Gold Inebriety;" Leslie Keeley, M. D.; "Christ and the Liquor Seller;" Helen M. Gougar; "The Money Question;" "The Woman's Part;" "Under the Arctic Circle;" "The Leper of the Cumberland;" Will Allen Dromgoole.

Among the poems of James Russell Lowell which were left unpublished at the time of his death, the one entitled, "An April Birthday at Sea," will, without doubt, be acknowledged as the most beautiful, taking rank at once with the best of his earlier works. This poem is given to the public in the April number of Harper's Magazine, and is appropriately illustrated by two beautiful engravings from drawings by Rosina Emmet Sherwood.

To the world at large the official side of society at the national capital is of course much more accessible, and hence better known than the intimate social life of the more exclusive circles. Henry Loomis Nelson's article on the latter phase of "Washington Society"—in the April number of Harper's Magazine—will therefore attract wide attention as a revelation of many interesting facts which to visitors and transient residents at the capital are practically unknown. "The tourist and the unfortunate often find Washington society crude and vulgar," he says, "and the majority knows no more of what makes up the inner life of the capital than the majority is likely to know of the inner and best life of other places. To those who see and live in the vestibule of the hotels, or from the stairway of the White House on a crowded night, or from the newspapers that lash its most patent vices, may be repeated what a clever woman once said to one of her kind: 'I think that perhaps you would like Washington better if you knew it.'"

Will Carleton has written a poem, entitled "Discontent," for the next number of Harper's Bazar, published March 25th. Grace L. Furniss will contribute to the same number a very attractive story, entitled "Our Only Legal Member," and Katharine De Forest will present "A Few Hints on Dress from the French," which will contain matter of no little practical interest to ladies.

ARTIFICIAL ICE.

THE BROOKLINE COMPANY IN SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

The Newton Artificial Ice Company has not yet materialized, but the one in Brookline is in successful operation, and our readers will be interested in the following from the Brookline Chronicle:

The Brookline Artificial Ice Co. has been delivering ice to customers now for about a month. The capital stock of the company is $40,000 divided into 400 shares which were all taken up at par. The receipts from day to day are more than enough to pay all the expenses of the company and it is expected that the enough surplus will be earned this year to allow for the depreciation of a 10 per cent dividend on the stock after charging something to the depreciation of the plant. The company can manufacture 17-1/2 tons of ice per day, although it can be forced to 20 tons per day, and is making 15 tons now, delivering about 10 and storing 5 tons. Customers have pledged themselves to take from between 15 and 20 tons per day this season and it is expected that the patronage will be large enough by next season to allow of an increase in the plant so that 30 tons of ice can be made per day. It takes forty-eight hours to freeze the ice. There are 375 freezing cans holding 200 lbs. of spring water each, making 35 tons in the aggregate. The company sells between two and three hundred gallons of the Undine spring water a day at an average of five cents per gallon.

A rich man sent a manuscript to a journalist with whom he was on intimate terms, and accompanied the document with the inquiry: "What do you think I should get for this?" The editor returned the manuscript marked, "Five years."

"What's in a name?" Well, that depends. For instance, the name of "Ayer" is sufficient guarantee that Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a genuine scientific blood-purifier, and not a sham, like so much that goes by the name of "sarsaparilla." Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the standard.

The trouble with most cough medicines is that they spoil the appetite, weaken digestion, and create bile. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the contrary, while it gives immediate relief, assists rather than impairs the assimilative process.

The plain truth is good enough for Hood's Sarsaparilla. No need of embellishment or sensationalism. Hood's Cures.

I have been a sufferer from catarrh for years. Having tried a number of remedies advertised as "sure cures" without obtaining any relief, I had resolved never to take any other patent medicines, when a friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm. I did so with great reluctance, but can now testify that after using it or six weeks I believe myself cured. It is a most agreeable remedy—an invaluable Balm—Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand Ave., Brooklyn.

"Brace Up"

Is a tantalizing admonition to those who at this season feel all tired out, weak, without appetite and discouraged. But the way in which Hood's builds up the tired frame and gives a good appetite, is really wonderful. So we say, "Take Hood's and it will brace you up."

For a general family cathartic we confidently recommend Hood's Pills.

PERSONAL.

A young lady of seventeen summers, highly educated, refined, and of prepossessing appearance, desires to form the acquaintance of some nice young man, whom she would advise, if troubled with dyspepsia, to use that great blood purifier, Sulphur Bitters.

Poor But Honest.

Charles Sullivan is a poor but honest Irish lad, who, while walking down Washington street, found a wallet containing checks and money to the value of several hundred dollars. Although almost destitute, he returned it to its owners, Messrs. A. P. Ordway & Co., proprietors of Sulphur Bitters, who gave him a liberal reward, and also gave him six bottles of Sulphur Bitters for his mother, who has been a terrible sufferer with rheumatism, and who returned many blessings after being cured by their use.—Weekly World.

—Master Willie Hesse was terribly frightened last Monday morning by the dog owned by W. O. Knapp. It seems that the dog had a bone and the boy thought it was a rat, and as he neared the dog he was jumped upon but not seriously hurt.

A base ball team has been organized here. It is composed with one or two exceptions of the players who formerly made up the Newton Centres. The team has taken the name of "Newton's" and will make Walworth's field the scene of games, which will be fully as interesting as those of last year. It is hoped the people will support this year's team as heartily as they have former ones.

A very painful accident happened last Tuesday to Mr. Maxwell, employed by T. R. Frost. While working on a wagon Maxwell tried to catch something that was hanging in the inside butt of a wheel and before he got his hand out, it was caught and badly smashed. A doctor was sent for as soon as possible and the wound was dressed after nineteen stitches had been taken. Mr. Maxwell is expected to have gone to the hospital for further care.

The entertainment in the Improvement Society's Course, last evening, attracted about five hundred people to Associates Hall and proved a very entertaining affair. The secret society initiation produced much laughter and applause, especially the great riding scene, and the other harrowing experiences, through which Paddy McFlynn passed. His small daughter, who was escorted by Mr. Gustav Dyer, who came to take him home, and made her debut as a prima donna, proved a great hit, and the number of prominent citizens taking part, including Messrs. Harwood, Degen, Chester, Smith and others, lent an air of probability to the scene. The music was rendered by the local orchestra of young people, which Mr. L. O'rage has been training. Mr. W. M. Noble recited a selection and "Dance on Both Sides" was given with the following cast: Mr. Whittles, Mr. W. H. Sables; Mr. John Brownjohn, Mr. H. A. Tomlinson; Mr. Phibbs, Mr. A. C. Ferry; Mrs. Whittles, Miss Alice T. Reed; Lydia, Miss Lena M. Twombly. The play proved a very enjoyable one and the parts were well taken.

—The next meeting of the Chautauqua Circle will be with Mrs. Charles P. Clark, Hartford street.

—Miss Fountain, bookkeeper at Sherman's market, who has been sick with measles, is now at her desk again.

—Rev. Mr. Priest of Watertown will have charge of the Unitarian services at the Episcopal chapel next Sunday at 4 o'clock.

—Mr. Alexander Tyler accompanied his sister, Mrs. C. P. Clark, to her home at New Haven, and making a short visit, returning the first part of the week.

—Prof. Eaton, president of Beloit College, Wis., will conduct the services at the Congregational church next Sunday morning and evening. Seats free. All welcome.

—On Tuesday evening the C. E. Society were addressed by Rev. Alfred Noon, on Temperance, and on Wednesday evening a social was held and a lunch was served.

—Mr. James Ray, the gatetender at the Boylston street crossing, has been home ill for the past two or three days, and George Davis has taken his place during his absence.

—The next meeting of the Monday Club will be with Miss Sweetser, at the residence of Mr. C. H. Guild. A paper will be read by Miss Buswell of Newton, on the "Social Science of a Lie."

—Following is the list of letters remaining in the postoffice: John Butland, O. Crisp & Co., Elisha W. Cook, Mrs. Mark Eldridge, James H. Fitz, Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Carrie Pendleton.

—Mr. John R. Henderson, who has been at the Newton Cottage Hospital for two or three weeks, will remain there for the present, as he is not able to walk, on account of severe rheumatism.

—Next Sunday will be kept as Palm Sunday at St. Paul's church. Holy Communion, 9:45. Morning Prayer, 10:45. Sunday school, 12:15. Evening Prayer, 7. Rev. Thomas L. Fisher of Clinton will officiate.

—In addition to the chairs at the club house, furnished by the ladies, the club have just added several dozen of good, strong, comfortable ones, so that the seating capacity of their hall is quite large.

—The Ladies' Social Club had an afternoon at the clubhouse on Tuesday, and took part in a bean bag contest, prizes being awarded to the victors. Refreshments were served, and all enjoyed themselves.

—Patrons of the postoffice would like to see the work pushed forward more vigorously on the postoffice building; also that a more active demand for the kindling wood piled up in front of the building may soon set in.

—Next week being Holy Week, will be marked by daily services at St. Paul's, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 4 p. m., Thursday at 8 p. m., (Holy Communion); Good Friday, 10 a. m. and 8 p. m.; Saturday, 4 p. m., (Baptism).

Antheum, "Jerusalem." Parker, Rees Solo for baritone, "Palm Branches." Faure Male Quartet, "Holy Father, thou hast taught me."

Response to prayer by male quartet, Mr. Hunt, tenor; Mr. E. Stabrook, tenor; Mr. Ayer, baritone; Mr. Ryder, bass, and a mixed chorus of ten voices, Miss Stone, organist.

—Mrs. McKinnon, from Nova Scotia, who has been visiting with her son, the McKinnon Bros. and Mrs. John Carpenter, died on Monday at the age of fifty-eight years. The body has been taken to her late home in Nova Scotia in charge of Mr. Malcolm McKinnon. The young child of Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter is very ill of pneumonia.

—Mr. H. J. Patterson has a cellar staked out on the part of his lot next the residence of Mr. Ayer on Hartford street, and will have the Patterson block to the south and on its former site will erect a brick block, with several stores on the ground floor and tenements above, to be fitted up with modern conveniences. Mr. Patterson has his plans ready and expects the work to commence at once.

—Mr. F. Bellamy gave a lecture at the clubhouse on Tuesday evening on "The New Americanism." The reputation of the lecturer, and the admirable manner in which he presented his subject, enabled him to hold the attention of the large and appreciative audience to the close. The lecturer spoke of the last quarter century of the struggle of the shoddy and the worship of the almighty dollar, and of discontent, but with liberty, equality and fraternity in unity, hoped to see the next century an era of happiness and contentment.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Visitors are already coming to look at Echo Bridge.

—Mr. Albert Eades is visiting his home for a few days.

—Mr. L. P. Everett is much improved from his serious illness.

—Mr. Miles Cusick has returned to drive express for Mr. Atkinson.

—Mr. Alfred Ledge, clerk at B. Billings' drug store, is on the sick list.

—Mr. Thomas Shaugnessy's youngest son is under the doctor's care.

—Mr. Edward Daly, sexton at St. Mary's church, is suffering at his home with pneumonia.

—Mr. Lowe intends to start next week on a new block to be built on Chestnut street.

—Messrs. Cooper & Dyson have purchased the trotting horse formerly owned by James Cahill.

—The marriage is announced of Miss Martha Daly of this village and Mr. D. J. Sullivan of Brighton.

—Mrs. McKeon, whose sad death occurred last week too late to be published in our last issue, was buried last Saturday.

—Mr. James Cahill has been troubled this week with an old complaint and it is hoped that he will soon be about again.

—The barber shop on Elliot street owned by Mr. Thomas Lee, has undergone a thorough change and is now all finished; it is greatly improved.

—Mrs. Edmunds of Portland, Me., who has been visiting Mr. John Richardson of this village, has returned home after a few weeks' pleasant visit.

—Why don't some one build houses in this village? There are a number of gentlemen who have to live out of town who cannot get tenements. Their work is here, why not have them live here?

—The water dam at E. J. Hickey's paper mills was carried away last week and it will be some time before it can be rebuilt. The river is very high at present but is slowly lowering to its natural depth.

—The base ball association is progressing very rapidly, already over sixty shares have been subscribed for. If the citizens of this village want to see a good team this season it is hoped that they will join the association and loan their aid.

—The city has at last started on the work to remove the great ledge situated on the bend of Elliot street near Mechanic. It has been a very dangerous place for a number of years and more so since the electric cars pass so near. No doubt the citizens of this village will be much pleased at this action of the city fathers.

this spring, and whose notes may be heard any pleasant morning now: Fox sparrow, song sparrow, cardinal bird, purple finch, white-throated sparrow, European goldfinch, robin, bluebird and purple grackle.

—The street department is putting Washington street in order, and the street roller is used in packing the crushed stone into place. The narrowness of the street and the great amount of teaming in the narrow thoroughfares each side of the electric tracks make this a very expensive street to keep in repair.

—Services in Grace church next Sunday will be as follows: The first celebration of the Holy Communion, 8.30 a. m., in chapel; Morning Prayer, etc., with full choir, 10.45; Carol Singing, 3.30 p. m., including carols by H. B. Day, G. M. Smith, F. H. Wood and J. S. Warren, and a boy's solo; Evening Prayer, 7.30.

—Rev. Francis B. Hornbrooke delivered the fifth in the series of Lenten Lectures at Channing Hall, Boston, Saturday afternoon, his subject being "The Devotional Literature of England." In his discourse he spoke of the influence which the earlier and later writers had exerted on religious thought, mentioning especially Jeremy Taylor,
Baxter, Bunyan, Watts, Scougal, Neilson, Vesley, Keble and Goudal. To those of the present era, the teachings of these men may on the whole appear crude, narrow and oftentimes bigoted, yet they contained the germs of true religious feeling and of the earnestness and earnestness of study for the deeply religious fervor with which they are pervaded.

—In all the charming display of the work of the Mineral Art League in Park Square, Boston, it would be difficult to find more dainty designs or exquisite treatment than that shown by M. H. H. Croft, who is one of the vice-presidents of the club. Newton may well be proud of one who is in every respect an artist. Her lila teta-tete set was envied by all who saw it, but also, only one person could be its owner, and the half dozen dainty fruit plates with their counterfeited snowballs, apple blossoms, bachelor's buttons, clover, gentian and briar rose also claimed admiring attention. Mrs. Crosby's clover blossoms with the honey bees filtering their sweetness, were like a dream of summer.

—The Newton Camera Club held a meeting for organization, Tuesday evening, in Dr. E. B. Hitchcock's office, and thirty-nine were present and joined the club, a number of whom were ladies. Messrs. F. O. Stanley, J. R. W. Hickmott and Dr. Hitchcock were appointed a committee on the erection of a suitable building for the club; Messrs.
J. W. Davis, C. E. Lott and F. H. Bart were appointed a committee on the nomination of officers, and a committee on constitution and by-laws was also appointed.
The membership fee was fixed at $5, and the club expect to have several outings each season, and also to have monthly meetings, at which papers on photographic subjects will be read. The next meeting will be Wednesday evening, April 6th, at Mr. J. W. Davis's residence. Among those who have joined are Rev. G. E. Merrill, Messrs. J. R. W. Shapleigh, J. W. Davis,
Lowell Hubbard, T. M. Clark of Newton-ville, W. E. Peabody of Newton Highlands, John Linder, the Messrs. Fewkes, Mrs. E.
C. Fitch, Mrs. J. W. Davis, Miss Mary Jordan and Miss Belle Bailey.

—This evening, Friday, March 31, at 7.30 in the main auditorium of Elliot church,
there will be a devotional meeting of Elliot,
Grace, Channing, Immanuel and the Methodist churches united, in remembrance of the death of our Lord Jesus Christ. The choir of all the churches are requested to occupy the singers' seats, and to lead the congregational singing. All seats free, and all are invited to come early.

—A very enjoyable evening was spent by the Norumbega Literary Society, when a society of its members presented the little farce "A lucky job." The parts were well acted, the actors being at their best. The principal players were Messrs. Kimball and E. L. Bacon, Misses Robbin and Johnson. At the regular March literary of this society, the subject under discussion was "Phillips Brooks," and the annual society paper, under the editorship of Chas. A. Worth, was a great success.

—Lovers of the classical enjoyed thoroughly the entertainment given in the Channing church parlors Tuesday evening, comprising reading from Goethe's "Faust."
It will be remembered that early during the winter season that the "Faust" night in the series, under the auspices of the Channing Literary Class, ushered in some of the most appropriate weather which was marked by heavy snow storms and other stark at home conditions, preventing, of course, the expected attendance. Many who intended to be present were disappointed and as a result it was decided to furnish them with another opportunity by repeating the entertainment. Rev. Mr.
Hornbrooke read the prologue and Mrs.
Walter Stearns the lines of the Casket.
Cathedral and dungeon scenes. The interpretation has been most generously complimented and those present on the first night say that the repetition excelled the original readings in point of elocution and dramatic merit. The hostesses were Mrs. Dr. Bartlett, Mrs. John Barrows, Mrs. Reuben Ford and Mrs. W. S.
Stearns.

—The Entertainment Club presented the comedy, "The Nettle," the pathetic drama, "Dream Faces," and the rollicking farce, "That Rascal Pat" in the Channing church parlors Wednesday evening. The auditorium, seating about 500 persons, was packed, and the social nature was never accorded a more enthusiastic reception. The first piece, an amusing curtain raiser, introduced only two characters, Guy Charlton and Dulcie Meredith. Mr. Louis A. Hall sustained the male role effectively, and was given good support by Miss Molly P. Metcalf.
In "Dream Faces" Mr. John B. Weeks made a hit, and gave a very creditable exhibition of emotional work, smooth and convincing. He is a good elocutionist and has considerable dramatic talent.
Sydney Grant, the popular young comedian, who is soon to fill professional engagement, carried off the honors of the evening and was given a flattering reception in the opening scene of "The Rascal led his lines in a manner to win the good nature and appreciation of the house. His song, "Thy Land's My Land," received an encore.

A Touching Charity.

The King's Daughters of Newton are striving to take care of two little blind children, and last year they gave a series of parlor concerts by which enough money was secured to provide a home in the country for the summer, for the children. This year they are trying to raise money for a similar purpose, and should meet with a cordial response from the kind-hearted people of Newton. To give a summer's pleasure to two helpless and unfortunate children is something worth striving for. As a further inducement to subscribers to this fund, an invitation to a social is planned to be given April 17th. Mr. Wallace Goodrich having kindly volunteered his services, and Miss Gertrude Edmonds, the famous singer, has generously consented to appear. Further information of the charity will be given by the King's Daughters who have the matter in charge.

North Side Improvements.

The North Side Improvement Society was organized with a boom Wednesday evening in the Nonantum clubhouse.
There was a large and enthusiastic attendance. The officers elected were C. B.
Cabot, president; Rev. Dr. Hamilton, vice-president; E. J. W. Estabrooks, treasurer; J. W. Ballantyne, secretary. A committee comprising Messrs. John T.
Langford, D. Waldo Stearns and J. C.
Parker was appointed to nominate an executive committee of 27 members. The society proposes to interest itself in the whole section of the city north of the Boston & Albany railroad tracks. It favors the abolition of the Boylston Pond nuisance and the purification of the Charles river and adjacent streams. Besides pushing these projects of her improvements will be urged and carried out, including new building projects, additional street railway facilities, parks and recreation schemes and highway construction looking toward the acquisition of new building territory.

The next meeting will be held Tuesday, April 4th.

Summer Home of the B. A. A.

The Boston Athletic Association has leased 18 acres of excellent land, lying along the banks of the Charles river at Riverside. The deal was finished Tuesday. The property is taken for a term of years at a very low figure, through the liberality of Mr. Francis Blake, the owner, who is a member of the club and much interested in athletics.

The property is to be put in shape for such sports as foot ball, base ball, cricket and tennis. It is also proposed to build a bicycle and running track, for laps to the mile, with a 220-yard straightway course.

If the members vote to raise the annual assessment, the governing board will begin immediate work toward building a clubhouse, with dining, sleeping and recreation rooms, as well as a small gymnasium, and in connection with it, a bathhouse. On the clubhouse side of the beach will be erected a grand stand, to accommodate 1500 persons.

Directly off shore from the grounds is a small island, and between it and the banks the river is now quite shallow. If everything goes right, this part of the river will be deepened and used as a swimming pool by ladies and gentlemen alike.

Of course, the plans are as yet largely in embryo, but at the clubhouse Tuesday the members seen were unanimously in favor of the establishment of the summer quarters.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE LOWER BRANCH HAVE A SHORT AND QUIET SESSION.

At the regular meeting of the common council, Monday evening, President Weed presided and Councilmen Staples and Ross were absent.

After the records were read and approved, papers from the board of aldermen were passed in concurrence.

Councilman Knapp urged the importance of immediate action relative to the Lexington street nuisance, an abatement of which was petitioned for by Wm Scribner and others.

Petitions were presented for the laying out, grading and acceptance of Newbury and Albion streets, for a gravel sidewalk on the east side of Centre street, by Stephen Green, for two street lights on North street, by Wm Doyle and others, for main drains and common sewers in Appleton and Otis streets, Union and Station streets, Green and West streets. These were referred to the proper committees.

An order from the Newton school board requesting the city council to purchase land adjoining the high school lot was referred, also an order requesting the completion of repairs at the Thompsonville school house.

An order from the school board enclosing the report of the committee chosen to investigate the condition of the Hyde school was received. The report considered the school house in lengthily detail tending to show its utter inefficiency as a school building and recommending a new building. Some of the other houses visited were found to be in very poor condition. Referred.

Councilman Knapp presented an order authorizing the mayor to quit claim to Christine W. Porter certain lands.

In explanation it was said this matter had been lying for several years and this was only confirming the action of a previous city council.

The order was passed and the council then adjourned.

School Board.

At the last meeting of the Newton school board Rev. Mr. Hornbrook presided in the absence of the mayor and Chairman Hollis.

The committee chosen to consider the advisability of establishing kindergarten schools reported favorably and the board approved. Three schools will probably be established this year at the Lower and Upper Falls and Thompsonville, and others as needed thereafter.

The committee revising the rules and regulations reported and the amendments suggested will be considered by the board at its next meeting. Mrs. Fanning's resignation, as a teacher at the Prospect school, was accepted and the vacancy filled by the appointment of Miss French.

The superintendent was authorized to close the primary and grammar schools one half day of this month, to allow the teachers to attend a meeting at which Mr. Henry T. Bailey, the state agent on drawing, will give a lecture on "Color."

Orders were passed requesting the city council to purchase the Clafin land adjoining the High school lot; also to finish the upper portion of the Thompsonville school house. The special committee appointed to investigate the condition of the Hyde school in response to a petition, submitted a long detailed report of the poor condition of the house for school purposes, and an order was presented and passed requesting the city council to take immediate action and erect a new school building during the coming summer.

Success of a Newton Boy.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:

It must not only be gratifying to every Newtonian, but become a stimulus to the young people among us, to know of the eminent success of any one who has grown up here in our city. It is said now by some of the best musical critics that the most accomplished composer of sacred music in America today is Mr. Horatio W. Parker, formerly of Newton. His first efforts at organ playing were on the organ in Grace church when as a little fellow he sat by his mother's side and received instruction. Then outgrowing her and his other teachers here he went to Germany, and finally returned to this country, a master of harmony.

He has filled positions as organist and choir-master at the Long Island Cathedral and Holy Trinity, New York, and becomes the leader of the music at Trinity, Boston, about the first of May.

He has already written a great deal of music which has been received with great favor. One of his finest works, a Festival Service, will be sung by the choir of Grace church on Easter morning. It is thought to be one of the most melodious, as well as one of the most dignified compositions ever attempted for the morning service of the church. The choir have been hard at work at it and will bring it out with fine effect next Sunday.

The Boyd's Pond Nuisance.

The legislative committee on public health visited Newton Monday and made an inspection of Boyd's pond. The trip is the outcome of a petition of the city of Newton for a permit to acquire certain lands in Watertown for the abatement of a nuisance in part caused by the drawing off of water from the pond and because of the accumulation of refuse considered detrimental to health. The Newton authorities want to fill the pond in and make other improvements requiring the acquisition of certain lands in Watertown.

The committee comprised Senator Nichols, Representatives Shaw, Green, Hutchins, Crane, Fletcher, Mahoney and McInerney. The party was met at the Newton station by members of the Newton city council, and made the detour of the pond and region adjacent in carriages provided by the local authorities. The city of Newton was represented by Representative Easterbrooks, Aldermen Emerson and Thompson, Councilmen Briston, Howes, Tolman and Weed, City Engineer A. F. Noyes, Agent French of the board of health and City Solicitor W. S. Slocum. After examining the territory, the party adjourned to Armory Hall, where a lunch was partaken of.

Miss Newrich: "But there is so much to learn. I shall never know good from bad." Society Teacher: "Nothing easier, my dear young lady. Just avoid everything that looks sensible and no one on the avenue will suspect that you're not well born."—N. Y. Weekly.

THE NEWTON BOULEVARD.

WHAT THE BOSTON PAPERS SAY OF IT.

(The Boston Globe, March 24.)

Every enterprise in the line of developing the beautiful suburban district around Boston should be encouraged. The proposed boulevard in Newton and the Brighton district, a plan of which was presented last Sunday in these columns, would open up a territory of great natural advantages, and afford a new and most attractive way to the Mecca of every rider, Chestnut Hill and the reservoir.

Some of the most influential and wealthy citizens of Boston and its neighborhood are enlisted in favor of the boulevard plan, as formulated by Mr. Olmstead and the engineers of the rapid transit commission, and although absolute agreement upon any scheme is not among the possibilities, there is every indication that this great improvement will speedily be carried into effect, with the cordial approval of the public generally.

(Boston Herald, March 22.)

The inhabitants of the city of Newton are actively exerting themselves to have built a driveway or boulevard connecting the Garden City with Boston. The result obtained in Brookline by the construction of Beacon street boulevard are sufficiently manifest and satisfactory to lead to the belief that, in this section of our suburbs where land is attractively situated commands a high price, the boulevard form of development is one of the best and quickest means of improving the value of real property. Not only would a broad thoroughfare of this kind make an attractive pleasure drive, but the space can be obtained for electric car reservations by means of which these cars can be run at high rates of speed with no inconvenience and little danger.

(Boston Transcript, 23.)

The route chosen by the Newton Boulevard Syndicate has been criticised because, in passing to the north of the Chestnut Hill Reservoir, instead of to the south, it makes a slightly wider detour than is necessary from a direct line between Newton Centre and Boston. But as the Reservoir lies nearly in the way, the point is of very little consequence, especially as the proposed extended boulevard via Chestnut Hill avenue, South street, Ward street and Grant avenue will accommodate with its electric cars the residents of a large part of Newton having no present railroad conveniences and living much farther from the Circuit branch of the Boston & Albany Railroad than those people living along the line of Beacon street. Although the syndicate is not a philanthropic body, its enterprise will undoubtedly result in an immense benefit to Newton, and will open up a superb section of rolling country. Other parts of Newton besides Newton Centre are interested in this scheme, and the running time between Newton Centre and Boston, of the electric on the proposed route, would probably not be two minutes longer than if the tracks followed the line of Beacon street. Mayor Matthews and the Board of Survey are in favor of the proposed route on the north side of the Reservoir, as planned by the engineers of the Rapid Transit Commission, with Frederick Law Olmstead & Co. as consulting engineers. Possibly it may be found expedient eventually to widen Beacon street, west of Aberdeen, but it cannot be done without cutting into the north side of Chestnut Hill or filling in a part of the Reservoir just beyond the pumping station, and it is doubtful if the advantages of the route for electric cars, taking one consideration with another, equal to those of the South street line, the scenic beauties of which are hardly appreciated by those who have not seen the unsurpassed panorama from Waban Hill.

TRIBUTE TO REV. MR. TWOMBLY.

DISCOURSE OF REV. D. SHERMAN, D. D., BEFORE THE METHODIST HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

An interesting service relative to the late Rev. J. H. Twombly, D. D., was held in the rooms of the Methodist Historical Society in the Wesleyan Building Monday afternoon. An able analytical paper was read by Rev. D. Sherman, D. D., characterizing the deceased as an able and courageous leader in various lines of Christian activity during the period of his connection of more than fifty years with the New England Conference.

He was called to fill many of the leading pulpits in the conference, and in no one of them did he fail to so completely identify himself with the young people of his pastorate that he came to be a recognized leader in nearly every phase of the current trend in this direction among all Christian organizations.

His large practical acquaintance with the educational work of the times gave him untold advantages in this line. He was unquestionably the originator of the Social Union, now forming so conspicuous a feature of Boston, and even of New England, Methodism.

An Electrical Display.

A church society of the standard grade, not many miles from the Newtons, has lately completed a handsome and commodious house of worship. The society has occupied its house but a few times, but long enough to find it nice in every way, except that when the full force of the electric lights is turned on it makes a disagreeable glare for the full services of a Sunday evening. So the head of the building committee talked with the pastor and some of the leaders, and they decided that it would be practical and best to turn off the switches controlling the side lights during the body of the services, but to have them on during the coming in and the singing, and then during the benediction and the going out of the church at the close. This plan was tried for the first time last Sunday evening. The man at the switches was a little new, but he thought he could manage it. The introductory hymn was over, and the pastor arose in his place and began:

"I am the light of the world." Out went the side lights, leaving the worthy clergyman in a flood of radiance from the lights just beside him.

His hearers smiled; some even giggled. The pastor himself scarcely seemed a sober face through all of the services. The end of the meeting was near, and all the congregation noticed how much better it was to have the electric lights shine only on their "light of the world." It was about time to pass the boxes. That must be done in a full light. The deacons and the ushers were ready with their long-handled torches.

The clergyman read: "Let your lights so shine."

On went the full force of the electric side lights. Then the audience would have actually laughed out loud, only it was altogether too light. That collection was a jolly one, and it is said that the plates fairly groaned, as the pastor read:

"God loveth a cheerful giver."—Boston Herald.

Injustice to Judge Dunbar.

The Springfield Republican says there is a large measure of injustice in the wide circulation of the petition of James W. Stillman of Boston, a person quite unknown to the public, who asks the impeachment of Judge James R. Dunbar for "malfeasance in office" because the judge decided a case against Stillman. The bulletin-boards and the newspapers have blazoned this charge in a way to leave an impression upon the careless public that an honorable and able judge had done something he ought not to have done, and that he is to be tried for it. Nothing could be farther from the facts, even as they appear in Stillman's own statement of the case, for his story is of an erratic and flighty kind. But the parade of such a charge, which appears only in a petition to the Legislature—and the right of petition belongs to everybody, no matter what the character of his grievance may be—will not impose upon any one who knows Judge Dunbar. No citizen of the state has a finer sense of honor or is more disposed by temperament to see justice done, and it is safe to assume that Mr. Stillman's sensational charges will meet an early death. They ought to be promptly inserted into and dealt with according to their desert, to the end that a judge under fire may not be kept in a false position any longer than the formalities require. Meantime a Boston Journal reporter has interviewed ex-Gov. Ames, who appointed Mr. Dunbar to the bench, and "the genial ex-governor" gives the judge a first-class character. He could have done no less, for the certificate of good standing was not needed anywhere outside of a Boston newspaper office.

Free Wool in Wyoming.

Gov. Osborne of Wyoming is in Washington and thinks his state is going over to the Democrats, chiefly on the wool question. He says:

"The leanings of our people are now toward the Democratic party, and we believe that we shall continue to carry the state, for we think we can conduct its affairs properly and to the satisfaction of the people. The federal patronage in Wyoming has been a great factor toward holding it in the Republican ranks. The state has but a small population, and the postmasters, commissioners of land offices, United States attorneys and marshals and other officers wield great influence, and the incumbents are a power in their communities. The transfer of this patronage to Democrats will cut a very important figure in the legislative contest two years hence, when two United States senators will be elected. We think we can carry the Legislature and will lend all our energies to do so."

"Wyoming is one of the greatest wool producing states in the country, and we think we know something about wool. The tariff was made a very great issue at the last campaign, and free or protected wool theories were argued out and fought for all they were worth. I am a large wool grower, and speaking for the wool growers of my state, can say that the sentiment which has been so firmly set with wool growers in the higher tariff the higher the price on wool has about disappeared, and we have arrived at the conclusion that the higher the tariff the lower the price of wool. Wool has been going down steadily from 1 cent to 1 1/2 cents per pound for a year, and the wool grower is satisfied that if the McKinley bill can't raise the price of wool in four years it can't in 40. So this is the reason that they have abandoned the stand that they have so firmly held for so many years. The same wool that I sold four years ago for 18 1/4 cents I sold last year for 14 cents, and if the current tariff of 60 per cent. does not help the wool grower what will in the protection line?"

"The people of this country are paying today a higher price for shoddy than the people of other countries are paying for all-wool goods, a fact that ought to make the poor man, who alone wears shoddy goods, think very hard. There are about $50,000,000 of capital invested in shoddy mills in this country, one mill alone producing more shoddy than the entire wool clip of Wyoming. This is one reason why wool growers, who have for so long been such obstinate and determined supporters of high tariff, have reversed their position."

Judge Dunbar.

It may be necessary to say to those people outside of Massachusetts who have observed that a charge has been made against Judge Dunbar of the superior court for "malfeasance in office" that nothing is likely to come out of it but a full vindication of the judge in question, says the Boston Herald. It is not necessary to make that assurance here, where it is known Judge Dunbar is a gentleman of the highest character for integrity and of excellent ability for the position he occupies. Any judge accused in the way he is would be entitled to the presumption of rectitude on his part, and those who know Judge Dunbar have the firmest conviction that there is no possibility of a stain upon his honor. The bench and bar may be said to be entirely unanimous in this feeling. Judge Dunbar was one of Gov. Ames' appointments, and Gov Ames had especially good judgment in his selections for office.

A NOVEL PHILANTHROPIC IDEA.

THE HELPING HAND VISITORS' CLUB.

"Oh! how I wish I could get out of the hot city for a little rest and change this summer! I can't afford to pay cash for my board; but, indeed! I'd be very glad to sew or do any kind of work about the house for it," explained a bright young woman to a sympathetic customer with philanthropic inclinations, whom she was serving. "No! I've no one I could visit," she continued, in reply to the natural suggestion that she might visit a friend.

A few days later the customer was calling at a charming little home in a pleasant suburb, when her hostess, apropos of some pressing duties, said: "If I knew of some nice young woman who would like to spend a week or two in the country, and who would come and stay here and help me a little with my work each day, I would board her without charge, and be glad of the chance! It would really be a mutual benefit; she would have an inexpensive outing,—a genuine outing, too, for I could easily arrange matters so that she might have a good portion of each day for recreation and to enjoy this bracing air and picturesque scenery,—and I could get 'caught up' in some of my sewing, and have some rest, too; and each would be giving a full equivalent for value received. You're always studying up some plan to help people who try to help themselves, can't you suggest something for my case?"

The philanthropic inclinations immediately betook themselves to the bright young woman in the stifling city shop. They talked the matter over, and in less than a week the city girl was enjoying the longed-for country surroundings, while her hostess was equally happy in the prospect of getting "caught up" in her work and having some rest. The pertinent proved a perfect success, and thus was sown the germ which has grown into the Helping Hand Visitors' Club, a unique organization, formed on the plan carried out in the first experiment, through which those who have homes in the country and who would like to receive the Helping Hand Visitors for a sojourn of any specified length, can be put into communication with respectable self-supporting women in cities,—clerks, steamstresses, milliners, etc.,—who, though anxious to spend a short vacation in the country, cannot afford the necessary expenditure for board.

Undoubtedly, there are many who would be glad to receive these young women into their homes on the condition that in return for board and lodging they would render some service in sewing or housework, leaving themselves, of course, sufficient time during the day to enjoy the pleasures of walks, drives, or other recreations.

A Central Bureau has been established in New York for furthering the purposes of the club, and extending its development in all directions. Philanthropic women interested in forming local branches for carrying out this great work, housekeepers wishing to receive Helping Hand Visitors, or young women desiring to spend their vacation under such conditions, are invited to address the Secretary of the Helping Hand Visitors' Club, 15 East Fourteenth street, New York, enclosing a stamped envelope for reply.

Very Common Manners.

Boston culture is not exclusive; even the house servants know it by sight.

Witness the following recent occurrence.

A family in only comfortable circumstances, with one servant, had one day a young gentleman to dinner.

After he had gone the guest was spoken of in the kitchen, when the servant said to her mistress:

"I noticed he was not a man of culture; he said 'thank you' when I changed his plate at dinner."

HE WOULD NOT LEAVE THE COLONY.

A Prisoner Who Climbed a Coconut Tree and Defied a Regiment.

It is the custom in the British army that whenever a regiment is transferred from one colony to another prisoners who may be in the jail are handed over to the outgoing corps and continue their sentences at the new station. In one case one of these jailbirds made up his mind that he would not leave the colony. Private Johnson was one of the smartest men in the corps, and furthermore he was an excellent groom and almost a "cordon bleu." He had one sad failing. He was a thief. His speculations had, however, been generally small, and he had escaped serious punishment. One night a large store in the town was broken into and a considerable amount of money stolen. It was conclusively proved that Johnson was the thief, and he was sent to jail. When the regiment was leaving the colony, Johnson, with some other soldier prisoners, was to be handed over according to custom. When, however, his cell was visited, it was empty, and there was not a sign of Johnson anywhere.

A search was made in every direction, and at last a prisoner pointed to a coconut tree which grew in the middle of the prison yard, and there comfortably seated among the tuft of leaves was Johnson. The warden at first tried to get the man down by quiet persuasion, then he threatened, then stormed and swore. Johnson laughed contentedly at every mood, but did not move. The fact was reported to the colonial secretary, who recommended that the fire engine be called out and the man washed down. The chief of the fire department hardly thought it was consonant with his dignity to wash a prisoner out of a coconut tree and reported that there was not pressure of water enough to get a stream to the top of the tree. This was probably true, for the tree was a tall one.

The case was again referred to the colonial secretary, who took it before the governor. His excellency was having luncheon with some of the departing officers and their friends and was having a good time. He was vexed that at such a time he should be troubled with official work, as he had been looking forward to the departure of the regiment with some of the departing officers and their friends and was having a good time. He was vexed that at such a time he should be troubled with official work, as he had been looking forward to the departure of the regiment with some of the departing officers and their friends and was having a good time.

This could only be done by the engineering department, so orders were sent out to find the chief engineer. While all this was going on, time was slipping away. Almost all the troops were on board the troopship, and as the vessels wait for no one the escort which had been sent to bring Johnson down to the ship had to hurry off, not to be late itself. Johnson belloyed a farewell, and despite the strong language of the warden still laughed and did not move. Before the engineer department had come to a conclusion as to how to cut down the tree and lower it gradually, the troopship had up anchor and was steaming out of the harbor.

Then Johnson climbed down the tree and finished his sentence on the island, to which he had taken a fancy. His conviction had carried with it his "discharge with ignominy." He settled in the island and was soon in easy circumstances. He had undoubtedly hidden his stolen property, and after his release dug it up and started in business. When Johnson was last seen, he was flourishing and had a large coconut grove around his cottage. —New York Tribune.

Business Enterprise.
"Talk about business enterprise," said Frank L. Perley, a circus man. "Away back in 1885 we had a young fellow with us who was getting $15 and his board. The night Jumbo was killed in St. Thomas this boy developed himself. We were all sympathizing with poor old Jumbo and wondering how we could replace him. The youngster was thinking of something else. You know the tail of an elephant has at the very tip a bunch of thick hair very much like a brush. This boy got out of Jumbo's tail. His business at the circus was to sell balloons to children. Well, there were 76 of those thick hairs, and at the show the next afternoon he was selling them for $1 apiece as relics of the great giant. He sold 75 of them and, practically found $75. The other one he kept for himself and still wears it as his mascot." —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Ruth Said Her Verse.
Little Ruth can read very nicely, and her mother is anxious that at an early age she shall become familiar with the Bible, so that when she was obliged to leave home to be gone five months she told Ruth she would bring her home a muff if she would say a Bible verse every night before she went to bed. Ruth promised that she would. Mamma came home at the end of the five months. Before presenting the muff she said: "How about the verses, Ruth?" "I said one every night, mamma." "That's mamma's nice girl. You must have learned a good many in five months, dear." "Why, I always said the very same one." "The same one all the time! What was that?" "Jesus wept," said Ruth. It wasn't just what mother expected, but Ruth got the muff. —Boston Globe.

Billiard Rooms in Houses.
Houses will soon be all top. Men will go up stairs to play billiards when they will not go down. Up stairs there is greater freedom of conversation. Fathers have discovered that if there is a well equipped billiard room near the roof, with good air, an unrestricted outlook, adequate privacy and satisfactory means of refreshment, their sons, after business hours, are much more apt to come home and bring their friends with them to play until dinner than to go to their clubs. —San Francisco Argonaut.

Money Easily Made.
Wall space for advertising purposes commands very high rentals in popular business thoroughfares in this city. There is one man who obtains an annual income of several thousand dollars out of one side of a house which is conspicuously exposed. —New York Herald.

When a Man's Advice Was Good.

He who had much occasion to be abroad on the day when the snow, rain and wind made merry with the population of this town saw some queer sights and heard some queer things. One of the worst crossings in the lower part of the city was at the intersection of Broadway and Fulton street, where the slush and snow formed an expanse of something which told nothing of the depth of the mixture. Here and there was a hummock which might furnish solid footing, but probably wouldn't. A young man, essaying the crossing, stopped half way between the curbs, and deciding that the rest of the ford was impassable turned back. As he did so he ran into an elderly woman who was close behind him. "Beg pardon, madam," said he, "but you'd better not try it."

The lady gave her skirts an extra twitch and glared at the youth. "I want you to know," she responded, "that I never needed a man's advice, and I don't need it now. Lemme by." The young man jumped to one side, and she who would not be befriended went ahead. There was a splash, a half smothered cry, a wild scramble, and she stood on the sidewalk. But the slush had gone above the tops of her stout walking shoes. Grinly she looked back at her adviser, and the wind brought her remark to his ears: "I never took a man's advice, but I wish I had that time," she said. —New York Times.

Both Parties Pleased.
A Portland lawyer says that not long ago a man came into his office thoroughly angry—as men usually are when they go on such errands. He had called upon a debtor and asked him politely for the payment of a bill of $2.50 and had been abused for his pains. Now he wanted the lawyer to collect it. The lawyer demurred. The amount was too trifling. It would cost the whole of it to collect it.

"No matter," said the client. "I don't care if I don't get a cent, so long as that fellow has to pay it."

So the lawyer wrote the debtor a letter, and in due time the latter appeared in high dudgeon. He didn't owe any $2.50, and he wouldn't pay it.

"Very well," said the lawyer, "then my instructions are to sue. But I hardly think it will pay you to stand a suit for so small a sum."

"Who'll get the money if I pay it?" asked the man.

The lawyer was obliged to confess that he should.

"Oh, well," said the debtor, "that's another matter. If Mr. — isn't going to get it, I am perfectly willing to pay it."

The debt was paid, the lawyer pocketed the amount, and what is very unusual, all parties to the suit were perfectly satisfied. —Portland Argus.

Mediums in Japan.
Spirit rapping vocation for women in Japan requires little apparatus. Rapping is perhaps not the correct word, for there is really no "rapping" at all—the clients are simply put in communication with any spirit with whom they desire to speak. It is not necessary that the spirit should be that of a dead person, but the medium always inquires whether the spirit whose presence is desired is living or dead.

The mediums always carry about with them a mysterious wooden box, about a foot or less square. Like the medicine bag of the Indian medicine man, its contents are a secret to members of the same profession. These women usually have a bow of soft wood strung with a single string, and this they twang on the edge of the box like a caricature of violin playing.

If the spirit required is that of a dead person, a leaf plucked from a graveyard is used to splash some water out of a small cup that stands in front of the medium. If the person is living, a similar ceremony is performed with a piece of stick instead of a leaf. Then follows an incantation, and the spirit proceeds to speak through the medium. The medium charges sometimes as high as 15 or 20 cents. —San Francisco Call.

What the College Gymnasium Does.
The college gymnasium is a place not for the production only of studious athletes, but of athletic students. A place where an hour's varied exercise, a run, a spray and a rub down can be had regularly, and where a man may turn his thoughts wholly from books and studies for awhile by a bout at fencing, or boxing, or by a game in the bowling alley, or in the handball court, from which he can get increased capacity for greater and better endeavors. Kept within its proper sphere, it is as necessary for the symmetrical and complete development of the young "scholar in politics" as is the mathematical recitation, the historical lecture or the debating society, and it is as legitimate. —Harper's Weekly.

Drawbacks in Acting.
It is sometimes hard work to be an actor, for the thumping and pulling and hauling that a person may have to endure in an exciting scene are sometimes more than a mere show. Miss Selma Fetter had to give up her part in "The Henrietta" because she was injured by the fall required of her in every performance of that piece. A young leading man who has been playing Orlando in "As You Like It" for three nights is raw from the thrusts to elbows in consequence of the whips, slides and falls endured at the hands of a brawny athlete in the wrestling scene. —New York Sun.

To Find Out Your Future Husband.
At bedtime, having fasted since noon, two girls who wish to obtain a sight of their future husbands boil an egg, which must be the first egg ever laid by the hen, in a pan in which no eggs have ever been boiled before. Having boiled it until it is hard they cut it in two with something that has never been used as a knife before. Each girl eats her half and the shell to the last fragment, speaking no word the while. Then, still in silence, they walk backward to bed, "to sleep, perchance to dream." —English Folk Rhymes.

THE CONJURER.

Into the world from far away.
Where the year is always tuned to May,
And the wind sounds soft as a lark aloft,
A conjurer came once on a day.
Many a mystic spell he knew Wherewith to turn gray sides to blue;
To make dull hours grow bright as flowers,
And tasks that are old turn light as new.
A touch of his magic wand, and lo!
From empty hands sweet favors flow,
And pleasure bloom in lives of gloom
Where naught but sorrow seemed to grow.
Out of the stormy sky above
He brings white Peace, like a heavenly dove.
His might is sure, and his art is pure,
And his name—the conjurer's name—is Love.
—Julie M. Lippmann in St. Nicholas.

After Dinner Speaking.
An after dinner speech should never be wholly facetious, unless the speaker is very facetious indeed and cuts his speech short. It should not be frivolous, even when the speaker is full of frivolity. It must not under any circumstances be silly, though there be people who laugh at silliness. It must not be too long, windy, or highly exciting, or overheavy, or ultra argumentative, or entirely statistical, or in the least rancorous. An after dinner speech should be appropriate to the occasion and delivered on time. It may contain some essential thoughts, some strokes of humor, some scraps of knowledge, some bits of fancy, some sound reasons, some good whims, some green dressing and a little fat.

Every alibi of man of New York is apt to be an after dinner speaker some time in his life. It is possible that as many as 5,000 after dinner speeches have been made here during one winter season. One man has a record of 10 of them for a single week, three of them for one evening.

We have heard some tiptop after dinner speeches, a few. We have heard others that were wearisome, inappropriate, exasperating, enfeebling or foolish. We have heard several which were rant or drivel.

A good many men have won renown by making clever after dinner speeches. —New York Sun.

Unfortunate Names.

"Well, thank heavens, I am plain Mary Ann again," declared a young woman to a sympathizing friend on one of the cross town cabs yesterday. "I did so hate that name—Luella. Missus said Mary Ann wouldn't do at all. She called it 'outre' or something like that. She declared that I must be given some romantic name that would sound pretty for calling. So I have been Luella for half a year, and I'm heartily glad that I left her and am going to Mrs. North-west's." The other girl gave a horrified look at mention of this name. "But, my dear," she exclaimed, "I worked for Mrs. Northwest, and I know all about her. She has a daughter named Mary, and it will never do for you to be Mary too. She called me Maizie, and she'll probably call you Callie or Susanne or some other ridiculous name." Then both sighed. —Philadelphia Record.

Books Which Are Not Books.
In this catalogue of books which are no books—biblia-abillia—I reckon certain calendars, directories, pocketbooks (the literary excepted), draught books bound and lettered on the back, scientific treatises, almanacs, statutes at large, the works of Hume, Gibbon, Robertson, Beattie, Soame Jenyns and generally all those volumes "which no gentleman's library should be without," the histories of Flavius Josephus (that learned Jew) and Paley's "Moral Philosophy." With these exceptions, I can read almost anything. I bless my stars for a taste so catholic, so unexcluding. —Charles Lamb.

INTERESTING FACTS.
Girls over 12 can make valid wills under the laws of Scotland.
It costs the government $1,600 a day for firing morning and evening salutes.
The average height of the human race is, for men, 5 feet 6 inches; for women, 5 feet 2 inches.

Children Cry for

Pitcher's Castoria.

JOB PRINTING

What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other harmful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

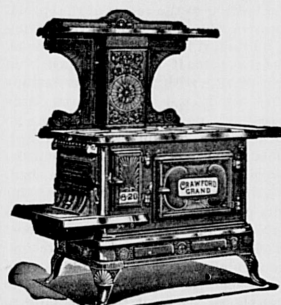

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

A NEW PLAN.

The many and serious objections to a street railway on Centre street have caused many to ask if that is the only possible route for a street railway between Newton and Newton Centre. It may be the shortest, but with electric cars five minutes more would not be a serious matter, and a Newton Centre gentleman has suggested a route that would be only a little longer than the Centre street route, and would also open up a large tract of vacant land to such residents as desire street railway accommodations.

A street railway company already has a location on Beacon street, Newton Centre, and this might be extended to the new street passing through the Wardwell land. There are no houses on this street, so the abutments would not object to a railway, and a location could be granted. The street railway company would have to build a short section of street between Everett and Marshall streets, where they could make use of Irving street as far as Ward street. From Ward street to Cotton another short section of street could be built, and then the road could run down Park avenue, to Sargent street, past Mr. Hammett's house, and down the street through the Hyde land to Franklin, and then down Centre street to the depot. This would save the greater part of Centre street, and the cost to the company of building the connecting streets need not be large, as probably the land owners would give them the right of way.

Or the company could follow the route to Ward street, and then follow Waverley avenue down to Washington street, and have the terminus at the railroad crossing, until the grades are changed, when the cars could run into Nonantum square and connect with the Cambridge and Waltham lines. This route would accommodate several of the directors of the proposed road, as it would pass by their residences, and it would have a splendid chance to build up the city, as there is plenty of vacant land along the route. This plan would also save Centre street, and prevent the danger and confusion that would result from having electric cars pass on Centre street by the depot, the street being now hardly wide enough to accommodate the great number of private teams that meet the morning and afternoon trains from Boston.

The latter route has many advantages, as being longer, it would accommodate more people, and no one is ever in such a hurry to get from Newton to the Centre, or from the Centre to Newton, as to object to the longer ride. If a railway is a necessity between the two places, the location of the road would be immaterial.

TREMONT AND PARK STREETS.

The street railway committee have voted, it is reported, to grant a location for a street railway on Tremont and Park streets, with a recommendation that no further location be granted except on streets at least 80 feet wide. The latter clause is all right, but it is much to be hoped that the first part of the report is incorrect, and if such a report is made the board of aldermen should consider it long and seriously before granting any location.

There is no such need of haste, and such a little branch of a road, connecting with no other Newton System, would be useful only as an entering wedge to get upon Elmwood and Centre street. Tremont street was one of the first streets referred to the boulevard commission for widening, and will probably be one of the first streets in the city to be widened, as the work will only disturb one house and the cost would not be great. It is the outlet for all the teaming that goes to Boston from the north side of Newton and is none too wide for its present travel. To build a railroad, before the street is widened, would be foolish on the part of any company, as the work would all have to be done over again when the street was widened.

In addition, no location should be granted on Tremont street, north of Waverley avenue. There will probably be a street railway on that avenue and down Washington street, and there is no need of encumbering our streets with unnecessary tracks. All who would go to Park street to take the cars would go to Waverley avenue, and the patrons of the road would come mostly from south of Park street.

The corner of Park and Tremont streets is the most dangerous corner in the city, and accidents are not infrequent there, on account of the narrowness of both streets, and putting a street railway curved track would increase the danger. Park street is also too narrow for a street railway and a double track would take up the whole of the road bed. The abutments also strenuously object to the railway, and their wishes should be heeded.

There is no haste about the railway, it connects with no other Newton system, the demand for it is from only a few citizens, and the railway committee should put their second thought first and recommend that no railways be granted a location on Tremont or any other street which is less than 80 feet wide.

LEGISLATIVE NOTES.

A number of Newton matters have received attention at the State House this week.

The bill allowing Newton to issue $750,000 of 30 year sewer bonds, in excess of the debt limit, has gone through one stage and will become a law.

The committee have voted to report favorably on granting the necessary power to change the present sewer ordinance, and the legislature will probably be guided by the committee. It will be a joyful day for Newton when such a bill is passed.

The committee in charge of the matter are unanimous in favor of giving Newton the necessary power to take land in Watertown, for the abatement of the Boyd's pond nuisance. At the hearing, Wednesday, Watertown was characteristic in asking that it should be given the power to tax Newton for such land, although it is to be laid out as a public park for the use of Watertown's own citizens. The proposition caused a good deal of laughter from the others present, but it illustrates the attitude of Watertown.

The Hyde School building at Newton Highlands is certainly not ornamental and according to the report of the special committee who have been investigating its condition, it is no better than it looks. In the first place it appears to have been poorly built, with walls that exclude neither wind nor rain, three large furnaces can not heat it, there are no brick chimneys, iron pipes being utilized, in violation of a city ordinance, and the sanitary arrangements are very bad. The building has only been used for twenty-one years, so that its age does not account for its defects, and it cost about $14,000. The school board recommend an eight room brick building, and if one is decided on, the committee in charge should see to it that it is built to last at least for an ordinary lifetime. No building that could be erected could fail to be an improvement, as far as the exterior is concerned, and judging from the report of the committee, and the testimony of parents whose children attend the school, a new building appears to be a necessity.

SPEAKER BARRETT appears to have had his usual success and gets a majority of the delegates for the congressional nomination in the 7th district, for he has 56 delegates to 52 for Mayor Hayes of Lynn, and one more than half the votes in the convention. Mr. Barrett is the most prominent Massachusetts example of the "hustler" in politics, who captures an office because he works for it, and because he knows how to pull wires better than his opponents. Mr. Hayes would do more credit to the state, as a representative in Washington, but politics are just now so uncertain that a Republican nomination in the Seventh district is not equivalent to an election, especially as the district is one in which Mr. Lodge was always called upon to spend a great deal of money, and neither Mr. Barrett nor Mr. Hayes has Mr. Lodge's long and well-filled purse. The contest will serve to make the daily papers interesting reading.

THE Hunnewell hill improvement association have taken hold of matters in that section with a vigorous hand, and a great deal can be accomplished by such a society, if the members take interest in the work. The improvement of Charles River, which is sometimes offensive in warm weather, the planting of shade trees, and the beautifying of the river bank, a new railroad station, a public playground, street lighting and the improvement of the streets are some of the things the society will look after. That section could be made one of the most attractive in Newton, but so far but little has been done to improve its natural advantages.

The proposed Newton boulevard seems to be regarded with great favor, judging from the comments on the plan published in last week's GRAPHIC. It is looked at as the beginning of a liberal policy towards making Newton attractive to new residents who are willing to pay for handsome surroundings, and who would bring enough taxable property to more than pay the interest on the sum the city would have to expend. Newton has so far done so little in this way, that it would seem to be worth while to make the experiment, and see if it will not prove fully as profitable to Newton as the same policy has proved in Brookline.

The storage battery people are making a great effort to get some of their cars on the West End tracks, and the same familiar claims of perfection are being made that have been heard so often. Possibly, however, some new inventions have been made, or old ones perfected, and it is now said that Watertown people are taking great interest in the project, and hope to have the horse cars replaced by electric motors.

AT HER WEDDING.

There was no profusion
Of jewels or lace,
No yards of ribbon
Her figure to grace,
But the bride was most simply
And tastefully dressed.
In the style and the color
That suited her best.

And Fred in a whisper—he stood at my side—
Said, "I never beheld a more beautiful bride."

I hardly need mention
The fact, I presume,
But all my attention
Was fixed on the groom, Whose face so reflected
The joy of his heart
That in the sweet service
My own took a part.

And, oh, 'twas a scene we remember with pride,
For Fred was the bridegroom, and I was the bride.

—New York Ledger.

BRIEF WEDLOCK.

The date of this occurrence is not important—in fact, it is just as well left untold. I was on the hotel run for a morning paper in St. Paul at the time, and glancing over the Ryan register one afternoon I saw the name Mrs. George Trehune. It was written in the long, angular scrawl affected so extensively by women of the dramatic profession, and although I had never before heard of Mrs. Trehune her signature attracted my attention. There is more of instinct than any other sense in selecting from a long list of signatures those of people worth interviewing. Mrs. Trehune's slapdash characters set me wondering what sort of a woman she was, and nothing was easier than to find out, so I handed my card to the clerk, pointed to the room, No. 205, and awaited the return of the bellboy.

In five minutes, or thereabouts, he informed me that I was to "go right up," and up I went.

"Come in," called a voice in answer to my tap on the door. I entered. Near the open fire in an armchair sat a young woman. She wore a white gown of that soft caressing wool that so invariably sets off well the wearer's charms. Rising as I entered she advanced toward me, and her manner betrayed at once the well bred woman. I took a mental photograph of the face and figure before me. The former was oval, well featured, set with a pair of lustrous dark eyes and framed in curls of an indefinable color—half golden, half brown. The latter was tall and shapely.

"Pray be seated," she said as I began to explain why I had asked for an interview. "Oh, yes," she went on, "I know why you came. I have several friends in the profession, and in fact have the greatest regard for daily newspaper writers. They are equal to almost anything."

"You flatter the craft," I answered. "Some of us are very retiring. I am"—

"I hope you are not, sir," said my charming vis-a-vis, leaning impulsively forward as she spoke. Her elbow found support on the arm of the chair, her chin rested on her shapely white hand, and her large dark eyes looked straight into mine. It was an embarrassing situation and I confess I hardly knew what to make of it. With an effort I met the gaze of this strange young woman and said inquiringly, "You dislike nervous people?"

"I should hate myself if that were the case," replied Mrs. Trehune. "For I am all nerves. Oh, dear, dear; if I only dared to do it."

With a sudden wink she was out of the chair and pacing back and forth on the carpet like a caged lioness. There was very evidently something wrong with Mrs. Trehune. Why, good heavens, she was sobbing!

"My dear madam," I exclaimed, "if I can be of any possible service"—

"Oh, I dare not ask it of a stranger," she protested, throwing up both hands dramatically. "And yet," she added, "none but a stranger would do."

The sight of the tears had scattered my self possession to the winds. I was ready now to fight a duel or two if necessary in defense of this mysterious young person.

"Ask anything you like," I said desperately. "I'll do it."

"Will you?" whispered Mrs. Trehune, coming hurriedly toward me. "If you will do what I ask, I can never do enough for you in return. Mine is a case that requires immediate and skillful action. You will have to use all your finesse, for I have not time to explain matters fully. You must be patient, then, and finally exasperated. Do you understand?"

"Certainly," I answered promptly. "Crazy as a March hare was my inward reflection."

"And you will do this for a stranger?" inquired Mrs. Trehune.

"Command me," I replied.

"Then listen," she said, drawing her chair near mine with an apprehensive glance at the door. "I am not Mrs. Trehune. I shall be this afternoon if all goes well, but at present I am Clara Talbot. I have run away from my home in Chicago to marry Mr. Trehune. He is of Kansas City and was to have met me here. I have received a telegram from him to say that his train is several hours late. Never mind why it was necessary for me to run away. It is a family matter. My people have never seen Mr. Trehune. I met him at the house of a friend in Europe last year. They wanted me to marry another man. I fled yesterday after telling George to meet me here. My father has followed me. He is in the hotel now; (another glance at the door, his card preceded yours. I sent word that I was dressing, and he is waiting down stairs. When I read the name on your card—a newspaper man—I conceived this plan: Will you be my band for half an hour?"

"I started up like a scared jack rabbit. 'Good gracious, madam,' I exclaimed, 'I don't know enough about you to do the thing successfully.'"

"Oh, try," pleaded the brown eyed fugitive, "please try."

"I'll do it," I said desperately, and the next instant there was a crash. The door flew back, and in burst an old gentleman with a very red face, from which a couple of small eyes snatched angrily as he dashed his hat and cane down on the center table. Using the latter as a sort of rostrum, he glared straight at the girl and began to rave, ignoring me entirely.

"Well, madame," in a tone of concentrated fury, "what the devil do you mean by this disgraceful escapade?"

My temporary wife glanced hopefully toward where I sat, within easy reach of the old gentleman's cane. Summoning all my fortitude I arose and looked the irate parent straight in the eye.

"I shall have to request, sir," I said, "that in addressing this lady you will remember that respect is due her as my wife and your daughter. You must show her that respect, sir. Do you understand?" raising my voice a little on the last few words.

"Oh," shrieked the venerable pater, literally dancing with rage. "So you are the blackguard who has inveigled my daughter into this d—d idiocy. By gad, sir, I've a good mind to thrash you!" and the cane was raised threateningly.

"I hope you will change your mind and improve your language," I went on as calmly as possible. "Your present conduct will result in a scandal."

"Scandal be d—d, sir! What could be more scandalous than the present state of affairs?" he cried.

Things went on in this way for 10 minutes, until the old man howled himself hoarse, and I could hear the bell boys tittering in the hall outside. Then he gradually calmed down, and as a last resort tried the sympathetic dodge on the terrified young woman. The latter had hardly spoken a word throughout the scene. She was too badly frightened, I think.

There were tears in the old gentleman's voice as he turned toward my supposed wife. Had she not always been well treated? Was not her mother the best of mothers? Had he not been the most indulgent of fathers? Was not her home one of luxury? etc. Yes, she admitted every charge in the indictment as it was checked off.

"But, father," she sobbed, "I loved him so very much, and—oh! I could not marry that other."

"Where was this wretched marriage performed?" he inquired savagely.

"Milwaukee," answered the girl in a great hurry.

"I'll have it dissolved, by gad, I will!" swore the enraged pater, getting noisier again.

"Let me remind you, sir," I said deliberately, "that your daughter is of age (I was not sure about it), that we are legally married, and that any amount of talk will not alter the fact. I must also suggest that as our train leaves for the south at 4 o'clock we have very little time to devote to this sort of thing."

"Eh? What! Adding insult to injury?" he roared. "Well, I'll leave you here for the present, but you will hear from me, sir," shaking the cane in my face. "I'm not the man to submit tamely to a rascally abduction of this character. You're a scoundrel, sir, a d—d scoundrel," reiterated my angelic father-in-law, and with this choice parting shot he retired, slamming the door after him.

"How did I manage it?" I inquired, turning to where the future Mrs. Trehune was sitting. She had fainted. Just like a woman! She had the nerve to get through a scene like this undisturbed to all appearance, and then, when the danger was over, she must spoil it all by an exhibition of weakness. I rushed to the water, poured a glass of it out and approached the young woman. She was recovering, though, before I reached her, and in an instant sat up.

"How can I ever repay you?" she asked. "You did it superbly, and George will soon be here now (glancing at her watch). My dear sir," she went on, "I cannot tell you how grateful I am. I shall make Mr. Trehune call at your office this evening and thank you personally."

My engagement as Miss Talbot's husband was evidently at an end; so, protesting that I would willingly have done twice as much for her, I withdrew. Trehune came in late in the afternoon, and they were married by the rector of Christ church. The Kansas City young man called on me in the evening and insisted on my going to supper with him and the bride. We had a jolly little spread of pate de fois gras and champagne at the Ryan cafe, and I have never set eyes on either of the Trehunes or the venerable Mr. Talbot of Chicago from that moment to this.—Arthur Pegler in Chicago Herald.

The Profit on Cigarettes.

New brands of cigarettes are put on the market with discouraging regularity. Dealers say there is no profit in their sale, yet no tobaccoist can afford to be without them in stock. One of the largest dealers in the city in all kinds of tobacco has made it the rule of his establishment that no cigarettes shall be sold on credit. Said he: "To sell a man cigarettes on credit is just like lending him money out of my own pocket. There is nothing in handling them. With cigarettes it is different. There is a good profit in them, and I will sell on credit to any good man, because I can afford to wait for the money."—New York Tribune.

All in One Day.

It is told of a well known Kentucky colonel that once he invited a gentleman to dine with him at Chamberlain's in Washington. Among other things ordered was porterhouse steak, with onions. His guest asked to be excused from partaking of this dish. "It gives me a bad smelling breath," he said.

"Never you mind about that," remarked the colonel; "wait till you get the bill—that will take your breath away." The ease with which the colonel changed from host to guest nearly took his friend's breath away. The bill did so completely.—San Francisco Argonaut.

An Early Taste For Art.

A well known magazine illustrator developed her taste for drawing at an early age. She was a bashful little girl, who refused to talk to visitors, but it was often found afterward that she had occupied the time of their stay by making caricatures of the company on her slate as she sat in her isolated corner.—New York Times.

I Would Not be Alive
But for Hood's Sarsaparilla

Erysipelas, and Kidney Trouble
Cured, at 93 Years of age

"I commenced using Hood's Sarsaparilla seven years ago, at which time I was nearly helpless, suffering from Erysipelas, which covered nearly my whole body and made me

Blind in One Eye. My sufferings were intense, being completely raw from the disease. I also had kidney complaint, and at the time of my husband's death was unable to stand on my feet without support. After using Hood's Sarsaparilla a short time I began to feel stronger, the sores began to heal, the kidney trouble abated. After using six bottles I was entirely free from both diseases. My appetite became much better and I grew stronger, and now at ninety-three years of age I am able to attend church and take quite long walks. Had it not been for this valuable medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, I should not be alive today to tell this story. I keep a bottle of it at hand constantly." MRS. PERMELIA SAXTON, Turners Falls, Mass.

"I can testify to the truth of this statement." MRS. H. EMERY, Turners Falls, Mass.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE—Much pleasure is promised theatre patrons in next week's attraction at the Grand Opera House. The play is the Mr. Eugene Tomlin's great Boston Theatre success,
"The Soudan." Miss Annie Clarke, the new star at this theatre, will appear in the leading female role of Mrs. Temple.
This will be the second role in which Miss Clarke will have appeared under the new management. She will dress the part superbly and no detail will be omitted which will add to the portraiture of the role. "The Soudan" was given its first American production at the Boston Theatre, Sept. 17, 1890, where it had the phenomenal run of 200 nights. Since then it has been presented in the principal cities under the direction of Messrs.
C. B. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger, with great success. Mr. James Horne, the eminent emotional actor, will play Captain Temple and the entire company will be composed of the best people in the profession. The Fast Day matinee performance will be given Thursday afternoon.

COLUMBIA THEATRE—Thomas Q. Seabrooke and his opera company and ballet in "The Isle of Champagne" were a revelation to theatregoers when first introduced last August at the Globe. The quaint originality and cleverness of the comedian as well as the charming novelty of the operetta was promptly recognized and extolled. Mr. Seabrooke plays a return engagement beginning Easter Monday, April 3, at the Columbia Theatre, and will present the same all-sufficient attraction, but in an improved manner, upon a new and magnificent scenic setting and a new mount in the costume department. The cast has undergone no change so far as the principals are concerned, for none was needed. The opening of the box office for the advance sale of seats for the Seabrooke engagement has met with an eager response.
A cordial welcome is in store for Miss Elvia Crox, Miss Minnie Landis, Miss Alice Hosmer, Mr. Walter Allen, Mr.
Robert Dunbar, Mr. Eugene O'Rourke,
Mr. Lee Harrison, Premier Clara Qualitz and others whose talents contribute so largely to the excellence of the ensemble of which Mr. Thomas Q. Seabrooke was and is the radiant and fun evolving centre.

PARK THEATRE.—The fifth month of Hoyt's "A Temperance Town," began Monday night at the Park Theatre, the performance being the 14th, the opening of the 17th week. It had bestowed upon it as much favor by means of the constant applause and almost constant series of laughs as though it was playing in its second week, and in that time had won the universal favor of all theatregoers. There is an interesting intent to this comedy, notwithstanding the fact that it is probably the most mirth provoking comedy Mr. Hoyt ever wrote.

Inasmuch as it has been decreed by the Governor of this Commonwealth that Thursday, April 6, shall be observed as Fast Day, it has been decreed by the management of the Park Theatre that there will be a special matinee performance of Hoyt's "A Temperance Town" on that day.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—"Blue Jeans," Joseph Arthur's quaint comedy drama, will make Fast week memorabil-ity at the Hollis Street Theatre, commencing Monday, April 3, with the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees and the special Fast Day matinee on Thursday, the 6th inst. Few better plays have visited Boston than this one and none more calculated to please general audiences. It is a strong dramatic story, a great deal of good wholesome comedy, and a startling sensation. It has innovations in the way of real life in the introduction of live pigeons and a thoroughbred calf as accessories, two particularly strong features in "The Rustic Quartet" and an exact reproduction of a country band known as "The Rising Roasters." The scene of the play is laid in the village of Rising Sun, Indiana, an old fashioned but peculiarly charming town on the banks of the Ohio River, some 14 miles from any railroad and has a distinct pastoral flavor. The characters in "Blue Jeans" are studies from real life.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE—"Yon Yonson" comes to the Bowdoin Square Theatre as the attraction for the Easter holidays, beginning April 3; and this realistic picture of the life of the lupher regions of the great North West will doubtedly be as interesting as it was in its original Boston production. The production of "Yon Yonson" calls for some of the most complicated stage sets known in recent years. The great "log jam" is a realistic reproduction of one of the most thrilling events in our western life. The company producing "Yon Yonson" includes Miss Hall, who plays the part of the heroine, and Merri Osbourne, a bright little soubrette actress, who has become very popular with the patrons of the company on the western circuit. Following "Yon Yonson" there will be a return of "The Dazzler," which made such a successful record early in the season, and "McCarthy's Mishaps."

"CRUST OF SOCIETY"—The Crust of Society, the great social surprise play, which Manager John Stetson first produced at his Globe Theatre, Boston, some months ago, will return to the Globe Easter Monday, April 3, for a special limited engagement. In the cast are Miss Carrie Turner, Mr. Vincent Sternroyd, Miss Jane Stuart, Mr. Harry Saint-Maur, Miss Jane L. Lovey, Mr. Edgar L.
Davenport, Mr. Joseph E. Whiting, Miss
May Dana, Miss Helen Kinnaird, Mr.
David Elmer and others. Owing to length of performance, curtain will rise at eight sharp. Mme. Eleonora Duse, the great Italian tragedienne, whose success in this country has been remarkable, will appear in Boston before her departure for Europe at the Globe Theatre, Tuesday evening, April 11; Wednesday evening, 12th; Friday evening, 14th, and Saturday matinee, 15th. This will no doubt be one of the fashionable theatrical events of the season. Mme. Duse's time will take up part of the second week's special engagement of Manager John Stetson's "Crust of Society" Company, which will be welcomed back to town on Easter Monday, April 3. Mr. Stetson had booked attractions for all the time at his theatre this season, but when he saw the scores of letters from Boston's best people beseeching him to bring to the book "La Duse" in Boston he determined to satisfy the demands of the Boston public, and so sacrificed part of his own company's time at the Globe Theatre.

TREMONT THEATRE—Next week, beginning Monday, April 3, and for that week only, the well known artists, Mrs.
J. B. Potter and Mr. Kyrie Bellew will present at the Tremont, a dramatic work which has won the greatest amount of attention of late, and excited a vast deal of comment. There is exceeding interest felt here in this engagement and especially in the single play to be offered.
One of the least known but one of the best of the master-works of Dumas,
"Francillon," under the English title of "The Marriage of Spenre" is to be the production. The work has met with a positive furor of excitement from its tone and class, and deals with subjects not common upon the stage, and in a manner such as Dumas alone is able to exercise. The play will be very strongly cast and superbly costumed and set.
Dumas' play is said to be the acme of its author's power to deal with subject which, until of late, have not been accepted upon our stage. However much moralists may differ regarding such works, the literary quality, the dramatic force and the strong characterizations of this play are noted by one and all. The sale of seats for this engagement is now in progress, including the extra matinee, April 6, Fast Day.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

Raymond L. Bridgman contributes an able article to the April New England Magazine, in which he considers the objections to "Biennial Elections and Legislative Sessions." He comes to the conclusion that the growing demands of modern life demand annual sessions, and that frequent legislation educates the electorate, and is worth the expense.

NEW ENGLAND MAGAZINE.

The April number of the New England Magazine contains a variety of good things, among others two valuable political papers on topics of wide interest. The number opens with Phillips Brooks' historical sermon on Trinity Church. It is finely illustrated with portraits of all the pastors of the church back to the pre-revolutionary days, and with reproductions of the magnificent stained windows of the present edifice, and sketches of the exterior and interior.
This is supplemented by the description of Trinity, written by H. H. Richardson.
Benjamin Kimball gives an account of the work of the Boston Camera Club.
Raymond L. Bridgman ably considers the objections to "Biennial Elections and Legislative Sessions." Professor A. V. G.
Latham Perry, the veteran advocate of free trade in America, contributes a notable paper, "Plain Words on Protection," and there are other interesting articles.

THE ATLANTIC.

The Atlantic for April contains the conclusion of Mrs. Mary Hartwell Cather-wood's serial, "Old Kaskaskia." Some interesting unpublished correspondence of William Hazitt is edited by Mr. William Carey Hazitt. Letters from Henry Pelham to John Singleton Copley. These were discovered in the English Public Record Office, in a bundle marked "Intercepted Letters," and are full of interesting and detailed accounts of the state of Boston in 1770 and also in 1775, during the siege. They are now for the first time published. Dr. Edward Everett

Hale continues his series of papers on
"My College Days." Harriet Waters
Preston and Louise Dodge have a long paper on Vittoria Colonna. The short story of the number consists of a tale called "Miss Tom and Peepsie," by A.
M. Ewell. Henry Van Brunt has a thoughtful paper on "Architecture among the Poets," and President E.
Benjamin Andrews, of Brown University, has an article on "Money as an International Question." Professor A. V. G.
Allen's sympathetic paper on Bishop Brooks is written from the standpoint of a man who has lost at once a friend and a leader.

Literary Notes.

Children of Destiny is the title of a new novel by Molly Elliot Seawell, author of "Maid Marian." "Little Jarvis," etc., which is published in Appletons' Town and Country Library. This new work is said to be perhaps the strongest which this popular author has produced.

A new edition of Hall Caine's popular story, Capt'n Davy's Homestead, is to appear shortly in Appletons' Town and Country Library.

An Inappropriate Selection.

The Easter hat, the Easter hat,
Is in it broad and slightly flat,
And on the top, where all can see,
Are flowers and a chipsey-wee.

The bird is not appropriate,
Because its bill is small, not great—
And all men know through sorrow that Large bills come with the Easter hat.

I have been a sufferer from catarrh for years.
Having tried a number of remedies advertised as "sure cures" without obtaining any relief, I had resolved never to take any other patent

Ely's Cream Balm. I did so with great relucor six weeks I believe myself cured. It is a most agreeable remedy—an invaluable Balm—

Personals.
A young lady of seventeen summers, highly educated, refined, and of prepossessing appearance, desires to form the acquaintance of some nice young man, whom she would advise, if troubled with dyspepsia, to use that great blood purifier, Sulphur Bitters.

Emerson the Man of Genius.

(Rev. Dr. W. H. Furness in Atlantic Monthly.)
Emerson was all genius, of miraculous insight. But he could not draw, nor sing, nor play, not even on a Jew's harp, a musical instrument popular among boys in those days. If, by some sleight of hand, or sleight of talent,—which is it?—one did any of such like things that he could not do, Emerson extolled him to the skies. This is the reason, I imagine,—so fond was he of praising,— why his swans turned out to be—not swans. In fact, he had no talent; only pure genius. He could not use our beautiful literary paper money. He had to coin his own language in the fire of his own genius. It was all bullion without a particle of alloy; solid gold, I once said in print, somewhere, that since Shakespeare no one had used words so grandly as Emerson. An English admirer of his, Mr. Ireland, quoted this remark, evidently regarding it as a bit of extravagant eulogy. When I first read that exquisite little poem of Emerson's,
"The Titmouse," in which he tells of being lost in the woods in a New England snow-storm that raged around him so fiercely that he feared he should not get safely out of it, and a titmouse came, hopping from twig to twig, chirping as merrily as if he were overflowing with enjoyment of a balmy midsummer's day, and the wee bird is described as this atom in full breath,
Hurling defiance at vast death,

I turned without a moment's delay, to my Shakespeare Concordance, to discover whether or not Emerson had borrowed from Shakespeare that epithet "vast" as applied to death, so true to the situation, to the all surrounding storm, threatening death everywhere.
The phrase was not in the Concordance.
Thoroughly and genuinely Shakespearian as it is, it is Emerson's own.

Poor But Honest.

street, found a wallet containing checks and money to the value of several hundred dollars.
Although almost destitute, he returned it to its owners, Messrs. A. P. Ordway & Co., proprietors of Sulphur Bitters, who gave him a liberal reward, and also gave him six bottles of Sulphur Bitters for his mother, who has been a terrible sufferer with rheumatism, and who returned many blessings after being cured by their use.—Weekly World.

NEWTON CENTRE.

—Ivers & Pond piano, Farley, Newton.
—Mr. C. W. Joyce is much better this week.
—Gus Forbes has secured a position in Rockford.
—Mr. James Clark has taken a house on Ripley street.
—Miss Ellen Blake is at her home in Worcester for a few days.
—James McDermott has purchased the pool business of C. W. Harris.
—Mr. Frank Parker, a former resident, has been visiting friends here.
—Rev. Dr. Adams occupied the pulpit at the Baptist church last Sunday.
—The residents of Grey Cliff road are rejoicing at the acquisition of a nice plank walk.
—Read Knapp's new advertisement in another column and then buy his merchandise.

—Misses Elizabeth E. Thorpe and Anna H. Dodge have returned from a week at Gloucester.

—An addition is being built on to the house occupied by Prof. J. B. Coit on Summer street.

—Moritz Hauptmann Emery, teacher of piano and organ, Hancock avenue, Newton Centre.

—The engagement of Miss Alice Thaxter Reed to Mr. Willis E. Stacy of West Newton is announced.

—Lieut. J. Albert Scott was one of the judges at the drill of the Malden High school battalion last evening.

—Mr. James Covey, a clerk for Messrs. W. O. Knapp & Co., received from friends the other day a gold watch and chain.

—Mr. S. E. Harlow and family have taken the house recently left vacant by the removal of Rev. Alexander T. Bowser.

—Mr. James Gammons of Beacon street has leased his estate for a year while he is in Oregon, for which place he departs soon.

—Mr. C. M. Ransom and family have returned from the Langham Hotel, Boston, where they have been spending the winter season.

—Maj. Brewer from the Salvation Army headquarters in Boston, spoke very interestingly Sunday evening at the First Congregational church.

—John Ladd left town this week, after quite a visit for New York, where he will sail as first mate of the "Henrietta," now loading for Singapore.

—More than its share of affliction has come to Summer street this winter. Out of twenty-six families on the street, nine have had serious illness and death has entered two.

—Rev. Geo. W. Shinn, D. D., rector of Grace church, Newton, conducted services at Trinity church Tuesday evening. Special services were held Thursday and will be held this evening.

—There are letters in the postoffice for Catherine Campbell, Chas. Gibbs, Henry Smith, Susan Glover, George Hennessey, Emma Hooper, Mary Horne, Isaac Mackay, John Moriarty.

—Mrs. Lemuel C. Barnes gave a reception to the members of the Baptist Young People's Union last evening between 7.30 and 10 o'clock. A good number were present and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

—Judge Charles Field of Athol, on Wednesday called on old acquaintances in Newton Centre and Newton, natives of Athol. As to the Judge, he was quite emphatic in expressing his appreciation of Newton as a beautiful city.

—Miss Norma I. Morse, daughter of Mrs. Caroline Morse, was married on the 21st, to Mr. Davis Kever. It was a very pretty wedding and took place in Ashmont at the new home just completed for the newly wedded couple.

—At Trinity church the services of Easter Sunday will be as follows: Holy Communion, 7.30 a. m.; morning prayer, sermon and Holy Communion, 10.30 a. m.; children's carol service, 12 m.; holy baptism, 4 p. m.; evening prayer, 7.30 p. m.

—Frank Morton of this place reports that while passing along Cabot street, Newtonville, the other day, he heard the report of two guns and the whirling of two balls near his head. He afterwards found three boys in the woods amusing themselves by firing guns.

—Mrs. John Lowell is one of the prominent leaders in the formation of a club to be composed wholly of women. The club is to be called the "Mayflower," and rooms have been taken at 7 Park street, Boston, the former residence of Mr. John Amory Lowell. The membership will be limited to three hundred.

—Four young ladies took a walk the other afternoon from Pelham street to the business part of Boston. One lady was from Worcester, one from Braintree, one from Maine and the other a resident of Newton Centre. Although they asserted they greatly enjoyed the walk it was noticed they took seats in a car of the B. & A. railroad for a return.

—The services at the Unitarian church, Easter morning will consist of special music by the choir and Sunday school, which will join with the congregation at 10.45, conducted by the Rev. E. J. Young, D. D., of Waltham, and the superintendent of the school. All cordially invited. Mr. Huntress has given valuable assistance in preparing the school for this service. A program of the music will be found in another column. Mr. Chipman, organist, will have charge of the music.

—Rev. Dr. Furber was asked to invoke the blessing at the dinner of the Congregational Club at Horticultural Hall, Boston, Monday evening. He did so by inviting the several hundred members present to unite with him in singing the four lines of the hymn which John Wesley always used when called upon to make an invocation. The lines were sung to the air of "Old Hundred," the immense chorus sending the prayer through the building with a thunderous sound. This unique feature of the occasion seemed to add a keener edge to appetite and wit, as was abundantly shown by the zest with which every one entered into the menu and the table talk.

—Four ladies from Newton Centre had a narrow escape from serious injury on Monday. They took the train leaving this station at 7.44 p. m. for Eliot. At the latter station these ladies and a gentleman and lady were upon the car steps and platform when the train started in obedience to the conductor's signal. A brakeman on the platform at once pulled the bell rope which stopped the train with a shock which threw all violently against the railing, and one of the Newton Centre ladies would have been thrown between the wheels but for the promptness of the brakeman. The brakeman on this car had not given his signal when the train started.

—Work on the new business block, to be erected by Mr. Mellen Bray as mentioned in the GRAPHIC several weeks ago, was commenced this week. Civil Engineer Smith has surveyed the lot and the stakes outlining the proposed building have been set. The block will have a frontage on Institution avenue and Union street of nearly 250 feet and a depth of nearly 100 feet occupying almost the entire area of the lot.

It will be constructed of brick two or three stories in height with six stores on the ground floor and tenements and possibly a hall above. The building will be erected under the direct supervision of Mr. Bray and it will probably be ready for occupancy in the fall.

—The death of Mr. George Capron of Beacon street at five o'clock Tuesday afternoon came very suddenly to the community. He had been a resident of this place only about five years, but during that period had made many friends and was highly esteemed. The deceased was 59 years of age and came to Newton Centre from Worcester where he resided for a number of years. During his residence there he was at one time teacher of the Worcester High school until he became interested in the insurance business, accepting a responsible position with the State Mutual Life Insurance Company of Worcester, and later removing here and taking charge of the Boston office. He leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

—Pianos, rented and tuned, Farley, Newton.

—Mrs. Hiram Ross, who has been very ill with pneumonia, is now slowly improving.

—The next meeting of the Monday Club will be with Mrs. Nickerson on Lincoln street.

—Mr. B. F. Quimby of Floral avenue has removed to Chicago, on account of a change in his business.

—The spring term of the kindergarten will open April 10th and continue eight weeks, closing June 2nd.

—Mrs. R. Wright, who is at the home of her father at South Boston, is making good progress towards recovery.

—Mr. John Glover has a very handsome house nearly completed on Hillside avenue and it will soon be offered for sale.

—Prof. Eaton, president of Beloit College, Wis., will conduct the services at the Congregational church next Sunday morning.

—Mr. P. McKinnon has sold his fish, fruit and vegetable business to Mr. H. Libby, who will continue the business at the old stand.

—The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Strong are glad to hear of their return from their trip to California in the best of health.

—Mr. John R. Henderson, who is at the Newton Cottage Hospital, is making progress towards recovery and is able to walk a very little.

—Spring house painting has commenced and we notice Mrs. Webster's, also Mr. Farnham's, formerly the clubhouse, are being painted.

—Mr. Polsey of Lake avenue, who has been ill for several weeks, has improved so far as to be able to attend to business. Mrs. Polsey is now ill.

—After six years of faithful service as organist of St. Paul's church, Mr. George M. Stone has resigned his position. Mrs. E. A. True has been appointed organist in his place and has accepted.

—Master Edward L. Clark, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Peter Clark, gave a party to his young friends on Wednesday, it being his ninth birthday. A supper was served and all were merry.

—It is expected that Lincoln street will be widened in front of the Newhall and Patterson blocks, as it is stated that the land will be given to the city, the city to bear the expense of the widening.

—Tickets are being circulated by the members of the Highland Club for a dramatic entertainment to be given in the hall of the clubhouse, Thursday evening, April 6, (Fast night). The cast includes well-known local talent.

—We understand that Mr. Patterson will build a lot of block, ninety-four feet in length and fifty feet in depth, to be three stories in height, with four stores on the first floor and tenements above to be fitted up with all modern improvements. The block will front on Lincoln street as the present block is to be moved to Hartford street.

—The Congregational Sunday school will hold Easter services in the church, Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. The exercises will consist of responsive readings, interspersed with songs and recitations. The new anthem "Consider the Lilies," by Exell, will be rendered by a mixed quartet, and a short address may be expected from Rev. Dr. Eaton, President of Beloit College.

—The past year Prof. James McDonald Gardner, headmaster of the Boy's school, Tokio, Japan, with his interesting family, have been residents of Newton Centre. Before his return to Japan, Prof. Gardner is to lecture at the Highland Club House on the evening of Wednesday, April 12th, on the ever fascinating theme of "Japan and the Japanese." The views to be exhibited are beautiful in the extreme and the residents of this neighborhood are to be congratulated on the intellectual treat in store for them.

—The adjourned meeting of the Newton Highlands Improvement Association which took place at the Highland Club House on Wednesday evening, March 29 at 8 p. m., was largely attended and very interesting. As the call stated its purpose was to take further action pertaining to a new school house in this place. The committee chosen at the last meeting to draft suitable resolutions to submit to the school board, discussed through Mr. Joseph R. Smith, the member of the board from this ward, that said resolutions had been unanimously approved by that body. Mr. Hayward submitted a resolution to be presented to the city council, requesting that early and careful attention be given to the petition of Dr. S. L. Eaton and 255 others as to the unhealthy condition of the Hyde school house, and urging prompt action thereon. A committee consisting of Mr. A. F. Hayward, Mr. David Bates and Mr. S. W. Jones was chosen to forward the matter. The question of widening Lincoln street in front of the Patterson building was discussed as it was understood that Mr. Patterson was willing to devote sufficient land for the purpose if the city would repair damage to the sidewalk. Quite a number availed themselves of the opportunity to join the association, which evinced a hearty co-operation in the work of the society.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Miss Cusick is driving express for D. Atkinson.

—Mr. H. A. Sherman, Jr., has purchased a new horse.

—Cooper & Dyson have added a new horse to their business.

—Rev. Mr. Jefferson of Norwood preached at the Baptist church last Sunday.

—Aaron Barrett has concluded his services at Cooper & Dyson's grocery.

—Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Sullivan are expected home from the South this week.

—Miss Jennie Hill and Mrs. W. J. Hill have been visiting friends in Charles River Village.

—Miss Annie Doyle of Eliot street is selling her household goods preparatory to removal to Lowell.

—Mr. and Mrs. M. Dwyer have gone to housekeeping in Mrs. John Brennan's house, Chestnut street.

—The Gamewell boys are talking up a base ball team and a cricket team for recreation during the summer season.

—Mr. Louis P. Everett has recovered from his illness and resumed his duties at the Broadway National Bank on Monday.

—Mrs. Smith of Elliott street fell down the cellar stairs one day last week and broke an arm. Dr. McEwen attended her.

—Thomas Leach has severed his connection with the Petter Machine Works and has secured a position with the Hickory Wheel Co. of Newton.

—Mr. James Welch has commenced the erection of a large double house on Oak street, to contain eighteen rooms. Contractor Harley has the work.

—An English tripe supper was given Saturday by Mr. James Mills of Chestnut street. There were quite a number present and after supper a musical program was succeeded by dancing.

—The Gamewells were defeated by the Square team, Tuesday, by 39 pins, the latter winning first place in the tournament. The other three teams are tied and some interest is manifested in the result, when the tie is rolled off.

—The contestants for the prizes offered for the best individual three-string bowling record rated as follows on Wednesday: L. P. Everett, 575 pins; George Wright, 566 pins; Edwin Cooper, 557 pins; F. W. Atchmore, 556 pins. Four prizes are offered and the contest finishes today.

—Charles River Park, a tract of land comprising seven acres, situated on Chestnut street, has been leased for the summer season by Mr. Edward Lee and will be devoted to various sports. A portion of the park is to be diked up by the Brighton base ball team, who have sub-leased from Mr. Lee enough for a ball field, and under the direction of W. P. Fitzgerald, manager of the nine, work is to commence soon laying out the ground and erecting bleachers. The Brighton team will be transferred here and the season will be opened by them, Saturday, May 6, with a game on the new grounds. The Brighton team, an enviable record last season and the material comprising this year's team is said to ensure even better work. A small fee will be charged for admission to the grounds to defray running expenses. Mr. Lee reserves the remainder of the Park and will probably fit up cricket and foot ball grounds, which will doubtless be in demand. There will then remain room for two or more tennis courts, and the lessee thinks very favorably of putting up a bath house near the river for public use.

—The annual meeting of St. Mary's Church, held for the election of officers and the transaction of other parish business, will take place Easter Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock.

—Mr. Daniel Warren has purchased the engine house, now out of service, from the B. & A. corporation. Other parties were anxious to secure the property as it is quite valuable for many uses.

—Mr. James A. Early is a candidate for the trusteeship of A. petter is being freely signed this week in his behalf. It is not known at present how all feel in regard to changing the postoffice location.

—The school trouble continues to be a topic for much discussion here and is likely to until some favorable and decided action is taken by the school committee or board of aldermen to assign a master to the Hamilton school.

—A number of prominent citizens of Wellesley have formed a stock company to establish a representative paper for the town to be known as the Wellesley Review. The paper sheet will be made up of eight pages of advertising and news, to be issued weekly.

—Preaching at the M. E. church on Sunday morning, April 2nd, by Dr. Geo. M. Steele, followed by the administration of the Lord's Supper. In the evening an Easter concert will be given by the Sunday school, with recitations and the singing of Easter carols.

—A concert will be given at the basement of St. John's church next Thursday evening. It is to be a repetition of the one given on the evening of Feb. 22nd, the severe storm of that night having prevented the giving of good purchased tickets, which are to be good for admission to the affair next week.

—Easter exercises at St. Mary's will be as follows: Morning service at 7 o'clock, with celebration of Holy Communion; at 10.45 o'clock services, sermon and celebration of the Holy Sacrament. At 3.30 o'clock p. m. the children of the Sunday school will deliver their Easter offerings. Services for the day will conclude after evening service commencing at 7.30 o'clock.

—Mr. E. E. Moody was pleasantly surprised at his residence Tuesday evening, with a small party of money, being an occasion previous to his change of residence to Quincy, Mass. The gift came from among the former numerous friends here by whom he is highly esteemed, for his ever good natured and kindly countenance. His change of residence comes partly from ill health and it is hoped he will speedily recover.

—Easter services at St. Mary's will be as follows: Morning service at 7 o'clock. Usual service at 10.45 with sermon and celebration of the Holy Communion. Children's Easter festival at 3.30 when there will be an address by the rector and the children will present their missionary offerings. Evening prayer and sermon with special music by the new vested choir at 7.30 p. m. The public cordially invited to all the services.

Smiles.

What is more pleasant to see than a genuine whole-souled smile? As a smile producer there is nothing more effective than "FERRIS" DELICIOUS HAMS. You smile at the thought of having one for dinner—Smile while you are partaking of it—and smile with satisfaction after you have done so.

Newton Horse Shoeing Shop

DELANEY, LELAND & HEWITT,

Successors to

P. A. MURRAY,

Washington Street,

NEXT TO

Murray's Carriage Manufactory.

Having purchased the horse shoeing branch of the business formerly conducted by Mr. P. A. Murray, we desire to state that we have worked at his stand several years and established a first-class reputation and we therefore feel assured of a continuation of your patronage. The shop in which we will continue the business is fitted up exclusively for horse shoeing and we can guarantee to give better satisfaction than ever. Special attention will be given to over reining, interfering and tender footed horses, and also gentlemen owning trotting horses, can have them shod in any of the various styles of weighted shoes desirable for track work.

P. A. MURRAY,

Carriage Builder.
